FALL — A TIME FOR REFLECTION

With its crisp, clear days and bright sunlight filtered through multi-colored leaves, fall days are perfect for reflection and study — or so this young woman at the Reading, Pa., Public Museum believes. Summer's heat waves and fun and frolic are just recently past, but already the nearby Pennsylvania countryside glows with the scarlets and oranges of autumn. Soon the leaves will fall and winter will blanket the forests with snow.

67 Soldiers Petition Kennedy For His Help

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. infantrymen defending the embattled fire support base Pace on the Cambodian border refused direct orders to go out on night patrol Saturday, military spokesmen said.

Reports today from Pace said 67 American soldiers there had sent a petition to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., say they would not patrol further and demanding their immediate withdrawal.

Reports reaching U.S. command headquarters in Saigon indicated that when the patrol was ordered to leave the base, which has been under heavy Communist pressure for two weeks, "some of the members expressed a desire not to go."

There were, however, conflicting reports from the field that six men refused to go on patrol after six others from Bravo Company walked into a claymore mine trap laid by Allied troops earlier in the day.

The men walked into the midst of the mines, set in elephant grass and undergrowth to go off automatically when tripped, the field reports said. The ambush, apparently laid by other U.S. troops or South Vietnamese 200 yards from the base perimeter, did not go off, however. And the patrol returned to the base unharmed.

The company commander tried to form a patrol to go out at dusk. He issued direct individual orders to six men during a formation of the 90-man company and when all of them refused, he gave up, the reports said.

The story told by military sources in Saigon indicated in a brief statement that the commander prepared to send out a 12-man patrol at dusk and "some of the members expressed a desire not to go.

"The infantry company commander repeated the order and the men prepared to move out when they learned that an ARVN (South Vietnamese) element had already manned the ambush position," the statement said.

"At this point the order was withdrawn and no further action was taken," the statement added.

Elsewhere, the U.S. Embassy in Saigon disclosed today that U.S. and South Vietnamese officials had negotiated with the Communists on release of a North Vietnamese army lieutenant and expressed hope his release would lead to the freeing of more war prisoners.

The lieutenant was flown in an unarmed helicopter today to a point inside Cambodia and released near the area where U.S. S. Sgt. John C. Sexton was released by the Communists on Friday. A spokesman said the lieutenant was freed as a reciprocal gesture in hopes there would be other exchanges. Sexton left for home today.

The release occurred near the Cambodian rubber plantation town of Krek where new fighting was reported today between North Veitnamese and South Vietnamese units. A spokesman said 52 Communists were killed in the latest flareup there and that the government lost four killed and 20 wounded.

In addition to the fighting around Krek, military spokesmen reported a battle on Highway 1 linking Saigon and Phnom Penh and said 46 Communists were killed at a cost of seven Saigon troops killed and 15 wounded. The battle took place near the Cambodian town of Kampong Trabek about 80 miles northwest of Saigon.

Reports in Phnom Penh said a force of 1,500 South Vietnamese opened the operation in the Kampong Trabek area Sunday although they were ordered out of the area by the Cambodian government two months ago on grounds they were committing atrocities against Cambodian civilians there.

The U.S. command said the North Vietnamese lieutenant was flown to a secret location

Bombs Hit Consulate In Turkey

ISTANBUL, Turkey (UPI)— Two bomb explosions hit the U.S. consulate and a consulate automobile in Istanbul today shortly before Vice President Spiro T. Agnew arrived in Ankara for an official two-day visit to Turkey.

There were no disturbances in Ankara.

The Agnew plane touched down at Ankara Airport at 10:30 a.m. (4:30 a.m. EDT). The bomb explosions had been reported at 12:45 a.m. and 1 a.m.

There were no immediate reports of trouble in Ankara, but in Istanbul, two bombs exploded at the U.S. Sonsulate, and two automobiles, one of them belonging to U.S. cultural Attache Kenton W. Keith, were reported destroyed.

"It's because that man Spiro Agnew is coming," one Istanbul resident told UPI.

In a short statement at the airport, Agnew said that "since 'Kemal' Ataturk, Turkey's first president "gave the new republic its direction and inspiration, Turkey has become and has served as an example and inspiration to several developing countries."

Agnew said Turkey's role in world peace is an important one and added the United States would do everything possible "to help Turkey achieve its desired developments."

Last Americans In DMZ Begin Two-Week Phaseout

SAIGON (UPI) —The U.S. military command said today it has begun phasing out the last American combat soldiers anywhere near the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ).

The two-week phaseout involves more than 2,000 soldiers in several batteries of the 24th Corps Artillery at a string of bases on the DMZ defense line in Quang Tri province and in northern Thua Thien Province.

The beginning of the withdrawal followed by two days the activation of a new South Vietnamese army division in the north to help take up the slack caused by the American pullout and to bolster DMZ defenses.

Also coming out of Quang Tri and Camp Evans, just inside Thua Thien province, will be the Third Squadron, 5th Armored Cavalry, elements of the 101st Airborne Division and engineer and communications units, command spokesmen said.

U.S. troops strength in Vietnam fell by 2,500 men last week, the command said in its weekly statement.

The report said 210,000 GIs, most of them soldiers, remained in the war zone as of Oct. 7.

Army strength fell to 164,000 men, down 2,500 from the week before.

The Air Force lost 300 men and brought their strength to 34,900 men.

But while the Air Force lost, the Navy gained. Because of an influx of replacements, the Navy gained 300 men, raising its total to 10,200 sailors, the command said.

A command spokesman told newsmen that he realized the decline of 2,500 men was far less than the number required per week to meet President Nixon's goal of 184,000 men in Vietnam by Dec. 1.

"We've already said we needed to send home 3,300 men a week starting last week to make the President's 184,000 man goal by Dec. 1," he said. "Obviously, one of these weeks we're going to have to go way over 3,300 to do it."

21 Senators Would Seek U.N. Aid Cut

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)— Sen. James L. Buckley, R-N.Y., said today a group of at least 21 senators will seek a "dramatic reduction" in U.S. financial support of the United Nations if Nationalist China is expelled.

The conservative Republican issued the warning a week before the General Assembly begins debate on a U.S. resolution to seat both Communist China and Nationalist China and an Albanian resolution to give mainland China the seat now occupied by Formosa.

Buckley told a news conference he was acting as spokesman for a group of senators "who feel deeply that the expulsion of the Republic of Nationalist China would be an act of injustice which would require our reevaluation of the

Marin County Fair Will Close Gates At 10 O'Clock Tonight

The 1971 Marin County Fair entered its final day today — it closes at 10 o'clock tonight — following a weekend that saw attendance records set at the new fairgrounds at Marin Civic Center.

Today was Children's Day at the fair, with boys and girls under 12 admitted free.

Long lines of men, women and children filing through the gates to the fairgrounds continued today to fill the various exhibit halls.

Yesterday's attendance soared to 14,022 paid admissions, and an additional 6,837 children under six who were admitted free hiked the overall crowd to 20,859 people.

This surpassed the record-setting 15,983, including 10,637 paid, who attended the fair on Saturday, and helped run up a total attendance for the first three days of the four-day event to 40,298, with 28,234 paid.

"We could never jam in more than 9,500 people a day at our previous site in Ross," said Marcelle McCoy, fair manager, "and it is gratifying to have the people of Marin turn out in such great numbers to enjoy the fair in its new home"

Soon after the gates opened at 10 a.m. yesterday it was apparent that visitors to the fair would top all previous figures.

By 1 p.m., lines a half-hour long were stretched out in front of each of the three ticket windows at the entrance to the fairgrounds.

Mrs. McCoy and Asst. County Administrator Thomas F. Campanella helped take tickets at a fourth window to accommodate the crowds, assisted by A. C. Slinde, executive director of the Tulare County Fair, who was on hand as an observer and who was pressed into service as a ticket seller.

Some 6,000 visitors had paid their way in to the fair by that time, and by 4 p.m. that number had reached 9,600 paid.

At the same time, there were

Firefighters Save Homes From Huge Blaze Near Carpinteria

CARPINTERIA, Calif. (UPI) —A small army of firefighters diverted a massive brush fire Sunday away from outlying homes of this community, but the inferno continued to spread eastward, burning out of control early today along a four-mile front.

The wind-whipped blaze, which has charred more than 9,000 acres, surged to within 300 yards of outlying homes Sunday before the flames were halted with a giant backburn. No structures were damaged.

The main part of the community was safe behind a barrier of fruit orchards and the Pacific Coast highway.

The blaze caused two brief electric failures in communities from Goleta to here and Southern California Edison Co. officials said a major power breakdown was possible in the area.

A transmission line was burned out, affecting 200,000 persons, but an alternate line was switched into use about 20 minutes later.

All power sources for the surrounding cities lie "within the fire area and all could be severed or destroyed," a power company official said. "In that case the result would be a major electric shutdown of indeterminate duration."

The fire, which has claimed four lives and destroyed seven homes since it broke out Wednesday, moved along the coast side of the Santa Ynez mountains in an uninhabited foothill area of Los Padres National forest today.

Its advance has slowed, firemen said, because of dying winds but it was still described as "burning out of control." Since Wednesday it has been whipped by winds up to 40 miles per hour.

"We're keeping our fingers crossed that we'll continue to get a break in the weather," said Tim Huff, a state fire information officer. "But we're making no predictions on containment."

More than 2,100 state and federal firemen battled the blaze as it ripped across a thick carpet of brush from the community of Summerland to here, a distance of eight miles.

"It's up in the rugged canyons now, no homes are threatened," Huff said. "But it's really hard to get in there to dig lines and fight it."

Four bulldozer operators were killed Thursday when flames suddenly spurted through their working area. Two other firemen were seriously burned.

Seven other persons, six firefighters and a resident, have been injured.

Seven homes in the $40,000 to $100,000 range were destroyed near Summerland in the early days of the blaze. The cost—blackened watershed, destroyed homes and property and the cost of the firegighting effort — mounted to nearly $2 million.

Fire officials mounted an all-out aerial attack during the weekend, with 17 air tankers dropping thousands of gallons of water.

Warm Moscow Welcome For Sadat; Talks Are Due

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

President Anwar Sadat of Egypt arrived in Moscow today to discuss his end-of-the-year deadline for peace or war in the Middle East and walked right into the arms of Leonid I. Brezhnev, Alexei N. Kosygin and Nikolai V. Podgorny.

The three-man Kremlin leadership group greeted Sadat warmly as he stepped down from a Soviet-chartered TU134 airliner at Moscow's Vnukovo airport.

The airport was decked with Soviet and Egyptian flags and sixlane boulevards leading out to it were spanned by red and white streamers proclaiming "Soviet-Egyptian friendship will continue."

Diplomatic sources said that was one of the topics Sadat would begin discussing today with the Kremlin leaders. Hard feelings have developed between Moscow and Cairo over the Cairo trial of pro-Soviet leftwingers.

The sources said the talks would center on the options open to Egypt this fall and winter in the confrontation with Israel and which ones will get Soviet backing.

Defense Minister Andrei A. Grechko and Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko were among the airport greeters.

Sadat arrived from atwo-hour talk with the Shah of Iran and a one-day stopover in Kuwait. The Shah personally greeted Sadat as he stopped over in Tehran.

ANWAR SADAT
War options topic

Kosygin had just flown in from visits to Algeria and Morocco where he warned that the tensions in the Middle East could flare once again into open war if no solution to the problems are found. He said the only solution would be for Israel to give up all territory it captured from the Arabs.

Sadat has said several times the Middle East conflict must be settled this year through war or peace and he repeated this statement before leaving Cairo.

"We have reached a decisive point...if we let this year end without taking action...the occupation (of Arab land by the Israelis) will become the status quo," he said.

Political sources in Beirut said Sadat planned to discuss with the Soviet leaders at a series of talks today, Tuesday and Wednesday the alternatives if the current deadlock continues. They said one alternative under consideration would be "heating up" the situation along the Suez Canal or a resumption of the war of attrition against the Israelis.

Sadat's trip to Moscow—the second since he succeeded the late Gamal Abdel Nasser a year ago —comes at a time when Egyptian-Soviet relations are not particularly warm despite a 15-year friendship treaty signed in May.

Ex-Panther Leader Dies By Police Guns

DENVER (UPI)—A former Black Panther leader who said his people were not yet ready for violence died Sunday in a volley of police bullets after he tried to run down a law officer in a panel truck.

Police said James Albert Young Jr., 30, died of multiple gunshot wounds. He died only a few yards from where a Denver policeman was shot to death in a disturbance last week.

Young allegedly stabbed three women during a dispute, tried to run over an officer with his panel truck and was slain when he opened fire on several other police officers.

Investigators said Young, a former mental patient with a police record dating back to the age of 14, used a knife or a pair of scissors to stab three women who were arguing with his wife outside an after-hours club.

Young tried to flee in his panel truck when police arrived and one officer, Patrolman Richard Petry, said he was knocked to the ground by the van.

After a 10-minute chase, police said Young opened fire

Young, former defense minister for the Denver Black Panthers, claimed in 1969 he was instrumental in the escape of Black Panther leader Eldridge Cleaver from the United States. Cleaver denied the claim.

Rogers' View

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers believes expulsion of Taiwan from the United Nations might set "a very dangerous precedent" that could result in 10 other countries losing their seats.

He did not identify the other 10 nations.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Reagan In Taipei

TAIPEI (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan of California today reassured a Nationalist China of continued U.S. support in defense of Formosa and her seat in the United Nations.

In a speech at an American university club dinner in celebration of Nationalist China's Oct. 10 national day, Reagan said he was authorized to reiterate the United States will "continue honoring our treaty commitments" to Taipei. The republican governor came here Saturday as President Nixon's personal representative.

President Chiang Kai-shek expressed this deep-rooted anxiety and accused the non-Communist world of abandoning his "outstanding but persecuted people who have chosen to resist Communism to the bitter end."

Cardinal's Plan

VIENNA (UPI) — The Austrian government and Roman Catholic church hope Cardinal Jozsef Mindszenty will change his mind about living in Vienna, church and state sources said today.

The sources said the 79-year-old primate of Hungary will be allowed to live here if he insists. But they expressed fear that his presence here would harm both Austria's relations with Hungary and the position of the church within Hungary itself.

Mindszenty went to the Vatican last month after 15 years of asylum in the U.S. embassy in Budapest. He remains, for the moment, the archbishop of Esztergom and, as such, titular leader of the Hungarian church.

Nixon Choice Hit

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — President Nixon has been asked to drop his nomination of Mrs. Romana Banuelos for U.S. Treasurer and select another "more qualified" Mexican-American.

The request was made Sunday by some 300 delegates attending the concluding session of the second annual Mexican-American National issues conference.

Conference chairman Manuel Banda Jr. charged that Nixon failed to consult "responsible" Mexican-American leaders about Mrs. Banuelos nomination and said delegates were "very much dissatisfied" with the way it was handled.

Bridge Dedicated

LAKE HAVASU CITY, Ariz. (UPI) — The 140-year-old London bridge, largest antique ever sold, was reborn Sunday in the hot Arizona desert halfway around the world from the River Thames.

The lord mayor of London, Sir Peter M. Studd, dedicated the reopening of the granite bridge across a segment of the Colorado River. Then he retired to a pub with other dignitaries for stout and beer.

"This grand bridge will continue to inspire men and friendships we've made over the years. What an act of generosity this has been. I hope it will be as hallowed here as it was in England," Sir Peter said.

It took a 40-man crew 23 months to reassemble all 10,276 granite blocks shipped and trucked here in precisely the same order they were when the bridge was built.

Sexton Due Home

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. Army S. Sgt. John C. Sexton Jr., who was released Friday by the Viet Cong in Cambodia after more than two years in captivity, will fly to the United States tomorrow morning, U.S. military spokesmen said today.

Sexton, 23, of Warren, Mich., was undergoing treatment at a U.S. Army hospital near Saigon for old shrapnel wounds and a partially blind eye since his release near Loc Ninh, 70 miles north of Saigon, Friday.

It was not immediately known where Sexton would be taken, but it was understood the ultimate destination would be his hometown of Warren where his family has promised him a Christmas feast to make up for the holidays he missed as a prisoner of war.

Hirohito In Bonn

BONN (UPI) — Emperor Hirohito of Japan arrived from Geneva today for his first visit to Germany, his country's ally during World War II.

The 70-year-old emperor and Empress Nagako landed at Bonn-Cologne airport aboard the imperial DC8 jetliner to begin a three-day visit to West Germany, the last country they will tour on their seven-nation European trip.

The emperor was welcomed at the airport by a deputation headed by Hans Koschnik, president of the Upper House of the Bonn Parliament.

Red China Shakeup Suspected; Mao, Lin Piao May Be Involved

HONG KONG (UPI)—A major shakeup of Communist China's top military command may be under way, diplomatic sources said today. They said it could involve Lin Piao, China's defense minister and the chosen successor to Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

The sources, who specialize in Chinese affairs, said the apparent command changes could be the result of the "incapacity" of Lin Piao. There have been rumors he is ailing or dead, since he has not been seen in public for several months. The first sign of a possible command shakeup was the apparent transfer and possible promotion of the commander of one of the 13 military regions in China, Hsu Shih-yu.

Hsu has been commander of the important Nanking military region for about 15 years. He also is a vice defense minister and, more important, a full member of the powerful 25-member political bureau (politburo) of the Communist party's Central Committee.

A recent provincial radio broadcast from Anhwei identified Hsu's deputy, Liao Jung-piao, as Nanking commander, according to diplomatic sources here. The Anhwei military district is one of three which comprise the Nanking region.

Analysts here speculated that Hsu has been promoted and sent to Peking.

"We can only speculate at this stage," one diplomatic analyst said. "There has been no official confirmation of his transfer. But there are some grounds for speculation that he may have been sent to Peking to take over as the chief of staff or possibly as defense minister. At least, these possibilities cannot be ruled out."

These sources said it was doubtful that Hsu would agree to a transfer to become one of the deputy chiefs of staff since this really would not be a promotion.

"And we have to assume that if he is being transferred it is intended as a boost upward because there has been nothing at all to indicate he would be demoted," the sources said.

China's top military commanders have not appeared in public since an apparent leadership struggle developed in Peking in mid-September.

This situation is believed to have been so serious that it caused cancellation of the traditional National Day mass rally and parade on Oct. 1 in the Chinese capital.

It was specualted earlier that either Mao or Lin Piao had died or was seriously ill. Mao appeared in public for the first time in two months Friday to receive visiting Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie. Mao's appearance, combined with a series of other curious developments still unexplained, heightened speculation that Lin Piao was dead or so ill that he could not perform his duties.

Lin Piao was designated as the "successor" to Mao in the new party constitution, adopted at the ninth party congress in April, 1969. There is no indication that the line of succession after Lin Piao has been set and some analysts believe this may have been what touched off the crisis.

Kidnapping Reported By 2 Girls, 14

Two 14-year-old Mill Valley girls reported they were kidnapped Friday by a man who picked them up hitchhiking at Dolan's Corners in Tamalpais Valley.

Both escaped unharmed, Marin County sheriff's deputies reported.

The girls — Becky Sue Cahoon of 15 Euterpe Street, and Anne Shaw of 14 Matilda Avenue, told deputies they were hitchhiking to the 7-11 Market on Shoreline Highway and were picked up by a man driving a Mustang.

The man told the girls he was going to Stinson Beach, and he continued driving past the food store, the girls said.

When Miss Cahoon protested, the man turned around and let her out of the car not far from the food store, but before Miss Shaw could get out, he took off again on Shoreline toward Stinson Beach.

When she attempted to open the car door, Miss Shaw told deputies, the man grabbed her by the neck and began choking her but she was finally able to free herself.

Planners To Discuss Building Moratorium

The Novato Planning Commission, meeting at 8 p.m. today in the Novato Community House, will consider a resolution placing a moratorium on all buildings in Novato.

The moratorium would stop all construction in the city until completion of a new general plan.

The Novato City Council, after a three-hour public hearing on Sept. 30, ordered that such a resolution be drawn up by the planning staff for the commission's consideration tonight.

The commission had been requested by Guthrie R. Greene, president of the North Marin Federation of Homeonwers Association, to halt all construction. Greene said that the member organizations were alarmed over the townhouse and apartment house complexes being constructed in the city.

Other items to be considered by the commission include a 62-unit townhouse project at Hill Road at the Nave Shopping Center for Paul Pickart, an eight-unit apartment house at Railroad Avenue and Logan Street for Fred Mauroni, a five-unit apartment building on San Marin Drive west of San Mateo Way for Major Investments, changing the name of Bugeia Lane to Bahia Drive and a review of the use permit of the Kok-Pit saloon in Sundown Shopping Center east of Highway 101 north of Bolling Drive for Nick Morf.

Over 200 Turn Out For College Recital

More than 225 persons attended a recital by the Dolmetsch-Schoenfeld Ensemble at College of Marin Saturday night, according to a college spokesman.

The ensemble, which consists of Carl Dolmetsch, Alice Schoenfeld, Elenore Schoenfeld and Joseph Saxby, played early and modern music on the recorder, treble viol, violin, violincello and harpsichord.

Youth Is Arrested In Fair Trespassing

An 18-year-old San Rafael youth got free admission into Marin County Jail yesterday after he tried to sneak into the county fair at the civic center fairgrounds.

Fred Blanchard Harrington, 18, of 112 Twelveoak Hill Drive, was booked on suspicion of trespassing and possessing marijuana and held in lieu of $100 bail to appear in Marin Municipal Court tomorrow.

Marin sheriff's deputies said Harrington and another youth were seen by a security guard at the fair attempting to enter the fairgrounds free of charge by crossing over the lagoon bridge at the rear of the grounds.

As the youths ran from him, the guard, Jimi Hodges, said he heard a loud bang. Thinking they were armed, Hodges said, he fired at the boys.

Harrington stopped, but his companion continued running and escaped.

A sheriff's deputy summonded by Hodges found one suspected marijuana cigarette in Harrington's pocket, and he was arrested.

Fair manager Marcelle McCoy, said today the only other criminal incident at the fair occurred Friday night when canvas on one of the fences was ripped, apparently to allow persons to sneak into the grounds.

Damage was minor and the canvas was repaired Saturday morning, she said.

long lines in front of the moon rock in the space exhibit in the exhibition hall of the Veterans Memorial Building, and at the carnival rides and the boat rides.

A bright sun and balmy fall weather helped attract the crowds during the day, but they continued to stream in even after dark.

By 8 p.m., when the Marin Civic Ballet began its performance in the Veterans Memorial Building theater, more than 13,000 had paid their way into the fair, accompanied by some 6,000 boys and girls under six who were allowed in free.

During the day the portable backdrop for the circular outdoor stage was turned around so that the entertainers could face the large lawn in the center of the fairgrounds.

on Highway 7 between the Cambodian towns of Memot and Snuol.

High Vietnamese sources said the release was negotiated with the Communists who originally wanted two of their men released for one American. The South Vietnamese, however, insisted that it be a one-for-one exchange. The United States went along with this, spokesmen said, and flew the NVA lieutenant to Memot-Snuol area.

The highway in that area is under Communist control and is about 20 miles from where heavy fighting has been going on for the past two weeks around the Cambodian plantation border town of Krek.

Sexton was released by the Viet Cong and made his way to Loc Ninh, 70 miles north of Saigon and about nine miles from where he was captured Aug. 12, 1969. He still was under treatment today for old shrapnel wounds and a partially blind right eye at a U.S. Army hospital near Saigon. Plans were being made to fly him home.

A U.S. command spokesman said "the release today was made in response to indications that the enemy would welcome such a release at a given time and place. We have no assurance whatsoever at the present that this reciprocal gesture will lead to the release of additional American prisoners. That, however, is the goal to which we are working."

Men Flee With Cash At Market

Two men stole $410 Saturday from the Food Mart, 709 Fifth Avenue, San Rafael, police reported.

Police said one of the men, described as black, 6-feet tall, 160-170 pounds, medium build and semi-Afro style hair, made the clerk, Melvin B. LaFranchi, ring up a purchase. When the register was open, the other man, described as black, 5-feet, 11-inches tall, 150-160 pounds, slender build, Afro style hair, with a mustache, asked for a package of cigarettes.

While the clerk was getting the cigarettes, the first man grabbed $20 and $10 bills from the register and both men fled on foot, according to the report.

nature and function of the United Nations."

"If the Republic of China is expelled we will immediately introduce legislation calling for a dramatic reduction in the extent of America's financial support of the United Nations," he said.

Buckley conferred with U.S. Ambassador George Bush before issuing the state zevbuckley conferred with U.S.1 - hbassador George Bush before issuing the statement.

The United States over the weekend gained one more cosponsor for its two-China policy which calls for the seating of the Peking government by simple majority and making expulsion of Nationalist China an "important question," requiring a two-thirds majority vote.

The new cosponsor, Mauritius, added its name to 20 other sponsors, including the United States, Japan and Australia, for the expulsion resolution and 17 other sponsors of the Peking resolution.

Nevertheless, the general feeling among the observers was that the U.S. policy will fail and an Albanian resolution calling for outright expulsion of the Taiwan government and seating of Peking will carry.

Bush last week said it was "nip and tuck, very, very close."

The China question will open for discussion one week from today and voting on the issue is scheduled three weeks from today.

There were two questions for debate on this week's agenda.

One is the Southwest Africa issue where the United Nations has claimed jurisdiction for the past five years and South Africa, the administering power, has refused to yield to the world body.

The other is a charge by Zambia that South African security forces have violated Zambian territory in "hot pursuit" of African liberation fighters trying to enter Southwest Africa.

Speakers today were three Arab nations, Saudi Arabia, Southern Yemen (formerly British Aden) and Libya, and the foreign minister of Singapore.

Explosion Kills Five In Georgia

CARTERSVILLE, Ga. (UPI) —Five members of a North Georgia family were killed today when a rural frame home exploded. There were two survivors who were hospitalized.

Authorities identified the victims as Richard Harris, 38, an employe of a chemical firm in Cartersville; his wife, also about 38; and three of their children, Terry, 10; Inez, 13; and Betty Jean, 8.

Ronnie, 16, and Patsy, 15, survived, but were taken to Sam Howell Hospital.

The badly burned bodies of the victims were strewn throughout the ruins of the home and nearby. Two of the children's bodies were found by rescuers on a side porch and one was found in the back yard.

The mother's body was found in the kitchen, under debris. The badly injured Harris was found by neighbors in the front of the house. He died while being taken to the hospital.

Neighbors said there were three explosions and a fire at the Harris home on a dirt road about three miles south of Cartersville.

Civilian Travel Allowances Revised

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The government, in a move expected to save several million dollars annually, put new travel allowances into effect today for all of its 2.6 million civilian employes.

In place of the standard $25 per diem allowance for travel expenses provided since 1969, federal workers now have what is termed a "lodgings-plus" allowance.

5 Die As Church Boiler Explodes

MARIETTA, Ohio (UPI) — At 11:28 a.m., the Sunday School class at the First Baptist Church was discussing the religious implications of Charles Manson's hippie commune. In 17 minutes, Michael Murphy, 30, would dismiss his class.

Suddenly a boiler encased in concrete on the middle floor of the three-story church annex exploded. The floor "crumbled like an eggshell" and tons of concrete, metal and scalding water cascaded down on Murphy's first floor classroom.

The teacher and four of his teen-age students were killed. Fourteen others attending his and other classes in the annex building were injured, one critically.

William Hickman, teaching an adult class 20 feet from the boiler, was flung to the floor by the blast and cut by flying glass. He groped his way through smoke and blackness into an adjacent nursery, where he heard two 1-year-old children crying.

He told police he dug through the rubble of a fallen wall and rescued the three infants.

"I found all three babies and handed them to someone who was standing beside me and I guess they took them out. I think the babies might have suffocated had they not been removed quickly."

Debbie McLendon, 15, recalled from her hospital bed later:

"Our teacher, Mr. Murphy, was interested in the Manson case and we were talking about the religious cults that surrounded the case.

"Then the explosion hit, everything went dark —almost completely black," she said. "For about a minute or two I couldn't see anything. Finally it started to get light in the room and it was filled with steam. Someone yelled, 'get out.'"

The blast, according to Mayor John Burnworth, came only three minutes after the church custodian shut off the boiler when he found the boiler room full of steam and the temperature 30 degrees above normal. The boiler had been started an hour earlier because of the crisp October weather.

"The floor crumbled like an eggshell," Burnworth said. "It just opened up and the boiler, the concrete and steel fell onto a class beneath it. It just blew all to hell."

Methodists Move On Social Concerns

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The United Methodist Church may adopt resolutions advocating amnesty for war resisters, the right to object conscientiously to a specific war, and reduced penalties for marijuana possession.

The resolutions, drafted here during a weekend meeting of the church's 88-member board of christian social concerns, will be considered at a general conference in April in Atlanta.

New Railroad Pact Is Signed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — About 90,000 workers represented by four railroad shopcraft unions have until Nov. 9 to ratify a new agreement with the nation's railroads.

The agreement was signed Friday by the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen, the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers and Blacksmiths, and the Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

Details of the contract were not disclosed pending the ratification vote.

Parade In San Francisco Is Enlivened By Shooting

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— San Franciscans were treated to two parades Sunday and some got more excitement than they bargained for.

More than 75,000 persons turned out for the traditional Columbus Day Parade to honor the man generally credited with the discovery of America.

Police chased the car of a suspected holdup man through the thick auto traffic caused by the Columbus Day parade and cornered him in a Chinatown housing project.

Lief Erikson was also honored. Scandinavian dancers celebrated his earlier discovery with music and folk dances in Golden Gate Park.

The second parade was held in Chinatown, marking the establishment of the Republic of China.

The armed youth allegedly shot at another motorist during the chase.

Officers said the suspect identified himself as Douglas Hom, 21, San Francisco.

He allegedly tried to hold up a service station at gunpoint but suddenly fled when the attendant went to get the money.

Police said the driver of a car matching the description of the holdup vehicle reportedly shot several times at a passing motorist, Michael Mah, 21, in an intersection.

Sunday night the Chinese Community held its annual "Double Ten" parade.

The "double ten" comes from the revolution in China that started on the tenth day of the tenth month of 1911 and led to the overthrow of the Manchu Dynasty.

The parade highlighted a day-long festival and included a block-long, paper dragon that ran through the streets.

Wedding Ferry Sinks — 19 Die

WARSAW (UPI) — Nineteen persons, including the bridegroom's mother, died Sunday when a wooden ferry taking them to a village wedding capsized in the river Visitula, police said today.

The bride and groom were not on the ferry and the wedding went on as planned. "But it was a very sad party," said Maj. Wladyslaw Wierzbinski, commandant of the police station at Kozienice.

Fourteen bodies have been recovered, Wierzbinski said.

EOC's Past, Future To Be Studied

What has Marin's Economic Opportunity Council accomplished since its creation in 1966 and what does it propose to do in the future?

Marin County Board of Supervisors hope to get these answers tomorrow morning at a joint meeting with the EOC board of directors at 9 a.m. in Room 332 of the Civic Center Administration Building.

W. Robert Lomax Jr., EOC executive director, and several EOC board members will discuss programs undertaken such as manpower development and Head Start.

At 10:30 a.m., the county supervisors will reconvene in their chambers for the regular Tuesday session.

Among items on the agenda are:

REDISTRICTING — Supervisors will discuss the state Senate's proposed gerrymandering of Senate district that would leave Marin parceled out to four different senators. County Administrator John F. Barrows will report that Marin's supervisorial districts do not need drastic changes because of proper population distribution.

COURTHOUSE — San Rafael Mayor Paul C. Bettini will appear before the supervisors to see if some arrangement can be made for the city to buy the old courthouse site.

NEW ROUTE — The San Anselmo Chamber of Commerce will ask for investigation of a new north-south route from near Terra Linda.

Mother Killed On Rail Trestle

BOYS RANCH, Tex. (UPI) — Cecil Reynolds, his wife and their three sons —Mitch, 5, Dudley, 8, and Mike, 11 —were walking across a narrow railroad trestle 30 feet above the dry Canadian River bed Sunday when they heard a train.

They were 50 feet from the end of the trestle, but the freight train was only 150 feet away and bearing down on them.

Reynolds grabbed Mitch and ran with Mrs. Reynolds towards the end of the bridge. Unable to reach it in time, the three lay flat on the bed of the tracks.

Mrs. Reynolds was killed and Reynolds and Mitch were critically injured. The other two boys, Mike and Dudley, were able to climb down a ladder on the trestle and were not hurt.

The train slashed Reynolds' back and cut and bruised Mitch. They were taken to an Amarillo hospital.

ADA Criticizes 'Favorite Sons'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Americans for Democratic Action (ADA) says "favorite son" candidacies for presidential nominations are contrary to reform movements in the Republican and Democratic parties.

State delegations often have backed a "favorite son" for President to hold a bloc of votes for bargaining with serious contenders.

The ADA said in a weekend report prepared by a task force that it was even prepared to go to court to block "favorite sons."

Supervisorial Districts Due Some Minor Changes

Marin's five supervisorial districts will not require reapportionment this year because population distribution remains within legal requirements, County Administrator John F. Barrows said yesterday.

Barrows, in a letter which will go to the board of supervisors tomorrow, quoted a report from the county counsel's office which said each of the five districts holds between 17 and 23 per cent of the total county population — within federal guidelines.

Barrows said, however, he would propose minor changes to "improve the community of interests . . . without involving three of the five districts disturbing the population balance."

Present district populations and the supervisors who represent them are:

District 1 (Supervisor John F. McInnis) — 43,677 persons, or 21.20 per cent of total population.

District 2 (Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr.) — 38,000 persons, or 18.88 per cent.

District 3 (Supervisor Michael Wornum) — 47,111 persons, or 22.87 per cent.

District 4 (Supervisor Louis H. Baar) — 36,373 persons, or 17.65 per cent.

District 5 (Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste) — 39,987 persons, or 19.41 per cent.

The county's total population by 1970 count is 206,038.

Changes proposed by Barrows are the shift of 1,240 persons living in east Corte Madera from Wornum's district to Barr's, since Baar now represents the rest of Corte Madera, and transfer of 523 residents in the College Park and Murray Park areas of Larkspur from Arrigoni's district to Baar's. This would bring all of the older section of the city into District 4, Barrows said.

The minor alterations are in sharp contrast to the planned reapportionment of state senatorial districts as unveiled by Sacramento Democrats.

Panel To Decide The Fate Of Landmark Church

Dissident members of the congregation of the First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael have won a round in their efforts to block demolition of the 74-year-old landmark.

The presbytery of the Redwoods region, meeting in Larkspur Friday, agreed to establish a committee of 13 members to study whether the old bluestone structure can be saved or must be razed as too prone to earthquake hazards.

The committee will consist of three members of the presbytery, five of the dissident congregationers, and five persons from the church's session, or governing body — which voted late in January to level the landmark and build a new church.

No meeting date has been set for the study committee. Its members still must be named by the three groups represented, according to Jan Page of San Rafael.

There are 50 species of oak trees in North America.

Only One Black College On List

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Only one Negro college ranks among the 100 leading recipients of federal aid, although U.S. contributions to black colleges increased 16 per cent in the past year.

Howard University, which is almost entirely supported by the federal government and the District of Columbia —which receives much of its budget from the federal treasury — was the only predominantly black college listed in a report released over the weekend.

The other 99 colleges receiving the most federal aid in dollar value were predominantly white.

Leader Of 'Third World' Sees Role Of A 'Negotiating Power'

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)— The new chairman of the "Group of 77" developing nations believes the changing global strategic balance could open the way for the Third World to become "a great negotiating power."

Gen. Edgardo Mercado Jarrin, foreign minister of Peru, points to the emergence of China, the rise of Japan as an economic power, the strengthening of the European community through expansion in Common Market membership and the increase in trade between capitalist and communist nations.

"New political and economic powers are emerging. There are harmonizing policies among the more powerful nations. In the Third World we have a new power of negotiation to find new avenues of understanding," Mercado said in an interview while attending the 26th General Assembly.

Mercado, the only U.. delegate to address the assembly in uniform complete with a 5-inch square block of decorations, became a spokesman for the developing nations that make up the Third World when Peru was elected last month to head the "Group of 77" which meets in Lima Oct. 25 to Nov. 6.

The loosely knit organization was formed in Algiers in 1964 to coordinate trade and development policies of developing nations in the United Nations. Originally numbering 77 nations —hence the name —it now has 94 member states.

Mercado speak in broad terms of his hopes for "the strategy of development of countries belonging to the Third World"—the developing nations of Asia, Africa, the Middle East and Latin America which seek to remain outside the immediate spheres of the great democratic and socialist powers.

"There is a new meeting ground for third World and developing countries so the Third World can eventually become a great negotiating power," he says. "It is vis a vis the Third World where the world will come to evaluate the new dimensions of peace.

"The future is to be found in the element of diversity."

But Mercado, speaking for his left wing military government, deals with specifics in the political present:

—The nations of the Third World will insist on a voice on the monetary crisis. "We will request at the Lima meeting that we should form a special advisory monetary committee to draft a resolution requesting the General Assembly to call a world monetary conference. No international monetary arrangements will be acceptable if the Third World is not consulted."

—President Nixon's 10 per cent surcharge on imports, intended to improve the U.S. balance of payments, is "unfair" to developing nations which did not create the problem. They therefore should be exempt.

—Peru, as the world's top fishing nation, looks to the United Nations to help protect its rich fishing preserves and wants the General Assembly to "reconsider the dangers" of French nuclear tests in the Pacific. "Obviously, if the slightest danger (of contamination) exists, the tests should cease."

—Peru will not modify its claim to a 200-mile territorial sea —which has resulted in the seizure of U.S. tuna boats fishing without license from Peru —and seeks to have the United Nations incorporate the limit in its new law of the sea.

Third Newton Trial To Begin

OAKLAND (UPI) —Black Panther Party co-founder Huey P. Newton, just back from a visit to Mainland China, is scheduled to go on trial Tuesday for the third time on charges of slaying policeman John Frey.

Newton arrived here Friday after a 10-day visit to China and told newsmen he never considered staying in the Communist nation because, "I would be like a soldier leaving his post if I stayed away from home."

A petition to delay the trial on charges of voluntary manslaughter was turned down Friday by the state court of appeal.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

West's Excessive Power Is Not 'Enough' To Beat Bid

You never know what is enough unless you know what is more than enough. Blake probably wasn't thinking of bridge when he wrote this proverb, but it certainly applies to West's trump holding. He'd have been much better off with only five instead of seven trumps.

DOUBLE PLUNGE

West didn't count on his partner for any defensive tricks when he doubled four spades. West expected to win his ace, a king or two, and three or four trump tricks. Perhaps that's why his double shook the room.

West confidently opened the ace of hearts and was disappointed to see that his kings would be worth very little since dummy had the ace-queen of each minor suit. Still, West was sure he would win enough trump tricks to pile up a big penalty.

West shifted to the ten of clubs at the second trick, and South won a finesse with dummy's queen. Declarer next led dummy's trump to his own ace, and East's heart discard confirmed South's suspicions about the trump position.

NO CONCESSIONS

A timid player might concede three or four trumps and get it over with, but the actual declarer was made of sterner stuff. South led the jack of diamonds for a finesse. West covered with the king, and dummy's ace won.

South won two more diamond tricks and the ace of clubs, reducing West to six of his original seven trumps. Then declarer led a fourth diamond from dummy, discarding a club from his hand.

MUST RUFF

West had to ruff and then had to return a trump, allowing South to win with the eight of spades. South then led his losing heart, whereupon West was obliged to ruff again. West had to lead trumps once more, giving South a second free finesse.

Nothing could stop declarer from winning a trick with the ten of spades, so that he wound up losing only one heart and two trumps. West's excessive trump length forced him to win his partner's trick and then yield two free finesses to declarer.

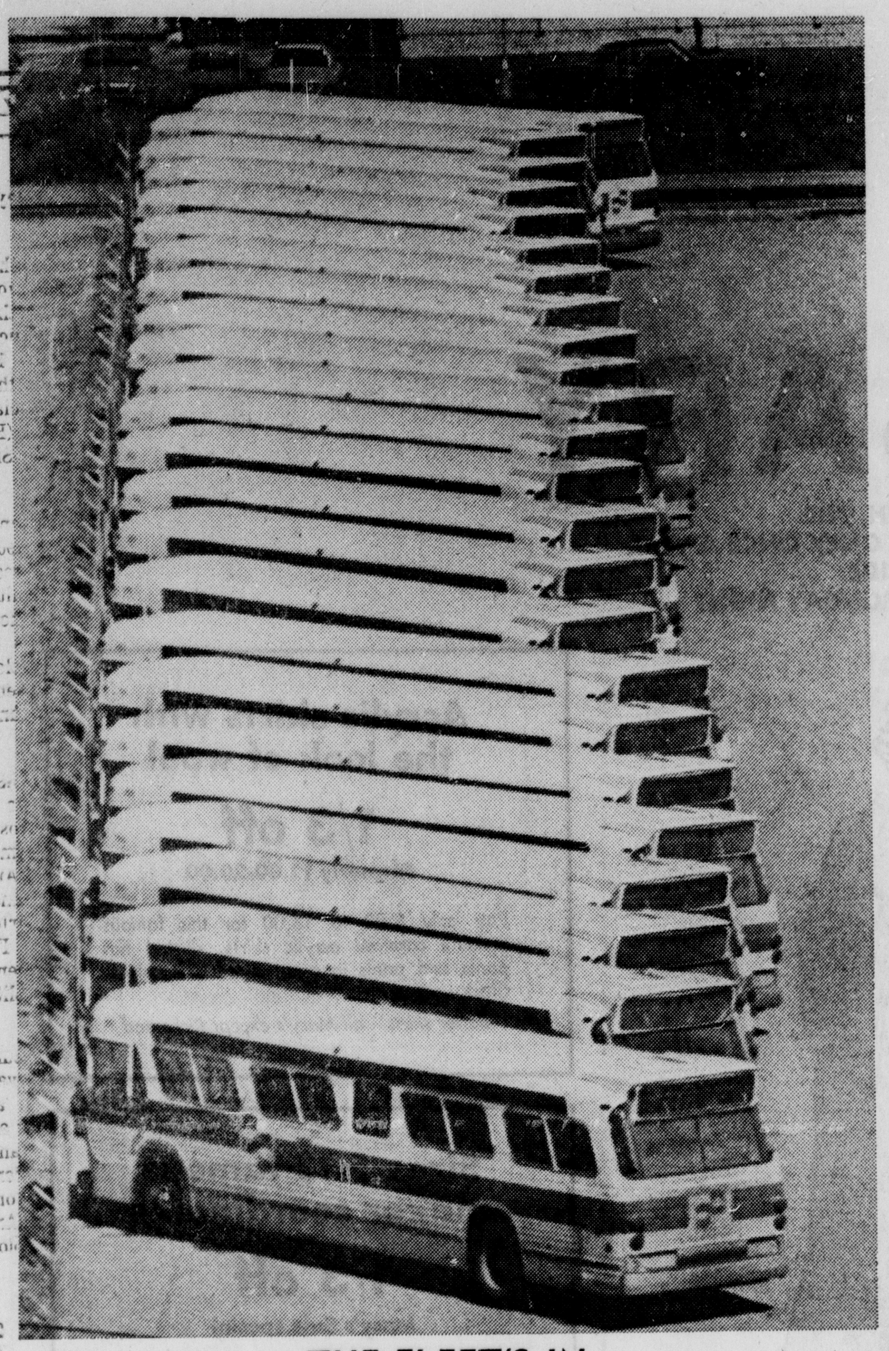
Drill Team Sets Session Tomorrow

The girls' state champion drill team of the Petaluma Police Assistance League will meet tomorrow at 8 p.m. in the police station squad room to discuss raising funds for a trip to the national competition in Milwaukee, Wis. in June.

Interested persons will be welcome. Team director George Norton estimates a minimum of $3,500 would be needed for the trip.



THE FLEET'S IN

New Golden Gate Bridge District buses arrive daily at its Jacoby Street, San Rafael, maintenance facility from the General Motors plant in Michigan. This row of 24 of the air-conditioned luxury coaches arrived during the week end. The bridge district is gearing up for the Dec. 1 start of the system, which will have 154 buses. The $45,000 coaches are checked as they arrive, and only minor electrical problems have been detected in the 51 buses already delivered.

Prosecution Of Angela Is Defended

SACRAMENTO , Calif. (UPI) — Attorney General Evelle Younger said Sunday that, "through deliberate or accidental deceptions, many people have actually come to believe that Angela Davis is being prosecuted because of her sex, race or politics." Younger's office is assisting in the prosecution of Miss Davis on murder and conspiracy charges resulting from the San Rafael Courthouse shootout last year.

He contended that the court system, may for the first time, face a "situation in which the people's case has been prejudiced to an almost unbelievable extent."

"The conditioning process has been so complete," he said, "that many people have forgotten the courthouse shootout and resulting murder that shocked the nation, and don't stop to consider that we are basing the charges on the evidence."

Younger's remarks were made in a tape recording distributed to California radio stations by his office.

President Studying Court Nominees, Wooing Labor

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon today began what he termed "a very busy" two-week period, concentrating on the search for two Supreme Court nominees and seeking organized labor's cooperation with his new economic policy.

The President planned to take advantage of the Columbus Day holiday and a virtually appointment-free calendar to work privately at the White House after a two-day stay at Camp David, his mountaintop retreat in western Maryland.

"I'm going to have a very busy next two weeks—a lot of work to do, for you too, as you will see," Nixon told reporters at Camp David before returning Sunday to the White House.

Neither the President nor his press secretary, Ronald L. Ziegler, would elaborate. But his offhand remark was taken to mean that he soon might announce at least one of his choices to fill the Supreme Court vacancies created when the late Hugo L. Black and John M. Harlan resigned last month.

Speculation focues primarily on Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, the assistant Democratic leader in the Senate who is regarded a "strict constructionist " which the President favors.

Nixon's work schedule also was certain to include efforts to win organized labor's support for his plan to set up a Pay Board and a Price Commission as part of his continuing battle against inflation.

The Pay Board would have 15 members—five each from the general public, labor and management—and Nixon was expected to await the outcome of a Tuesday summit meeting called by AFL-CIO President George Meany before appointing anyone to either that panel or the Price Commission.

Meany and other union leaders have said they want the Pay Board to operate totally free of government intervention and that they are not certain that the administration is prepared to promise such autonomy.

As for the Supreme Court, Nixon and Byrd talked privately Friday during a plane ride to Elkins, W. Va., where they attended a forest festival. They were understood to have discussed the openings on the high court, but neither the 53-year-old senator nor the White House has had any comment on the speculation.

Two announced candidates for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination talked about it Sunday—and took divergent positions on Byrd's qualifications.

Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota predicted Byrd would win Senate confirmation if nominated and praised him as a man of "enormous industry and personal pride."

But Sen. Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma said he would oppose Byrd, saying his record did not warrant appointment and that he "has not had the depth of legal experience ... you would want to see appointed to the Supreme Court for life."

Byrd received a law degree in five years after being elected to the Senate in 1958 and after renouncing his membership in the Ku Klux Klan. He voted against the Civil Rights Acts of 1964 and 1965 but supported civil rights legislation passed in 1957, 1960, 1962 and 1968.

Before dealing with these and other matters this week, the President relaxed Sunday at the White House and hosted another in the series of worship services there—this one the first conducted in his own Quaker faith.

Dr. D. Elton Trueblood, a professor at Earlham College in Indiana and a well-known Quaker clergyman, told the gathering of several hundred government officials, sports and entertainment figures that the central problem facing society and its leaders is how to nourish the roots of human action—the soul.

Fight Vowed Over Veto Of VD Bill

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A legislative fight to override Gov. Ronald Reagan's veto of her venereal disease instruction bill was promised today by Assemblyman March K. Fong, D-Oakland.

The measure, AB 950, vetoed last week by Reagan, would permit the instruction in public schools without first requiring parental consent for children to attend the classes.

Current law requires such consent, thus hobbling such instruction, according to Mrs. Fong, because teachers fear losing their credentials when the burden of obtaining consent is imposed on the schools.

Mrs. Fong stressed that her bill would not deprive parents of their right to have their children excused from such instruction.

She appealed to citizens to let their legislators know, especially Republicans, that the veto should be overridden.

Senators Ask Labor To Back President

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Two influential Democratic and Republican senators have asked labor to cooperate with President Nixon's post-freeze economic policies, but two Democratic presidential hopefuls believe the the administration plan favors big business.

Administration officials said labor support was needed to make the cooperative phase of the President's economic plan work.

Presidents George Meany of the AFL-CIO, Leonard Woodcock of the United Auto Workers and Frank Fitzsimmons of the Teamsters Union were scheduled to meet Tuesday to discuss labor's role.

Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., said labor should participate fully in the post-freeze program. Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said politics should be set aside to help Nixon's new policy take effect beginning Nov. 14.

The only declared candidates for the democratic presidential nomination in 1972—Sens. Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma and George McGovern of South Dakota—were reserved.

The overall plan is "still loaded in favor of big business," McGovern said, while Harris said the pay and price boards smacked "too much of a mass of bureaucracy."

Nixon proposes setting up independent boards to keep prices and wages from contributing to inflation. But labor leaders have expressed concern that the already-operating Cost of Living Council, which is interpreting administration economic policy, might overrule the pay board's decisions.

Scout Who Revived Sister Due Medal

A 14-year-old Boy Scout from San Marin has been awarded a national medal of merit by the Boy Scouts of America for saving the life of his two-year-old sister.

Brian Duncan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Duncan, and a member of Troop 42, will receive the award tonight in his troop's monthly court of honor at 7:30 in West Novato School.

Last February Brian's sister, Melissa, went into convulsions and stopped breathing as she slept. Brian, using resuscitation techniques he had learned in scouting, breathed into her nose because her jaws were locked and started her breathing.

The child was rushed to Novato General Hospital where nurses had to use ice water and alcohol rubs to bring down her 105-degree fever.

For his feat the lanky teenager was recommended for the scout's lifesaving award by the Marin Boy Scout Council. The recommendation was approved by the national court of honor.

Brian will also receive six merit badges, star scout rating and two troop assignments tonight. In addition to scouting he is a class officer and member of the football team at Sinaloa Junior High School.

New Dispute; Southstate Dockwork Comes To Halt

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Work on docks in Los Angeles and Long Beach came to a halt Sunday in a new dispute between longshoremen and employers. Elsewhere on the West Coast, cargo was being loaded and unloaded.

A spokesman for the Pacific Maritime Association said no regular work gangs were ordered in the two Southern California ports Sunday morning. The only cargo being handled was on two military vessels and two ships not associated with the PMA.

The dispute between the association and the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union started Saturday morning when dock crews reported for work.

The PMA said it had asked for specialty workers but the union sent others instead.

The workers were turned away and no more have been sent to the waterfront.

Los Angeles and Long Beach combined form the largest West Coast port. Management claims the special men are needed to get the docks back in shape to pave the way for other workers.

The union filed a grievance and federal arbitrator George Love, in a preliminary ruling, upheld the PMA's contention that it was entitled to ask for the special workers who move equipment such as forklifts and cranes.

A PMA spokesman said he doesn't expect a final ruling until Friday at the earliest and "more likely it will come next week," possibly keeping the ports tied up until then.

Meanwhile, longshoremen loaded and unloaded ships at other ports from Seattle to San Diego as the first vessel-carrying cargo destined for Hawaii steamed westward in the Pacific.

The men reported to work for the third day following a back-to-work order issued under the Taft-Hartley Act that suspended a 101-day walkout.

Some longshoremen were unhappy over the federal court order that sent them back to the job and appeared geared for a slower-than–normal pace.

"We're not working very hard," said one grumpy stevedore on the San Francisco docks.

The prolonged strike by 15,000 members of the ILWU brought shortages of food and other supplies to Hawaii. Prices soared during the walkout as supplies dwindled.

The freighter Californian sailed Saturday morning from Vancouver, B.C., for Honolulu under a special charter purchased by the city of Honolulu.

The first vessel bound for the islands out of the San Francisco Bay was the Transoneida. She was departing early today laden with building materials, foodstuffs, toilet paper, napkins, chickens and frozen meat.

Avoid traffic. Swim to Dominic's.

If we're to keep up with the competition in the restaurant business these days, we have to offer an advantage of some kind besides just truly superior food and drink. One day someone noticed that our location on the San Rafael Yacht Harbor meant customers could swim directly to our private docks from almost any point in the Bay Area. We checked to see if any of our competitors were stressing this, and none were. So if you don't want to fight traffic getting to a fine restaurant, now you know what to do.

MANY OF the 22 couples honored at a marriage celebration yesterday at the Synanon facility in Marshall stand behind the wedding cake, baked for the party by Izzy Cohn, (rear, left), who came to Synanon last year. After 12 years of donating goods from his bakery in Southern California, Mr. Cohn sold his bakery and moved into the Synanon facility in Santa Monica.

IT IS hoped by Synanon residents that the marriage celebration will become a semi-annual tradition with a party planned each spring and fall. More than 500 guests attended yesterday's celebration of 21 recent marriages and the renewal of vows for a couple wed more than 20 years. The party was held in the spacious utilitarian building of Synanon.

22 Couples Say Vows Again In Ceremonies At Synanon

By JOAN LISETOR

Twenty one Synanon couples, all married in the eyes of the State of California in the past few weeks, were married in the eyes of the community yesterday in a marriage festival at the Synanon facility at Marshall.

Also taking part in the ceremony were the George Hearsts, who were married more than 20 years ago. Their marriage has taken on a new meaning since they became residents of Synanon, giving them the desire to renew their vows.

More than 500 guests attended the celebration, held inside the spacious living-dining building, where the Synanon store, offices and library are also situated.

FRIENDS AND relatives of the newlyweds and members of the Synanon community from the Santa Monica and Oakland facilities joined the more than 200 residents of Synanon on Tomales Bay for its biggest event yet in the number of people and amount of food.

Festivites began at 11 a.m. with the entrance of the elders. The couples filed into a room adjacent to the living-dining area, where guests were assembled, and received the blessing of Rev. C. Mason Harvey, a former Presbyterian minister, who teaches at the Synanon school in Santa Monica. A group sang "We've Only Just Begun," and the couples performed a mating dance, resembling a minuet.

With the conclusion of the ceremony came congratulatory hugs and kisses and expressions of good wishes, and the party began.

The newlyweds, brides dressed in peasant gowns and bridegrooms in overalls, lead the way to the feast tables, containing trays of turkey, chicken, ham, pastrami,tongue, potato salad, macaroni salad, homebaked breads, cookies and pastries and fruits. The lavish trays, beautifully decorated with fresh vegetable relishes, were replenished by the kitchen staff, wearing snow white chef's outfits, throughout the day and into the evening.

CONVERSATIONS CENTERED around the beauty of the celebration and the hope that it would become a Synanon tradition with a joyous celebration planned for each spring and fall.

Roses and carnations decorated the interior of the otherwise utilitarian building. Center of attention was an elaborate three-tiered wedding cake, baked by Izzy Cohn, who began helping Synanon in its early days 13 years ago by donating the day old bread from his bakery in Ocean Beach to Charles Dederich, Synanon founder. After 12 years of helping Synanon, Mr. Cohn sold his bakery and joined the Synanon community in Santa Monica last year.

The cake was wheeled into the dining room on a cart, and the guests cheered the baker, who cut and served the cake.

Like most wedding celebrations, much activity was for the benefit of the camera.

The day was not without minor mishaps, as when a bowl of water, used for dipping the frosting smudged knife during the cake cutting, toppled on the floor. Like the tables after meals, the mess was cleaned in seconds.

Four Daughters Marry — 'It Was A Humdinger'

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (UPI)—Justin Hund married off all four of his daughters simultaneously Saturday, but the girls went on separate honeymoons.

"It was one humdinger of a wedding," said the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Thomas O'Toole, who performed the ceremonies.

"It's not as bad as four separate weddings would be," added Hund, who made four trips to the altar, each time escorting a different daughter down the aisle at St. Anne's Roman Catholic Church.

Hund made shuttle trips to the alter with Judy, 24, Janice, 23, Joan 22, and Jeannette, 18. There were eight bridesmaids.

Then one by one he handed over the brides —after scampering to the back of the church each time—to the bridegrooms: Gerald Howard, Air Force Lt. Kenneth Smith, Darryl Sellas and Larry Hyder.

Black-Tie Dinner, Ball At Yacht Club

By MOLLY MARIN

British Week was celebrated Saturday night at a black tie regatta dinner and ball at Corinthian Yacht Club in Tiburon where Scottish Highland bagpipers and dancers performed for British guests, American military officers, officials of United California Bank and club members.

The gesture of friendship and trade promotion is held bi-annually in a different country explains John Colver of Belvedere, chairman of the dance and British Week regatta.

The dance was followed yesterday by a regatta for invited classes and divisions, and trophies were presented by E. Herrick Low, vice president of United California Bank.

Among the guests Saturday night were British Consul General James Murray, British Minister for Trade Rt. Hon. Michael Nobel, a member of Parliament; Anthony H. Vine, director of British Week for the British foreign office; Capt. R. D. Butt, Royal Navy, commander of HMS Blake, a heavy cruiser; and "Miss London Stores," Penny Butler.

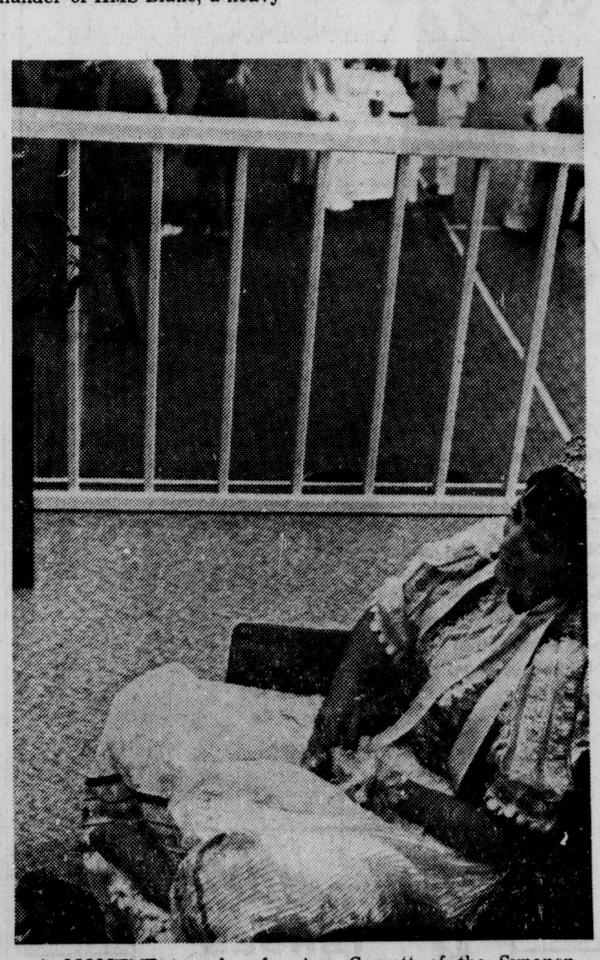
They joined U.S. Navy and Coast Guard officers and Corinthian club members.

Among Tiburon Peninsula residents attending were Messrs. and Mmes. Sidney Chapin, Colby Howe, Richard Burnstein, Ralph Jennings, Harold Monozon and Mr. Warren Vincent.

A CARMEL OUTING is planned this week by a group of residents of the Tamalpais Retirement Residence in Greenbrae. They will leave Thursday morning and spend the afternoon visiting the little shops in Carmel. Dinner that evening will be at the Pine Inn, where the group will also stay overnight and return on Friday.

MARIN VISITORS aboard the Queen Mary at her berth in Long Beach were Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Medeiros of Sausalito. He was a delegate to the National Postmaster's convention held in Anaheim.

ONE OF THE honored couples, Mr. and Mrs. Randall Rumery, married six days, choose from the elaborate, plentiful buffet of turkey, chicken, tongue, ham, pastrami, potato and macaroni salad, fruits and home baked breads, rolls, cookies and assorted pastries. The feast, which began around noon, continued throughout the day.



A MOMENT to relax for Ann Garrett of the Synanon Oakland facility. Married in the eyes of the State of California two and one half months ago, Ann and her husband were one of 22 couples honored in the public celebration at Synanon, symbolizing their union in the eyes of the community.

THE SPOUSE GAP

Many Joke About Marriage, But. . .

(Condensed from the book, "The Spouse Gap")
By ROBERT LEE and MARJORIE CASEBIER

Of the making of jokes about marriage there is no end. For instance, there is the old saw which goes: "Marriage is love, love is blind; therefore, marriage is an institution for the blind." Or there is the quip that "all men are born free, but some get married."

LAUGH AT MARRIAGE though we may, the truth of the matter is that the vast majority aspire to the marital status. Indeed, most single young adults search intensely and sometimes desperately, with computer aid, to find a partner to join in the dance of married life. The so-called eligible bachelor is just that, eligible for marriage.

Thus the mating game — that discovery, pursuit, and capture of the right person with whom one is "to live happily ever after" — continues to pervade our conversations, popular songs, books, magazines, and movies. Even when the beaches are littered with the wreck of broken marriages — family members, friends, the individual's own previous one (or more) — the single person still assumes he can find and must find that single other person with whom he can enter the state of wedded bliss.

The marriage mystique is a discernible force drawing two people together, but in and of itself this mystique provides no assurance that the couple so attracted will make a satisfactory match.

IN STUDYING the discrepancy between expectation and realization in the lives of married couples now in the throes of middlescence, we have discovered three primary fields in the couple's prenuptial relationship where the seeds of future difficulty may have been planted: What was meant by "falling in love," how the courtship game was conducted, and the various expectations and images brought to the marriage itself. As these three subjects are briefly explored, the reader is asked to play a game of "remembering it like it was" — applying any descriptions and discoveries to his own experience. By looking backward squarely at the relationship with the marriage partner and "remembering it like it was," we will be enabled to now "face it like it is" and after that to "imagine what it can yet be."

ASK ANY COUPLE why they joined in matrimony and the overwhelming response is, "We fell in love." It may surprise some to learn that "falling in love" — so esteemed as the prerequisite of marriage today — was probably unknown in earlier periods of man's history.

Most of us will readily admit that our culture is preoccupied with the idea of romantic love, and, if we are honest, we must admit that we too are captive to its strong appeal. In romantic love the couple is always young and beautiful, carefree and happy when alone together, with no worries, no responsibilities, and an unending desire and capacity for making love. What a make-believe world! Romantic love as the sole basis for marriage is at best an illusion and at worst an impossibility.

YET SOMETHING in all of us seems to continue to yearn for romantic love, for visions of Camelot, leaving us disappointed and disenchanted when the dream fades.

A second area to discuss in the middlescent marriage game of remembering it like it was brings us back to our courting days. Intimations of the coming spouse gap often pop up while we are playing the courting game. Being aware of how and why you got involved with your marriage partner may provide some clues on the nature of the gap which subsequently developed.

Meeting the right person with whom to enter the bonds of wedlock is certainly no easy matter. One recognizes the truism behind the comedian's quip, "My father got to marry my mother, but I've got to go out and marry a perfect stranger!" Most of us follow a pattern of random dating in which we gradually build up knowledge of the opposite sex and of ourselves in that relationship. Then a particular person emerges from among the dating partners as more interesting or attractive or attentive than the others (and who experiences me the same way) and we advance to "going steady." This "going steady" may happen only once or it may happen a number of times, but at some point we then move on to become engaged and to marrying.

WHILE WE ARE accustomed to "dating-mating-and--debating," this American system has often been considered shocking in other cultures, though it is now practiced rather widely all over the world. A basic factor in the dating system is the freedom of two people to decide to relate to each other. Perhaps one thing we have not always admitted, however, is that this freedom operates within definite limits. For one thing, research has revealed that the greatest determiner in mate selection is sheer propinquity, which is to say, where you happen to live determines whom you meet.

But it is also true that this "freedom" by which we choose a person to date and, eventually, to marry is usually heavily cloaked in the kind of romantic aura we mentioned previously. These emotional feelings are interpreted as love, but it is more likely they are strong feelings of sexual desire, or fear of loneliness, or hunger for approval. People in love have often described the emotion they felt as ecstasy — which actually means a state of being in which the person is beside himself and beyond all reason and self-control. Hence they claim to be "madly in love." Such absorbing and overwhelming feelings of madness can hardly be deemed a proper state from which responsible freedom can be exercised!

With this general situation in mind let us look at some particular aspects of the "courtship routine" where difficulties may occur.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

He Should Have A Belt, Then Tell His Wife What He Thinks

DEAR HELEN:

My new wife left me once because she didn't like my drinking. I'm not a heavy drinker, but liquor makes me outspoken. I promised to shape up and she came home. Everything was going fine until this weekend, after she'd been back three days.

First she wrecked the car ($500 bill). I didn't get mad. Friday night she went to a dinner party and left me home. (I burned my leftovers.) Later I heard I was invited too, but she hadn't told me.

Saturday, she went shopping, charged a bunch of stuff I can't afford, left the house for me to clean, and gave me a TV dinner. When I acted loving, she said "I'm too tired." Still no drink, no temper. (On my part.)

Sunday we went to a party given by her family. I got a new suit, wanting to make a good impression, but my wife didn't even notice it. When we got there she didn't introduce me around. She just started dancing with former boy friends, and there I sat like a lump. I cut in on her once, kissed her on the ear, and she said, "Oh, Harry, don't act dumb."

When I saw her going out in the garden with this big college-type bruiser, I took my first drink. Well, I ended up insulting my mother-in-law.

Now my wife has left me again. This time she swears she won't forgive me. She's beautiful and I love her.

Please tell he how I can get her back. — HARRY.

DEAR HARRY:

Don't try! Your wife will never grow up so long as you take the blame for her faults.

If liquor makes you outspoken, I'd suggest you gulp a good belt and tell her exactly how spoiled and selfish she is. Then: let her beg you back — on your terms, or not at all.

And remember: Time dulls beauty, but it often sharpens a mean disposition. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

My family is staunchly patriarchal, religious and moralistic. Haim's are also, but of another faith. We were drawn together as friends in grade school because we were both immigrants to the U.S. We continued to be friends through high school and college. Such wonderful friends — who can really communicate!

Now we are in mid 20s, both having attained our master's degrees and being settled in excellent careers. With so much intelligence, why then can we not solve our problem? Are we still immature, frightened children?

We are in love. We've known this for almost 10 years. Yet Haim has never held my hand. Our rigid upbringing stands between us like a sword. We are of different, and highly conflicting religions.

In every other area, we feel we are the perfect match. We understand and respect each other, and our love grows so strong that we know we must either part or marry. But our heritage — the unquestioning obedience of child to father with which we were brought up — makes us wonder whether we could ever "comprmise" on religion, our second "father."

When I tell you, Helen that I was never allowed to date in my teens, or even go out unless accompanied by an adult member of my family, and that my dress was "old-country" modest until I started buying my own clothes, you may realize that our European indoctrination is not easily put aside, even when our American education shows us there are other ways.

How can we resolve our conflict? — TWO FRIENDS

DEAR FRIENDS:

By marriage!

At the risk of offending some who believe religious differences are irreconcilable, I say that people who love each other can always come to a workable compromise (even though their parents may not agree).

For me, which route you take to the Great Hereafter isn't nearly so important as how you navigate the here and now. — H.

How To Keep Your Child Crash-Safe

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — A group of doctors known as Physicians for Automotive Safety has come to the resuce of parents seeking advice on ways to insure the safety of young children in automobiles.

The doctors have issued a folder entitled "Stop Risking Your Child's Life."

They point out that highway accidents are the leading cause of death for all ages from 1 to 33 and that approximately 1,000 children under the age of 4 are killed in cars every year.

MANY OF these deaths might have been avoided if the victims had been properly "packaged" against the risk of injury. Yet most parents continue to allow youngsters to move around inside the car without restraint.

Because of their small size, they do not often fit properly into the adult-size seat and shoulder belts. For full protection, they need special protective devices.

Even a mother's lap is not safe. In a collision, the child could be crushed between the adult and the vehicle interior. Even if the adult is wearing a lap and shoulder belt, the child could be wrenched free and thrown against the dashboard or ejected from the car altogether.

Tying a child into the same belt used by an adult could be even more injurious because of the extra pressure possible against the child's abdomen.

MOST CAR seats are also too flimsy for proper protection, according to the doctors. Some add extra hazards that could cause injuries, and few can be secured so they will not be thrust forward in a collision.

Harnesses that are secured by merely looping a strap around the back of the car seat may be no better because the seat back itself may fall forward.

Since April 1 of this year, manufacturers have had to comply with a federal law setting minimum standards for children's car seats. A standard for children's harnesses has also been in force for some tim e. But seats and harnesses not meeting these standards continue to remain on the market.

Given a choice, the doctors would choose harnesses as more effective than car seats. But they list several models of each product that meet their approval.

Included are two marketed by automobile manufacturers, Ford's Tot-Guard and General Motors' Infant Carrier. The Tot-Guard, say the doctors, has performed well in simulated crash tests. It consists of a cushion and plastic shield placed in front of the child and strapped tight with a regular lap belt.

GM'S INFANT Carrier is for children unable to sit up. The child is strapped into the carrier with a harness, and the whole thing is then strapped to the seat with a lap belt. The child faces backward. This device is also said to have performed well in crash tests.

Other car seats listed are the Guardian (Price Products Co.), Auto-Safe (Strolee of California) Bobby-Mac (Bobby Mac Co.) and Protecta-Tot (Hamill Manufacturing Co.). Manufacturers offering effective harnesses include American Safety Equipment Corp., Hankscraft Co., Irvin Industries, Rose Manufacturing Co. and Market Forge Co. Labels should say the device meets United States standards.

Silicone Warning

According to the American Medical Association, the use of liquid silicone injections to enlarge breasts has increased considerably in recent years with the onset of the "topless" fad among waitresses and showgirls. The AMA warns against this "unapproved surgical technique", and cites a report from the U.S. Food and Drug Administration of four deaths, following the procedure. "Massive abscesses necessitating surgical removal of the breast, have also followed such injections," an FDA official states.

ON THE AGENDA

Catholic Women Plan To Discuss Legal Aid To Their Schools

Legal assistance to non-public schools will be the major topic at the Thursday meeting of the Marin County Council of the Archdiocesan Council of Catholic Women, according to Mrs. Marie Limon Kennedy, president.

The meeting will take place at 8 p.m. in St. Raphael's School auditorium in San Rafael.

Guest speaker will be Joseph P. McElligott, director of the Sacramento-based Education Division of the California Cathlolic Conference. McElligott will deal primarily with legislative processes affecting nonpublic schools brought about by recent court rulings on state and national levels.

McElligott is responsible for coordination of federally funded and state administered educational programs and new experimental projects with California's nine diocesan school systems, comprising 780 schools. He is currently chairman of the Educational Research Commission of California.

A native San Franciscan, McElligott received his M.A. degree in school administration and B.A. in education from San Francisco State College.

AN AFTERNOON luncheon and fashion show will be held Thursday at 11:30 a.m. at the home of Dr. Hulda E. Thelander in Tiburon to benefit the Mothers' Milk Bank of the Bay Area.

An outdoor luncheon and informal boutique will be a part of the activities.

Each year babies throughout the Bay Area in need of mothers' milk receive it from the Milk Bank, a volunteer operation. Funds raised will help defray costs of running the bank. Dr. Thelander, Marin and San Francisco pediatrician, is a founder of the 23-year-old bank and now serves as an advisor. She is former chief of staff of Children's Hospital in San Francisco.

Models will be Mmes. M. N. Berry of Ross, William Gaffney of Tiburon and John Mueller of Tiburon. Mmes. Muller and David Hudson of San Rafael are chairmen for the day. Reservations chairman is Mrs. Lawrence Billwiller, 147 Graystone Terrace, San Francisco.

THE VILLAGE Salvage Shop in Tiburon will hold its annual fashion show and boutique on Thursday from 9:30 a.m. to noon. Its theme, "S.O.S: Save Our Shop!," appeals for funds to relocate it. Nearly-new clothes and household items will be sold.

Models will be Mmes. Roderick McKenzie, William King, Thomas Crawford, James Wilson and Rex Jones, all of St. Stephen's Guild; Mmes. John Loiacono, George Gnoss, Knowles Hall, Michael Linwood, John Marr and James Kreidle, all of Reed Union School District; Mmes. Charles Robertson, Kenneth Hirsch, Gaylord Vasconcellos, R. E. Baker and Gordon Rice, all of St. Hilary's Church; Mmes. Gerry Carlson, Martin Williams, James W. Gwin, James Leonard and Paul Steward, all of Westminster Presbyterian Church.

JOSEPH P. MC ELLIGOTT
San Rafael speaker

Committee members are Mmes. Marguerite Pruett, G. R. Jones, Steve Manning, John Edgar, James Ballard, Walter Crain, John Fulton, Peter Watson, Al Aramburu, Charles McGranaghan, Victor Avilla and Joseph Ramblas and Miss Virginia Simpson.

LAUREL REYNOLDS of Berkeley, conservationist, noted photographer and film maker, will present her film "World at Your Door" for the Novato Garden Club at noon tomorrow at the Community House in Novato.

A luncheon will precede the program, with Mrs. Frank Baccaglio and Mrs. Sam Marzell as chairmen.

Pride Is Tops In Country Music

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Charley Pride, country music's only major black singer, captured the industry's top awards Sunday night — entertainer of the year and male vocalist of the year.

For Pride who grew up in Mississippi cotton fields listening to the Grand Ole Opry on an old radio, the fifth annual country Music Association awards ended a long series of disappointments.

Often he had been nominated but never honored. The packed house at the Grand Ole Opry House gave him a standing ovation when he appeared and sang "Kiss An Angel Good Morning."

"Everyone told me it was possible," said Pride, who lives in Dallas, Tex., "When you are even nominated, I feel like you are a winner."

Pride almost didn't become a country singer, choosing professional baseball instead. But when the New York Mets told him he was too old, he traded his bat for a guitar.

Lynn Anderson, the pretty blonde whose hit "Rose Garden" made both country and popular music charts, won the honor as female vocalist of the year in a nationally televised program hosted by Tennessee Ernie Ford.

Art Satherly, the Englishman who discovered such stars as Gene Autry, Bob Wills and Roy Acuff, was inducted into the country music hall of fame from a field of five nominees.

Sammi Smith, who recorded Krish Kristofferson's "Help Me Make It Through the Night," wonbest single record of the year.

Ray Price was awarded the honor for his album of the year, "I Won't Mention It Again."

In other categories, "Easy Living," written and sung by Freddie Hart, won song of the year; the Osborne Brothers were the vocal group of the year; Porter Wagoner and Dolly Parton were the vocal duo of the year; Danny Davis and the Nashville Brass won the instrumental group of the year and Jerry Reed was named the instrumentalist of the year for his guitar playing.

For the past several years, the awards have been dominated by the winner of entertainer of the year honor: Glen Campbell, 1968, Johnny Cash, 1969 and Merle Haggard, 1970.

However, this year Pride was the only nominee receiving more than one award.

"I'm shaking again. I don't talk too well. But I'm just happy," Pride said when he walked up to receive country music's greatest honor.

A Ranchero Setting For 'Twelfth Night'

Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night," staged in an early California setting will open Nov. 5 at the College of Marin's fine arts theater, the campus drama department has announced.

It will be directed by instructor James C. Dunn, who successfully transposed the Bard's "Taming of the Shrew" into a Wild West comedy, and will attempt to work the same magic with "Twelfth Night."

The love-sick Duke Orsino, played by Reynold Acevedo of Mill Valley, will be casted as a Spanish Don in the days of land-grant Spanish Rancheros.

His court, customed in the Hollywood-created image of the era, will be a collection of Caballeros, mantilla-clad ladies and serenading mariachis.

The cast, selected from the college's drama department, also includes: Barry Bauman of San Anselmo as Curio; Bette Besuner of Petaluma as Maria, Joel Blum of San Anselmo as Sebastian, John Chapot of Fairfax as Valentino, William Childs of Inverness as Fabian, Pamela Contos of Belvedere as Olivia.

Adrienne Farrel of Greenbrae, Laurie Nichols of Mill Valley, Irene Ferrari of Novato and Kathy Rainey of Ross as ladies to Olivia; Shelly Lipkin of San Rafael as Seste, J.W. Harper of Fairfax as Sirtoby Belch, Alan Kernan of Kentfield as Sir Andrew Aguecheek, Jack Livingston of San Rafael as the sea captain, Robin Williams of Tiburon as Malvolio, Ann Long of Mill Valley as Viola, Daniel Long of Mill Valley, Charles Conein of Fairfax and Tom Spilsbury of Mill Valley as officers and Mark DeGroft and Elwood Markham of Mill Valley as musicians.

Tickets and reservations will be available at the college box office Oct. 26.

Dancers To Perform At Auditorium

San Francisco's 40-member Russian Dance Ensemble will perform in the new Veterans Memorial Building at the Civic Center at 3 p.m. next Sunday.

The troupe, directed by choreographer Vladimir Perfiloff, will perform dances of Russia, the Balkans, Romania and the Ukraine.

Baritone Ivan Assur and tenor Vladimir Martynenko will sing.

Boris Vertoogin, president of the Russian Center in San Francisco and owner of the Russian Renaissance Restaurant, said that the Russian Dance Ensemble is a nonprofit youth organization established "for the purpose of preservation and introduction of folk dancing among the American youth as a healthy and clean form of physical activity."

The only source of income for the organization is an annual concert tour of Bay Area cities, Vertoogin said.

Tickets for the performance are now on sale at the Memorial Box Office at the Civic Center.

British Soldier Dies Of Gunshot Wounds

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—British army Pvt. Roger Wilkins died in a Belfast hospital today, two weeks after being shot in the head by gunmen in Londonderry, an army spokesman said.

The death of Wilkins, 32, a father of five, brought to 25 the number of soldiers killed in the British province in 1971. In all, 87 persons have died in this year's bloodshed.

Barbershop Singers To Harmonize

The Marin Barbershoppers' 18th annual show will fill Angelico Hall of San Rafael's Dominican College with close harmony Saturday, beginning at 8 p.m.

The organization — Marin's chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America — will dedicate the program to its director, Ned Hardin, music instructor at Balboa High School in San Francisco, who is recovering from a heart attack.

The 400 chapters of the SPEBSQA support the Institute of Logopedics in Wichita, Kan., for children with severe defects, with proceeds from their programs.

Featured Saturday, besides the Marin Barbershop Chorus, will be three local quartets, the Golden Gaters, the Big Time Operators, and the Bay Rums, plus two out-of-county quartets, the Fancy Dans and the Outer Limits.

Members of the Golden Gaters are John Ahlers, Howard Henry, Ron Murray, and Jack Dale. The Bay Rums are Stan Elkjer, Drew Fossgren, Bob Hibbs, and Al Franham. The Big Time Operators are Ken Moran, Frank C. Sutliffe, Maury Carlson, and the chapter president, Tom Knight.

The Outer Limits is a female quartet recently returned from entertaining U. S. troops in Vietnam. Members are Rosalie Kelly, Phyllis Sagen, Jackie Gleed, and Barbara Bianchi. The Fancy Dans, Far Western District champions in SPEBSQSA competition, are Lloyd Oksen, Bob Browne, Clark Daniel, and Jim Purcell.

Japan Militarism Charge Held False

TOKYO (UPI)—Japan's top defense official said today that charges of Japan's return to militarism were unfounded and that his country's defense policy ruled out any overseas military commitments, including a United Nations peacekeeping mission.

Naomi Nishimura, director general of the self-defense forces, told foreign newsmen that Japan's primary means of protecting its interests were through economic sanctions, not the use of military force.

Jackson Criticized In GOP Newsletter

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Republican National Committee, in its weekly newsletter, says Sen. Henry M. Jackson, DWash., has made a "sudden swing leftward on the Vietnam War" in an effort to improve his presidential prospects.

But the GOP committee said Jackson has lost "the goodwill of millions of Republicans" as well as that of moderate Democrats by trying to please "the ultraliberals who now dominate his party." Moreover, the newsletter said "there is no indication that Jackson's waffling on Vietnam has helped him in the country and it is possible it will hurt his chances" in Florida's primary election in March.

Catholics Grapple With Thorny Celibacy Issue

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Archbishop Joachym Ndayen summed up the priest problem —and its solution —for many Roman Catholic churchmen.

"Let us ordain married men now," said the archbishop from the Central African Republic. "Otherwise, within 10 years I will have to go back to planting onions."

Ndayen was voicing a fear that the priesthood might dry up and the Catholic church itself wither.

Many of his fellow 209 delegates at the Third International Synod of Bishops agreed today, as they resumed work on the thorny question of the priesthood, that an end to the celibacy law might ease the strain caused by sharp drops in the priestly population.

Other bishops and cardinals did not feel the church should end a 700-year-old law forbidding married men becoming priests.

About 60 more cardinals and bishops announced their intention Saturday to speak on the subject, now in its 10th day of debate, and Vatican sources said many of them would make the problem of the diminishing priesthood the main point of their remarks.

Philippines Whipped By Tropical Storm

MANILA (UPI) — Tropical storm Faye whipped across the northern provinces of the Philippines' major island of Luzon Sunday and early today, leaving death and widespread flooding in its wake.

Police and provincial authorities reported that at least 11 people died from drowning and landslides.

COLUMBUS DAY RITUAL

J. Cervetto, San Rafael, Discovers America Again

By MARY LEYDECKER

Today was once more the big day of the year for Joseph Cervetto of San Rafael.

For the 14th year, he donned his Renaissance velvets and plumed bonnet and set forth from Marin to discover the New World in San Francisco's Aquatic Park.

Well, not exactly; that's how it used to be, but racial sensitivities and the new militance have somewhat altered the script for the pageant in which the 62-year-old maintenance company entrepreneur has been the perennial star.

He now lands in Spain celebrating his triumphant return from the Americas.

Outside of a few problems with Indians, who have refused to answer telephone calls or letters of invitation to participate in today's festivities, the cheerful Cervetto has been looking forward to his annual portrayal of the role of his hero.

At his San Rafael canalside home the other day, Cervetto donned his new costume made for him last year in Italy according to specifications of the mayor of Genoa.

With his plumed hat, long-haired wig, cape, elaborate pantaloons, tights and buckled shoes, Cervetto became Columbus.

By his side was his sword (made in Toledo, Spain, "just like Columbus") as he sat regally in a chair on his patio overlooking the canal where his yacht, the Santa Maria, is berthed.

Cervetto, who came to the United States from Genoa (also the home town of Columbus), was president of the annual Columbus Day celebration in San Francisco when he took over the role in 1957.

He found in his new role that "people kept asking me questions," such as about the length of the first voyage (68 days, Cervetto said) and how Columbus happned to land in Central America. It was the search for answers that made him a student of Columbus.

"That Colombo — he a very smart fella," Cervetto said, answering his own question. "He had the genius to start from Africa and he knew he would hit China if he did."

Actually, of course, Columbus landed in San Salvador, an island that Cervetto has visited once and plans to return to this year.

Cervetto has traveled the world in his search to find out "what did he see" as he retraces Columbus's steps. His memories are a combination of his trips and his avid reading of everything he can learn about his hero.

Cervetto recounted numerous vignettes about Columbus, but one of his favorites was about how the explorer outwitted some Indians on Jamaica.

"The poor fella thought he was finished," Cervetto said, but because Columbus knew an eclipse was coming, he threatened the Indians with taking away their moon if they didn't build him a boat so he could leave the island after his own ship was smashed in a storm.

"Those guys gave him anything he wanted after the eclipse came," Cervetto said.

Cervetto said that three times this year he had called the chief of the Indians who formerly participated in the annual celebration, but that his calls went unanswered. Then a letter was written, but still there was no answer.

The Indians, apparently tired of being discovered by white men, also boycotted last year's festival but Cervetto is unconcerned.

"We have the pageant, like every year, only we call it landing in Spain," he said.

In fact, Cervetto said, portraying Columbus's triumphant return to Spain is more appropriate for his elegant new costume, which is a detailed copy of the "suit Colombo wore when he went to see Isabella."

Aboard ship, Columbus wore a simple tunic, Cervetto added.

Why does he spend so much time on Columbus Day?

"If we don't keep it alive, who's going to do it?" he answered.

"We (the Italian community) fought like hell for this holiday," he added.

His 16-year-old son Joseph, a student at Marin Catholic High School, is following his father's love for Columbus and has played a role in the pageant for many years.

Recently he took his father's place when Cervetto was busy elsewhere.

"He calls himself 'Diego, the son of Columbus,'" Cervetto's wife, Pamela, said.

As for his own discovery of America, Cervetto started in San Francisco as a janitor and built up a firm in which he now has "a few hundred men working."

Looking around at his pleasant home, garden and boat, Cervetto quickly said, "I work hard, though. I've cleaned a lot of toilets and washed a lot of windows."

As he pointed out Columbus's route on an old map in his living room, his wife (who is not Italian) said with a slight smile, "I just heard on the radio they've renamed it 'Leif Erikson Day.'"

"Oh my God," Cervetto said.

Board To Eye Agency Merger

The Novato Sanitary District Board will discuss a proposed consolidation of county water and sewerage agencies in an adjourned meeting at 6 p.m. today in the north Marin County Water District office.

Ordinance On Zoning Before Panel

The Fairfax City Council will be asked tomorrow night to set a public hearing on a proposed zoning ordinance.

The hearing is being requested by a committee to Preserve Land and Nature (PLAN) which was organized to preserve Marin Town and Country Club in Fairfax for recreation and prevent its development for apartment housing.

PLAN's letter requesting a hearing be set sometime next month makes no mention of the town and country club, but does say the group is primarily interested in a section of the proposed ordinance dealing with establishment of a commercial-recreational zone.

The proposed ordinance has been approved by the city's planning commission and is awaiting action by the city council.

According to the council's agenda, there will be no official discussion tomorrow when the council meets at 8 p.m. on the city's effort to fire Police Chief James R. Orr.

Orr's attorney, Leonard Shaw said today he has requested a hearing on the firing by the city's board of review, but no date has been set.

4 Youths Cited In Burglary Of Hub Log Cabin

Four youths have been cited to juvenile authorities on suspicion of burglarizing the American Legion Log Cabin in San Anselmo, police said today.

Officers said two youths, James Robert Zook, 17, of Ukiah and Glen Charles McClure, 16, of 1030 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, San Anselmo, were cited yesterday following investigation of the Wednesday night burglary.

Cited today were Guy D'Amico, 16, of 54 Oakland Avenue and Richard E. MacCarthy, 15, of 22 Grove Hill, San Anselmo, officers said.

According to officers, two of the youths were stopped for reckless driving yesterday near the legion cabin and a quantity of beer and liquor believed stolen from the meeting hall was discovered in the auto.

Police said the stolen items included three cases of beer, 17 bottles of liquor and a quantity of cigarettes.

Two Swept To Death As Boat Capsizes

Two Sacramento area men drowned Saturday when their boat capsized in the ocean off of Point Reyes Peninsula.

Marin County Sheriff's deputies identified the men as Donald Kroma, 48, of Carmichael, and William P. Hood, 49, of Sacramento.

They were among a group of eight Sacramento men who had taken two 16-foot outboards out of Lawson's Landing, Dillon Beach, for a day of fishing.

When the water got too rough, survivors told deputies, both boats headed back toward shore. A large wave hit them from the rear, overturning a boat owned by Lonnie E. Massey, 56, of Fair Oaks, and throwing Massey, Kroma, Hood and Charles E. Williams, 47, of Orangevale, overboard.

The second boat, could not get near the victims because of rough surf, but radioed for help.

A boat operated by William Volger and Paul DeVall of Lawson's Landing went out and picked up Massey and Williams and the bodies of Kroma and Hood.

Massey and Williams were held overnight for observation at Hillcrest Hospital in Petaluma and released yesterday.

Funerals were pending today for Kroma and Hood at Mount Vernon Memorial Park in Sacramento.

PG&E answers most-asked questions about nuclear power.

To serve increasing energy needs in Northern and Central California, we must build new electric generating plants. Nuclear plants are the best answer and the most environmentally acceptable. Nuclear fuel is clean, safe, readily available, economical and an ideal source of controlled heat in power plants. Some people have questions about this relatively new energy source. Here, experts answer the most frequent queries.

Is it safe to live next door to a nuclear power plant?

Yes. Nuclear plants are constructed and designed with multiple back-up safety systems to prevent release of radioactivity. Conditions required for an atomic explosion are not present in a nuclear power plant. The safety record of the nuclear power industry is unparalleled. Not one person has suffered radiation injury in the 14 years of U.S. utility operating experience. Today there are 22 nuclear units in operation in the U.S., 55 under construction and 44 planned.

What is the radiation exposure to a person living near a nuclear power plant?

Radiation from a typical modern nuclear plant would be about 5 millirem per year or less. A person living 24 hours a day next door to a typical modern nuclear plant continuously for 10 years would be exposed to about the amount of radiation he would receive from one chest x-ray. Radiation at the plant boundary would add only 1/25 to the radiation people receive annually from natural sources at sea level, and even a smaller fraction at higher elevations because natural background radiation increases at upper altitudes. However, natural radioactivity in any city ranges in an unpredictable manner and commonly causes larger variations in radiation levels than a nuclear power plant would.

Are radiation protection standards conservative and safe?

Yes. On January 15, 1971 the National Council on Radiation Protection and Measurements, made up of 65 eminent U.S. radiation experts, reaffirmed that the existing 500 millirem per year limit on radiation from a plant is well within requirements for public safety. The Atomic Energy Commission has found that improvements in technology and experience with nuclear power plants make it practicable to achieve limits far below that already conservative standard and on June 7, 1971 proposed a plant radiation criterion of 5 millirem annually —a 100-fold reduction.

Is a nuclear power plant safe in an earthquake?

Yes. We employ eminently qualified geological and seismological consultants to study all aspects of local and regional geology and seismology to determine the earthquake potential at a proposed plant site. Then, the plant is designed to assure that it will withstand the most severe earthquake conditions. This procedure results in a facility many times stronger than required by earthquake building codes.

How do you dispose of radioactive waste from nuclear plants?

All radioactive by-products are controlled under strict AEC regulation. Small amounts of radioactive gases and liquids are released under highly controlled conditions, resulting in less than 5 millirem per year possible exposure to an individual living 24 hours a day next door to the plant. Solid wastes are sealed in containers and sent to AEC-licensed sites for long-term storage. Radioactive material remaining within the spent fuel is sent to reprocessing plants where the "nuclear ashes" are removed before ultimate storage in solid form underground at government supervised sites.

How does the warmed water from a nuclear power plant affect marine life?

Plants fueled by natural gas or oil need cooling water to condense the steam from the turbine. So do nuclear plants. This water never enters the nuclear reactor. From the condenser it is returned to the ocean, bay or river after being warmed about 18°F. (In parts of San Francisco, Morro and similar bays, there are natural daily water temperature variations of more than 20°F.) The slightly warmed water from power stations causes warm water plants and animals to increase in number over cold water types. However, studies over the past 20 years show that this effect is generally confined to within 500 feet of the outlet.

What about regulation of nuclear power plants?

No activity of industry or government is subjected to more regulation or scrutiny than the nuclear industry. More than 30 different government agencies have been involved in the planning of our Diablo plant.

If you have other questions, we'll appreciate the opportunity to answer them for you. Write Nuclear Information, PG&E, 77 Beale Street, San Francisco, California 94106. PG and E

News In Old Files Is History Today

"Today's news is tomorrow's history."

Also, yesterday's news is today's history, and history repeats itself.

The truth of these statements is easily affirmed by thumbing through a few old newspaper files. It is appropriate to do so today — the opening day of National Newspaper Week.

TAKE A BIT of old San Rafael history, for instance.

The first two meetings of the San Rafael town board following incorporation, on April 9 and 10, 1874, were duly recorded in that week's issue of the Marin Journal. After organizing on April 9, the newspaper related, the board heard from "the committee on petitions," which "reported favorably on petition for the prevention of animals running at large."

The board met again the following night and adopted San Rafael's Ordinance No. 1, "relating to animals roving in the streets."

"On and after the 20th day of April, 1874," it decreed, "it shall be unlawful for any person to permit or suffer any horse, mare, colt, cow, calf, bull, ox, mule, ass, sheep, goat, hog or pig to run at large in the public streets." Violation was made a misdemeanor, with a $5 fine for each offense.

THINGS HAVEN'T CHANGED so much in 97 years. Complaints about animals running loose now mostly concern dogs, but the San Rafael City Council had a long fight that went through the courts in recent years over a citizen's keeping horses in his back yard.

The 1874 Marin Journal files yield other items that have a contemporary flavor also.

For instance, on June 6 of that year San Rafael residents approved the town's first bond issue — for $10,000 for the construction of sanitary sewers.

The amount was far different, but the need was the same and so was the public response when the city's voters in June of last year approved a $1,105,000 sewer bond issue.

EVEN MASS TRANSIT was a current news subject in the first year of San Rafael's incorporation. The gasoline motor-driven vehicle was still far in the future (the town's Ordinance No. 3, adopted April 22, 1874, set up license fees for various categories of business, among them being "15 per wagon for carrying passengers"), but railroad promotions were in the air throughout the nation in 1874, and Marin was no exception. The biggest one here, as recorded in the pages of those old Marin Journals, was organization of the Sonoma and Marin Railway, the stock for which was actively promoted.

Yesterday's news is today's history. And history repeats itself. It's all there in the newspapers.

Marin Raccoons' Union

Marin's raccoons may not be college material, but we have been solemnly assured that the Inverness branch of the family has a union. When one finds an interesting garbage can which he cannot open, he calls in a work gang. Working together, they can usually do the job.

We wonder, do they pay dues? Perhaps in tongue-polished sardine tins. Or could it be that one garbage can lid equals 10 sardine cans?

Marks May Replace Marler As Republicans' Sacrifice

Gerrymander is a polite word for what legislators do when they reapportion districts, and this year it's really a euphemism.

But despite the abortion delivered after 10 months by Senate Democrats, we are confident that Sacramento politicians will come up finally with districts even worse than those they unveiled last week. (The Democrats' plan would give Marin four senators, split 20 of its governing districts, and make the county the small tail on three big dog districts.)

Heavy backstage action now centers about Republican Sen. Fred W. Marler Jr. of Redding, Shasta County. Marler was selected by the Democrats as the sacrifice when one Northern California district had to be transplanted to compensate for Southern California's population growth.

But Marler is working his fellow Republicans to come up with a new pigeon, and it will have to be another Republican to appeal to the Democrats. Signs point to one alternate — Sen. Milton Marks of San Francisco.

Virtually no other Republican votes more predictably with the Democrats, hardly an asset with Republicans casting about for someone to replace Marler as the sacrifice.

Marler has a lot going for him — seniority, position as minority floor leader, ability as an effective vote getter, and close relations with the governor — who could veto the Democrats' plan.

MARIN EVEN MAY be lucky enough to end up with only two or three senators instead of four.

To appreciate the reapportionment mess, look at this. Marler could move across town in time this year to run next year against Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, then continue to represent his old Second District if he lost to Collier. It would make no difference that Marler would continue living in Shasta County while representing a district in Los Angeles, which is where the Democrats transplanted his old district.

Then Marler could move back across town to the Fourth District of Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, and run against Behr in 1974 — all the time remaining a senator.

As for Behr, he would be in a bad way if he had to face Marler in a Republican primary election.

TIBURON CITY Councilman Branwell Fanning is in the lucky position of being able to vote to turn down plans for property his city council has voted to condemn. This gives him power to help depreciate its value.

His lucky chance will come when he votes later this month as a member of the Bay Conservation and Development Commission on an apartment project planned for Strawberry Cove. Some would call it a conflict of interest, but he did not indicate any concern when he sat as a commissioner last week when the plans were heard.

The city council, incidentally, will have to adjudicate more than its purchase price because the cove property is outside the city. The council also will have to prove that the purchase would be in the greatest public good and the least private injury.

The council conceived of the purhcase as a political ploy in its annexation of Strawberry, but now wants the parcel even if the annexation fails. It reminds us of a fisherman diving into the water to eat his own bait.

Make Dog Owners Prove Responsibility

Much has been written about the "dog problem" in Marin County and elsewhere, the problem being loose dogs, soiling of lawns and sidewalks, etc. It strikes me that the licencing policy is all backwards. Instead of licencing dogs, would it not make more sense to licence owners and require that ownership of a dog be contingent upon certain conditions? For example, a citizen in order to be a licenced dog owner should be made to prove that he has sufficient space, fences, etc., to provide for the welfare of the dog and to prevent the dog from being a nuisance to others. People who truly love dogs (and I count myself as one) would not subject them to the hazards of traffic, theft and other dangers; and a good neighbor and citizen should not object to the responsibility of keeping the dog quiet at night, cleaning up after him and otherwise preventing him from infringing on the safety and comfort of others.

Resident Finds Sad State In Fairfax

It is indeed a sad state of affairs, when the Fairfax City Council, against the wishes of most of the citizens, hires a city administrator from the metropolitan Los Angeles area to administer to a sleepy village type town like Fairfax.

What's next? . . . Parking meters? . . . Tow-away trucks?

The present city council should hide their heads in shame, they are sure as hell creating a very bad image for all small town city councils.

Secret closed hearings . . . undisclosed testimony, vague and mysterious charges against a police chief with 20 years of experience in law enforcement.

So much baloney it's really pathetic. Chief Jim Orr has created in Fairfax, a fine, efficient department, a credit to any community.

It is indeed hard to believe that they would try to ruin a man's long career in law enforcement when good cops are so hard to find these days.

I doubt whether we have heard the last of this indiscretion by our super-secret city fathers.

Civic Center Drink Issue Not Dead

It has been brought to my attention that the Marin County supervisors have again affirmed their commitment to acquire a license for serving alcoholic beverages in the cafeteria of our county administrative complex. To my knowledge, the only information which has been provided the citizens of Marin County concerning our supervisorial intent, was: (1) a couple of signs (standard form) at the entrances of the Civic Center buildings, and at one of the cafeteria entrances, (2) a notice in the legal section of the Independent-Journal, and (3) one article attributing some evaluative statements to the district director of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Department, located in Santa Rosa.

It is my contention that this is an inadequate exposure of an important issue before Marin County residents. In consequence, I should like to solicit responses by interested citizens willing to evaluate objectively this unprecedented action by the majority of the Marin County supervisors.

It is my understanding that the only persons allowed a hearing are those who have protested, according to the standard procedures suggested by the Alcoholic Beverage Control. I was informed that, if the licensing were approved, there would be a protestants' hearing; or if the license were denied, then the applicants (Marin County supervisors) would have a similar alternative. By this affirmation of intent, it would appear there will be a request for public hearing, regardless of the action by the Alcoholic Beverage Control. Thus, my solicitation for interested citizens support.

Judicial Tyranny Threatens Schools

Children and parents in Marin County are in danger. Not long ago a proposal was made that the schools of Marin County ought to be integrated with those of the City of San Francisco. A judge in Washington, D.C., expressed regret that he did not have the power to order the integration of District of Columbia schools with those of nearby Maryland and Virginia. Now a judge in Detroit has declared that he has the power to order the integration of schools in that city with the schools of the surrounding suburbs.

Up to now, so far as I know, integration has been ordered within one district. The Detroit judge has indicated that he intends to exercise the authority which he asserts he has, and order integration of city schools and suburbs, several school districts. You may be sure that as soon as that order has been issued, a similar order will be sought for Marin County and the City of San Francisco. Children from Kentfield will be transported by bus to schools in the Fillmore district.

Judicial tyranny is an insidious thing. It grows as the judges become more and more corrupted by their unrestrained power. A non-lawyer thinks that laws are written in constitutions and statute books, but lawyers constantly cite "case law," decisions of judges, outside constitutions, frequently contrary to the customary meanings of words in statute law, as written there by legislatures. Advocates of this tyranny now cite the acquiescence of parents in the busing of their children. Probably nine-tenths of the people in Russia acquiesce in the tyranny under which they must live. Does that make it right?

If we are to retain the few liberties we have left, and, hopefully, to recover some of those we have lost, we must constantly protest against tyranny and seek ways to overcome this tyrannical power.

Thieu Election Not All Bad; Shows People Want To Vote

WASHINGTON — The instant reaction of some American commentators to the Vietnamese voting gives an unbalanced picture. What happened needs to be assessed from two standpoints:

From the standpoint of internal Vietnamese democracy which it seriously deformed.

From the standpoint of the ability of South Vietnam to defend itself and the prospect of faster U.S. withdrawal. Both are enhanced.

I would not minimize one bit the inadequacy and unfairness of the uncontested presidential election. But there are significant gains and we need to keep the setback and the gains in reasonable perspective.

The gains are these:

THE MASSIVE TURNOUT of the South Vietnamese voters shows that the people of South Vietnam wanted to use their democratic rights — and did so. Nearly 88 per cent of the electorate went to the polls and that is far higher than in any national election in the United States and higher than in the most politically conscious parliamentary governments of Western Europe.

Whatever their motives for voting — and motives are hardly measurable in the secrecy of the voting booth — the people of South Vietnam were showing a healthy respect for the democratic process even when their political leaders were showing an unhealthy disrespect.

It may well be that this big popular vote, of which President Thieu got 91 per cent because there was no other choice, does not mean any great confidence in Thieu. But if it wasn't a "vote of confidence," it was a "vote of support." And this suggests that the South Vietnamese consciously united behind a stable government capable of finishing the job of defending the country which it was given by the voters four years ago.

THEY COULD HAVE rejected Thieu at the expense of grave uncertainty and possible chaos. They chose stability. They did better than their leaders deserve and in effect they said to Thieu and company: "Now you do better for us."

This consequence of the election is helpful to the United States. Our paramount interest is a viable South Vietnamese government able to assume full responsibility for its country's own defense. Without such a government there will be no prospect of a negotiated peace or an independent South Vietnam. With such a government, Vietnamization can proceed rapidly and the pace of U.S. withdrawal can be speeded. (Evidence: On the day after the election, 3,215 more Americans started home, the third largest troop cutback since withdrawal began.)

THE SHORTCOMINGS of the election are evident. Thieu could certainly have brought about a contested election and his failure to do so served to discredit the democratic process. But he was not exclusively to blame. His strongest potential opponent, Gen. Big Minh, helped to create a no-contest election rather than run the risk of a landslide defeat.

One fact which emerges is that the non-Communist opposition to the Thieu government is weaker and more disorganized than most observers believed it would be. The Wounded War Veterans Association and the Student Activists — both anti-Thieu — were able to mount only small and scattered demonstrations.

I think back to early 1944 when a well-known liberal American columnist launched a crusade to call off the U.S. presidential election on the grounds that it would be perilously divisive in the midst of war — and give F.D.R. a fourth term without any vote at all.

The South Vietnamese have done remarkably well in the midst of war. Their votes said: "We don't necessarily care for Thieu but we care for our country more."

Not One Silly Hat As Women Plan Politics

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

WASHINGTON — Helen Hokinson is dead these 22 years, God bless her, but even if she were still with us she would have felt lost among the 125 women who gathered at one of the local hotels the other morning to talk politics.

In her cartoons, she made stout ladies' garden club meetings, with their silly hats and inane lecture subjects and general air of well-meaning helplessness, into the cliche that most men still think of when a women's conference on any subject is mentioned.

But there was not a hat, not one, at this Democratic Women's Leadership Conference (except, that is, when Congressperson Bella Abzug of New York arrived for lunch afterward). The panel discussion was entitled "Positive Thinking About Running for Office" and that Might have been inane in Miss Hokinson's hey-day, but it becomes more realistic every election day. There was nothing helpless about the women or their conversation. The nearest it got to ruffles and flounces was when Minnette Doderer, a state senator from Iowa, confessed with perhaps a tinge of blush that she raised her campaign funds not only from the local Democratic organization but also importantly from bake sales, rummage sales, style shows and bridge parties.

WHEN MYRLIE EVERS, the widow of the slain black civil rights leader, Medgar Evers, excused herself to catch a plane she explained that she had to go make a speech in Washington state, then one in Montana, then hurry back to Mississippi to help her brother-in-law, Charles, run for governor. "With a schedule like that, you may find that Myrlie Evers is a vice presidential candidate," she said with a winning smile.

I don't think it occurred to a person in the room to laugh at the prospect. She had, after all, already run a respectable race for Congress in California. She was talking to a roomful of women legislators, party chairmen and organizers. One of their sisters, Congressperson Shirley Chisholm of Brooklyn, is thinking seriously about running for President, and in hard truth, Myrlie Evers is twice as pretty as she is. Mrs. Evers would, indeed, look very good on a ticket with Edmund Muskie.

All of this testifies to a new spirit among women politicians and presumably women voters, as contrasted with the ban-the-bra show business of the wilder Women's Lib types. (At this gathering, there was only one young woman who was noticeably without her brassiere, and she looked as if it might have been oversight rather than intention.) Their attitude is no longer that of decorations who willingly play hostess at political cocktails, take dictation, lick envelopes and accept election as the purely honorary vice chairman of every committee. Nor is it that of hysterical, paranoid shrews shrilling for their rights. It is, instead, calm realization that now, 51 years after they got the vote, their rights are in hand, and the thing to do is exercise them.

NOT WITHOUT a little reverse favoritism, if that seems promising. As Mary Anne Krupsak, a New York legislator, commented: "We used to think it was a political liability to be a woman running for office. Now I think it's probably an asset. We have a credibility that men don't. We went through the Eisenhower era and the father image, so now maybe it's time we had a mother image."

The reality is that no one in the room or in either party so far has an image motherly enough to be taken seriously as a presidential possibility. There is only one Golda Meir, and she wasn't there.

But in the coming year, the ones who were there are going to do much more than scream and strip to correct the fact that in 1968, only 13 per cent of the delegates to the Democratic National Convention were women, while in the population at large, 53 per cent are women. For example, a group appointed itself as a continuing caucus to oversee the party's implementation of the convention reforms adopted since 1968 by the national committee.

IT IS A HARDHEADED lot, including India Edwards, who for many conventions was a familiar face on the rostrum as vice chairman of the national committee.

That was in the days of the old politics, and this week no less an institution than India Edwards herself certified in a resolution that the old politics is out. The new politics is in.

By usage, that phrase has meant the extensive employment of computers and television to win elections. In practice, it also is going to mean full employment of a common household gadget that has been around far longer than electronics, or even the Democratic Party.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By MARY LEYDECKER

Youth Solves Transit Problem And Knows What Day It Was

A cheerful long-haired young man who likes to attend the Angela Davis hearings at the Hall of Justice is the catalyst behind a reevaluation of life in general and transportation in particular.

This young man carries with him a tattered piece of cardboard which says "Berk." on one side and "San Rafael" on the other.

"It's his only investment in transportation," a smiling bailiff said.

This remark brought reflections of the subject of investment in transportation — having just paid two repair bills plus buying a new tire and getting a doubled insurance bill for a 1969 Camaro. I began to think the young man might have the right answer.

THESE THOUGHTS were confirmed later in the day by remarks in the courtroom.

The prosecutor, Albert W. Harris Jr., was referring to an event that occurred on Oct. 21, 1970. "I don't know what day of the week that was," he said.

Since the day of the week seemed important, the judge, Richard E. Arnason, asked court attaches for a 1970 calendar but no one had one.

"It was Wednesday, your honor," the long-haired young man called out from the audience.

Soon a reporter, who found a 1970 calendar in her purse, confirmed this.

After court, a member of the attorney general's staff, Eric Collins, asked the young man, "How did you ever know that Oct. 21, 1970 was a Wednesday?"

"It was easy," he replied. "That was my brother-in-law's birthday and also I made an important decision that day."

Collins shook his head in wonder at such a memory, as did the rest of us.

I began to reflect that it was all part of a pattern.

The young man, who was preparing to turn his sign to the "Berk." side in order to get a ride across the bay, does not have his mind cluttered up with insurance bills, teen-age drivers, worn-out tires and all the rest of it.

Maybe if we all sold our cars, we would be able to remember at least what day it is today.

SPEAKING OF LONG-HAIRS, the support being given fired Fairfax Police Chief James Orr by the hip community is a wondrous thing.

Apparently, the reason is not that Orr has been any more loved than any other member of the "fuzz," but when a rumor started that one of the causes for his firing was an alleged "softness on hippies," the long-hairs rushed to his defense.

At the noisy meeting in Fairfax last week, the young people were quieter than the outspoken older types who supported the chief, but they demonstrated their feelings by frequent applause and cries of "right on."

Ice Dig Could Produce Data On Air Pollution

RENO, Nev. (UPI)—A winter in Antarctica digging in the ice and snow may not be everybody's bag.

But for three University of Nevada scientists, it's a long-awaited experience. And the world may learn a little more about air pollution from the data the trio collects this winter.

Two of them, Dr. Joseph Warburton, research professor at the campus Desert Research Institute, and Lawrence Young, a research associate, have already spent one nippy winter season (1969-70) in the South Pole region.

Warburton, Young and Mike Owens, a research assistant, leave for Antarctica in early November to begin three months of gathering core samples of ice and snow at three different sites. First stop for the team is Byrd Station.

In the 1969-70 expedition, Warburton and Young shipped back to Reno about 1,500 pounds, or 250 samples, of Antarctic ice. One piece given to them by another crew of U.S. scientists is said to date back 2,000 years.

The specimens came from various levels of the Antarctic 7,000-foot ice pack. Young said the ice is being tested for silver and iodine content to determine two things: The possible increase of air pollution during the Industrial Revolution in the 1800's, and the effect on ice of cloud seeding by Australia in the early 1950's.

"You see, it snows 6 to 12 inches a year at Byrd Station but the snow never melts," said Young. "So, as we dig deeper into the ice, it represents an older period of time."

By comparing the natural concentration of silver in the ice during different periods of history, the three scientists hope to discover what effect the Industrial Revolution and cloud seeding produced on the ground in the South Pole region.

"There is pollution over Antarctica now," said Warburton. "Dust layers are lying over the continent, and they're not coming from the ice."

The results of research from the first trip will be released about June, 1972, Young said.

The second trek to the South Pole will be something else. Young said this time the men won't be digging so deeply into the icy earth and will be gathering ice from three far-apart areas of the continent instead of only one portion.

"We want to see if there is any variation in the amount of silver and iodine in the ice as you move inland on the continent," said Young.

"We want to see if the high atmospheric winds are dependent upon the geography as you move inward."

Getting around on the ice continent is no problem, said Young. He and Warburton used an airplane, snowmobiles, dog-pulled sleds and even walked to and from work.

School Board Cancels Meeting

The special meeting scheduled for tomorrow by the San Anselmo School Distirct board has been cancelled according to Supt. William K. Lowry.

Board president Franklin C. Latcham said the meeting, which had been scheduled as a follow-up to two prior meetings discussing responsibilities of the board, staff and administration, was eliminated because the board plans to attend Marin County School District meetings on similiar matters.

WASHINGTON REPORT

Democrats Toy With Idea Of No-Contest 'Primary'

By BEJAMIN SHORE

WASHINGTON — If anyone has questions about the role of rich men in politics, some answers are available in California from the potential backers of likely Democratic presidential candidates.

These campaign money-givers and money-raisers see an $8 million to $10 million tab looming for next June's primary election if the expected five or six candidates show up. These are dollars that might be better spent battling Nixon in November, they argue.

So they have come up with the idea of the Democrats putting together a "unity slate" headed by a "favorite son," with Muskie, McGovern, Jackson, Lindsay, Harris, Bayh, Mills, Chisholm and other possible aspirants staying out. These candidates would be assured a percentage of the "unity delegation" votes at the Miami Beach convention, and they would also get a unified Democratic Party (i.e., one spared a divisive primary fight) in California that would help the nominee win this key state in the fall.

THE MONEY MEN have asked Sen. John V. Tunney to head this "unity slate". Tunney modestly says he would be "very reluctant" to do so, but he would consider it if the party leaders agreed on him and if all major presidential candidates agreed to stay out of California.

That second condition alone would seem enough to quiet talk of a Tunney-led "unity slate," for it is hard to imagine any candidate who is still on his feet after early primaries staying out of California with its rich winner-take-all prize of 271 delegate votes.

But the key here is money. If the rich men who give and raise money for Democratic candidates could agree to withhold their dollars from their favorite candidates, then those candidates would have a hard — if not prohibitive — time financing a primary campaign in the state that requires the most money.

Political pros here consider this agreement highly unlikely, just as they consider it even more unlikely that the leading candidates would stay out just because some of their financial backers want to save money.

But it is interesting, nevertheless, to observe the party's leaders toying with an idea that would deny party members a free and open primary.

ONE OF THE ideas put forth would have the "unity delegation" divide up its 271 votes at the convention on the basis of how the various candidates stood in California public-opinion polls on the eve of the primary. Would reform-minded Democrats actually let polls call the shots?

Yet, some of the strongest arguments for a "unity slate" are coming from the new, young leaders of the state's Democratic Party. Many are close allies of Tunney, and they are anxious to enrich his political power in the state.

They are also genuinely concerned about a bitter primary fight that could split the party many ways and render it impotent for the battle against Nixon. Many have been working successfully this past year to rebuild the splintered party, and they would do almost anything to keep it together.

Tunney says the idea of a "unity slate" that would have the effect of denying the party's rank-and-file a voice in the selection of the candidate has to be weighed against the expenditure of millions in a primary that could be won by the candidate who can raise and spend the most money.

THERE ARE THOSE, however, who would say that the answer is not to eliminate open primaries, but to curb campaign spending so all candidates may have an equal chance.

Meanwhile, where does all this leave Sen. Alan Cranston, the state's Democratic senior Senator? It leaves him, by his own words last week, standing behind a January 1971 speech to the California Democratic Central Committee convention in Sacramento, in which he said:

"To deny the Democratic voters of California an open primary, as Ronald Reagan denied the California Republicans a free choice in 1968, would be a self-defeating exercise in the old politics."

Over $6 Million Raised By UBAC

The United Bay Area Crusade has announced it has raised $6,394,224 toward its "fair share goal."

The announcement by campaign chairman Lawrence Hoyt came at the crusade's second campaign report meeting Thursday.

Betsy Chapman, singer-composer from Marin, led the audience in the "UBAC Campaign Song," with lyrics written by her to the theme of the national campaign film, "If You Don't Do It — It Won't Get Done."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Growth Of A Living Organism Is Complex, But Orderly Process

Growth of the living organism is a complex, but orderly process. And the most dramatic changes take place when the developing structure cannot be seen by the naked eye. This explains why the chicken bears no resemblance to the egg or the newborn baby to the human ovum.

The miracle of mammalian growth is that it begins with a tiny fertilized cell. It weighs very little but grows at a rate that varies markedly in different species. The gestation period of man and cattle is approximately the same, yet at birth the human child weighs seven and a half pounds and the calf 77 pounds — 10 times as much. In other mammals, the rate of growth during the entire gestation period may be 100,000 times greater in one than in the other.

BABY MAMMALS also gain more weight per day during the suckling period than they did before birth. The rate of growth depends upon the food supply and the ability of the young to make use of it. Undernourishment is disharmony and some organs are more affected by the deficit than are others.

Each organ of the baby begins to grow at a different time after conception. Growth of the structures also ceases at its own appointed time. Teeth appear at the precise moment the jaw has room for them.

Cell division stops when each organ has reached maximum size. In some parts of the body, cellular activity can start up again. This has been noted when part of the liver has been removed or destroyed by disease.

BONE GROWTH is adapted to the life the animal will lead outside the uterus. The lamb, foal, calf and camel are born with long legs because they are wanderers and may be forced to leave shortly after birth for protection and food.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

'TURNING' TO FAT

Mrs. H.A. writes: How long does it take for food to turn to fat? What I mean is, after eating a good meal, how many hours pass before it turns to fat?

REPLY

Fat cells appear in the blood within an hour after eating this type of food. If it is not burned up immediately as energy, it is stored in the tissues during the ensuing 24 hours.

DISCOMFORT FROM VACCINATION

D. K. writes: Does a child feel sick after getting shots for contagious diseases?

REPLY

Usually not, although some children develop slight fever and have pain at the site of injection. These symptoms are controlled by aspirin.

SCALP SWEATING

Mr. E. D. writes: What causes me to perspire on the forehead and scalp when I eat? P.S.: I'm bald.

REPLY

Food is fuel to the body and in some persons the old furnace gets hot enough to stimulate sweating. Baldness has nothing to do with it except lack of hair makes the beads of perspiration more noticeable.

BOWLEGS

M.N. writes: Our 2-year-old son has been bowlegged since birth. Should anything be done about it now or later?

REPLY

Ask your physician to examine the child's legs to determine if the defect represents true bowleggedness. If so, treatment may be considered at this time. Surprisingly, many toddlers outgrow this condition as their legs grow stronger.

CHEMICAL INSANITY

Miss P. R. writes: Is schizophrenia a chemical disease?

REPLY

We do not know the cause of this form of insanity, but a biochemical origin has been implicated. The symptoms can be reproduced with certain drugs. Transient psychoses have been induced with LSD (lysergic acid diethylamide) and mescaline. Other chemicals being studied include the amino acids and epinephrine.

Protests On Book Due At Meeting

The San Rafael Board of Education will hear protests at its meeting tomorrow about the use of a book described as a "revolution kit" at San Rafael High School as well as alleged racial problems at the school.

The board will meet at 7:30 p.m. at the district office, Third and E streets, San Rafael.

The book entitled "The Movement Toward a New America" has been passed out to students in American government classes taught by Virginia Franklin, but she said Friday that the book has not been used in the classroom yet.

The board will also look into alleged racial problems at the high school, stemming from fights last Monday involving black and white youths over the theft of a pair of shoes and the collection of alleged debt.

Canal Zone Tense During Panama Leader's Speech

PANAMA CITY (UPI)—Panamanian national guardsmen and U.S. troops lined the Canal Zone boundary today as thousands of peasants arrived to hear a speech by military strongman and militia leader Omar Torrijos.

Tens of thousands of compesinos (peasants) were bused to the city's Cinco de Mayo Plaza within sight of of Fourth of July Avenue marking the limit of the United States-controlled zone to hear Torrijos' first speech in a public plaza.

U.S. commanders canceled the Monday Columbus Day holiday for forces in the zone and deployed troops along the boundary to prevent civilian rioting over the touchy issue of sovereignty over the Panama Canal Zone, in U.S. hands since 1904.

Panama and the United States are negotiating a new Canal treaty in Washington. Provisional President Demitrio B. Lakas said Saturday that the question under negotiation "is not whether Panama shall exercise sovereignty over the Canal Zone but only when and how Panama shall exercise sovereignty..."

3 Chutists Die

Young Divorce More Than Old

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Census Bureau reports a higher divorce rate for young married couples than for older ones, particularly for black Americans.

The bureau said Sunday data for two decades ending in 1967 showed 28 per cent of men married before age 22 were divorced within 20 years. For men 22 or older when they married, the rate was only 13 per cent. The figures were nearly the same for women who were wed in their teens and those who were older.

For black men, however, 46 per cent of those married by age 21 were divorced within 20 years —compared with 26 per cent for whites. Negro females married in their teens had a 47 per cent divorce rate, compared with 25 per cent for white women.

Slippery Filipino's Life Of Crime Ends

MANILA (UPI) — Leonardo Manecio, who slipped through the hands of police so many times he was knicknamed "Muddy Leonard," was public enemy No. 1 in the Philippines. He reportedly had killed at least 10 persons, including a provincial police chief and had escaped from prison while serving an 182-year sentence.

Police caught up with him again Sunday, but Muddy Leonard —"Nardong Putik" in Tagalog —didn't live up to his slippery reputation. He died in his little red sports car, his body and head so riddled with bullets that he had to be identified by fingerprints.

Ambassador Arrives

SEOUL (UPI)—Philip C. Habib, newly appointed U.S. ambassador to South Korea, arrived today to assume his post.

We see the happy world of children at play, but we know, too, there exists at the same time a world of alienation and rejection. Troubled by these harsh contrasts, we ask the question "Why?" Why poverty in a land of plenty? Why loneliness in a world that would join hands? Why war when the impulse of the heart is to love? The aching chasm between the real and the ideal everywhere provokes the question . . .

WHY?

In a world looking for answers
maybe God is the place to start.
God is hope. God is now.

BRITISH MARCH THROUGH TIBURON

The Royal Artillery Band, in the Bay Area for British Week, remained on to open festivities Sunday at the Corinthian Yacht Club by marching through Tiburon before playing a concert on the club's deck. The occasion was the opening of the club's midwinter regatta series, (Story on Sports page), and a town crier from London as well as bobbies and British officials were on hand for the day. Dole Says GOP Is Real People's Party

CHICAGO (UPI)—Robert J. Dole, Republican national chairman said Sunday that the Republicans have replaced the Democrats as the "true party of the people" and "radical liberals, labor bosses and irresponsible politicians" have driven out American ethnic groups which formerly gave the Democrats their strength.

Dole spoke at a dinner of the Illinois Republican Nationalities Council. The Kansas senator credited President Nixon with clearing the way for nationality groups to enter the GOP.

In the last two months alone, Dole said, Nixon had made 17 presidential appointments of ethnic Americans, including persons of Polish, Cuban, Mexican, Hungarian, Latvian, Filipino, Chinese, Italian, Puerto Rican and Greek ancestry.

He said the Republican party, "that once was thought of as the party of the privileged elite —the so-called WASP—is now the true party of the people."

The Democratic party, he said, once could lay claim to being the "melting pot party," but "now some of the more radical members of the youth wing seem more interested in 'pot' than in melting pots, and the solid mass of religious, patriotic, hard-working ethnic Americans who once identified with the Democratic party find themselves in search of a new political base."

"Failures and disasters" have attended the Democratic leadership, the GOP senator said, and it included "divisive Democratic politicians who turned on their own elected leadership and prolonged the war by sowing discontent at home and—whether they wished it or not—boosting enemy morale and demoralizing our own fighting men."

Youths Held In Battery Case

Three youths were arrested yesterday in Petaluma on suspicion of battery on a peace officer and disturbing the peace.

Booked into Sonoma County Jail were Cathy McClean, 18, of 25 Hayes Street, San Rafael, and Arthur Michael Farmer, 18, of no known address. Sent to juvenile hall was John William Green, 17, also of 25 Hayes Street, San Rafael.

Officer Dolph P. Camilli said he was answering a complaint at 10:30 p.m. about a noisy disturbance at 415 Kentucky Street when he found the youths sitting on the front porch. Camilli said an argument began and that he was knocked down and kicked in the legs, groin, head and back. Miss McClean and Farmer were scheduled for arraignment tomorrow in Southern Sonoma Municipal Court.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Carl-Henrik Petersen, the Swedish Consul General of the Western United States, was critically injured when his car collided with a trolly bus.

Petersen, 57, suffered a skull fracture and multiple rib fractures in the Saturday afternoon accident at the intersection of Gough and Chestnut streets.

He underwent brain surgery after the mishap and was shifted to the intensive care unit at San Francisco General Hospital Sunday where he was listed in serious condition.

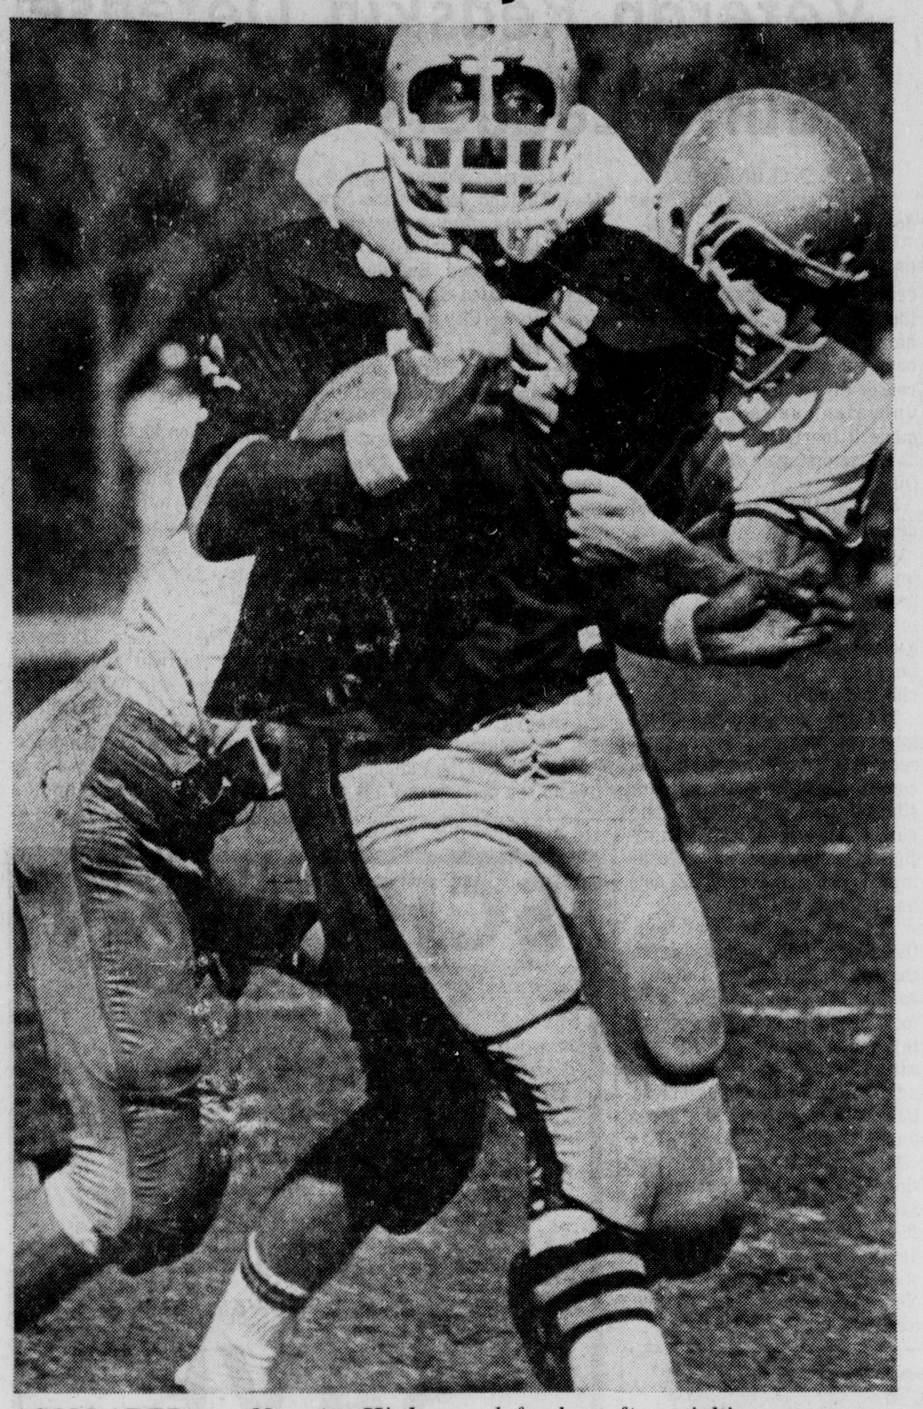
Novato Spills Terra Linda In MCAL Thriller, 16-13



COLLARED — Novato High School's Ed Harris was collared by an unidentified Terra Linda defender after picking up some yardage in Saturday's game, won by Novato, 16-13.

Moroski-Robinson Pass Wins

The last time Novato High School dumped Terra Linda High was in 1965 when Hornet mentor Al Scott was an assistant.

"With that win," he said jubilantly after the Novato footballers upset the defending champion Trojans 16-13 Saturday, "we went on to win the title."

If that bit of history repeats itself, Scott can thank his lucky stars, notably quarterback Marty Moroski and halfback Joe Robinson for teaming on a 13 yard scoring pass with 52 seconds left in the game before a capacity crowd in the winner's field.

The Trojans were similarly affected but Novato was not to be denied. "We did it," Scott screamed beneath a hot sun as

49er Errors Give Rams 20-13 Victory, NFC Lead

Wrong.

The Rams played the entire game Sunday against San Francisco with rookie Jack Youngblood of Florida in place of the injured Jones at defensive left end and all the kid did was keep the 49er offense honest around his end.

And Gabriel, one of the National Football League's top quarterbacks the last half dozen seasons, went out on the next to last play of the first quarter and never was seen again.

Jerry Rhome, the seven year vet from Tulsa who made the team after being claimed from Houston, filled in admirably for Gabe, who may have a slight concussion, while leading the Rams to an upset 20-13 victory over the 49ers.

Rhome stuck pretty much to the ground and while the Rams didn't do all that well carrying the ball, they got two big plays they didn't expect for the points that led them to victory.

The first break came early in the third quarter when Ken Willard fumbled on the San Francisco four and Gene Howard, a corner back with quick moves, scooped up the ball and ran it in for a score. That put the Rams ahead at the time at 10-3.

Then, midway through the fourth quarter with San Francisco on top 13-10, Larry Smith, the fastest of Los Angeles' four running backs, came in to try to pick up a first down with the Rams bogged down on their own 36 and needing a yard to keep possession. Smith busted over left tackle and broke clear on a 64-yard gallop for what proved to be the winning score.

David Ray, who earlier booted a field goal of 12 yards, added a 14-yarder with four minutes left for three insurance points as the Rams climbed into the NFC West lead. Los Angeles now is 2-1-1 and San

Oakland Triumphs In Denver

DENVER (UPI) — Defensive end Rich Jackson of the Denver Broncos sat in the dressing room with his teammates Sunday, wondering if they were "snake-bit."

"It looks to me that bad luck is cast upon this team," he said, still upset over Denver's 27-16 loss to Oakland. It was the third loss of the season for the winless Broncos, who also have one tie.

"It's got to be better," Jackson said. "This losing has got to stop."

Losing to Oakland was nothing new to the Broncos. They haven't beaten the Raiders since 1962. And Denver went into the game with a sputtering offense that had scored just two touchdowns in three games.

Oakland was hampered by the loss of starting quarterback Daryle Lamonica, who pulled a hamstring muscle early in the contest. But backup quarterback Ken Stabler got the offense untracked in the last half.

Stabler, who completed 10-of-23 pass attempts, ran nine yards for one touchdown and tossed nine yards to Raymond Chester for another TD. Oakland's other touchdown game in the final period when cornerback Jimmy Warren picked off a Steve Ramsey pass and ran 55 yards for the score.

The Raiders' other points came on field goals of 38 and 24 yards by George Blanda.

Marin Tars Lose To Physical San Joaquin Delta Footballers

"They were as physical as can be," said College of Marin head football coach Dick Read after his Tars were whipped, 38-21, by San Joaquin Delta College in Stockton Saturday.

"We were in the ballgame all the way," said Read, whose squad trailed by only eight points at half, 23-15. "But we didn't play well enough to win," he added.

The loss on the University of Pacific field left the Tars winless in four attempts. Next on the schedule is West Valley J.C. at Buck Shaw Stadium in Santa Clara next Friday, 7:30 p.m. It will be Marin's Camino Norte Conference opener.

Leon Delisle scored twice for Marin, his first touchdown coming in the second period on a 24 yard-run, immediately following a 41-yard scamper by Larry Walker. Walker had scored earlier in the period on a one-yard plunge.

Delisle scored his second touchdown in the final period from one yard out. Bob Daniele kicked one Tar extra point and passed to Mike Locati for a two-pointer.

"He did a pretty good job," said Read about quarterback Daniele. The former Terra Linda prep completed 10 of his 25 passes for 117 yards. Three of his passes were intercepted, however.

Marin added 141 yards rushing for 258 total yards to 433 for Delta.

"We're getting better," said Read, "but we were still inconsistent."

Among the defensive stars for Marin were Leon Howard, Ken Blasingame, Lynn Merritt and Ron Budde.

MUSTANGS DROP

Drake Notches 12-8 Nod Gridders

By PAUL CANE

What was billed as a potential offensive "Blunder Bowl" became an unexpected "Defensive Delight" Saturday night in San Rafael, as the Drake High Pirates notched their first win of the 1971 MCAL campaign with a 12-8 victory over snakebitten San Marin High School.

Both Drake and San Marin were winless throughout the preseason, with each team being victimized by excessive mistakes. Last night, however, the teams defenses battled to a scoreless first half, and it took a breakaway, 67-yard run from scrimmage by Dave Segale to set up the first Drake touchdown near the end of the third period.

Drake coach Bob Franceschini said the long gainer "was just a basic dive" that happened to break, something that hadn't happened up to that point.

On the next play, Phil Wilkinson took a pitchout from quarterback Mike Simons for 17 yards and the first score of the game. Franceschini explained the play was made up at halftime, in an attempt to take advantage of the Mustang defense, which had begun to clutter up the middle. "We don't have much speed," the mentor laughed, and said it was necessary to really keep the defense guessing in order to move the ball.

San Marin's junior quarterback Hoza Wright floated a pair of interceptions in the second half, the second of which Drake turned into the other touchdown. After Wilkinson, a top-flight performer for Drake in both the offensive and defensive backfields, picked off Wright's pass, Simons drove the Pirates 29 yards for a 12-0 score.

Simons himself carried the ball 11 yards on a rollout for the TD, on a play Franceschini described as being very similar to the one Wilkinson scored with.

San Marin, although piling up 11 first downs, only managed 182 yards for the night, and was thwarted on three drives inside Drake territory by the stubborn Pirate defenders. Drake, too, was unable to capitalize on a couple of opportunities, including two chances inside the Mustang ten-yard line.

Franceschini was excited over the cutdown in turnovers for his ballclub, as Drake has decreased the average number of interceptions and fumbles from "eight or ten" per game, down to three.

Wright, a lefthander, completed only six of 22 in the air, but had the Pirate defenders jumping to prevent disaster. "Our defense used a lot of different sets," Franceschini mused.

Wright was not to be totally denied, as he hit his favorite

'Old '49ers Revert To Losing Ways, 20-13

By RALPH CHATOIAN

It was like watching the 49ers of old, the pre-Dick Nolan days.

They would make a long gain, only to lose it all because of a penalty. Then there were those untimely interceptions and lost fumbles. The San Francisco 49ers, expected to be the class of the National Football League, looked more like dazed boxers, hanging on, waiting for the knockout punch to drop them.

It did, finally, with the Los Angeles Rams running out the clock, and the fans running out of Candlestick Park grumbling about the 49ers' 20-13 loss. It was just like the old days at Kezar.

The story of yesterday's game can best be told with a yawn, and more than one of the pressbox crew could be seen doing just that. It would be hard to say which would have been more interesting, watching the first half of yesterday's game or looking at paint dry.

The game did have its ments, but the time in between those rare moments was almost too much to endure. The 49ers defense did a good job, but the offense couldn't put it all together, as the sporting fraternity phrases it.

The 49ers had their chances to break things open in the first half, the first time only minutes after the start when Ram Alvin Haymond fumbled a punt, the 49ers' Preston Riley picking it up on the Ram 16. Three plays later, John Brodie's pass was plucked off by Los Angeles cornerback Gene Howard. End of threat.

Later in the first quarter, defensive end Cedric Hardman slammed into Ram quarterback Roman Gabriel, resulting in a concussion for Roman and his forced exit from the game. Aha, said the 49er fans, without Gabriel the Rams will fold. In came backup man Jerry Rhome. He ended up with a grand total of 13-yards passing, not completing a pass until the start of the fourth quarter.

The 49ers' one big play in the second quarter was a beauty, a 42-yard pass from Brodie to Gene Washington on the Ram one. But wait, is that a eyllow hankerchief on the field? It sure is, signifying a holding penalty against the Niners. Ball called back, end of threat.

Then things just got worse. Ken Willard fumbled on the four and Los Angeles' Howard scooped it up and went in for a quick six in the third quarter. It was Bob Windsor's turn to fumble in the fourth quarter, losing it to Matt Maslowski. It was the 49ers' fourth turnover in this game of giveaway, and this one only resulted in three points, a field goal by David Ray.

It was a strange game, indeed. Most of the Rams offense was contained in two plays, a 57-yard run by Lester Josephson in the third quarter and a 64-yard touchdown sprint by Larry Smith in the fourth quarter. Without those two plays, the Rams' offense was confined to 98 yards by ground and 13 by air. It doesn't sound like the kind of game that would put a team in first place, but that's just what it did because now the 49ers (2-2) are one-half game behind the Rams (2-1-1) in the west.

I guess things could have been worse. I might have believed the oddsmakers who gave the 49ers eight points and bet my lunch money on the outcome. I didn't bet and now I can enjoy that ham on rye.

Here's a tip if you plan to go to next Sunday's game against the Bears. Go by helicopter. The Candlestick parking lot was completely filled 15 minutes before gametime with wall to wall cars.

Weaver Lauded By Team

BALTIMORE (UPI) — "The thing that impresses me most about him is the way he handles ballplayers. He has the knack for knowing exactly when to get on them. He has the same knack for knowing when to lay off."

Dave McNally, Baltimore's ace lefty, talks about his boss, Earl Weaver, like all the other Orioles do. Warmly.

In a way, that's normal enough. When a manager guides his ball club to three straight pennants as Earl Weaver has done with the Orioles, it's logical to assume most of his ballplayers are going to tell you what a great guy he is.

That doesn't always happen though.

Walt Alston led the Dodgers into the World Series one year and before that Series even started, one of his employees, Don Zimmer, took off on him publicly for not playing him.

Some years later, Casey Stengel, managing the Yankees, lifted Clete Boyer, his regular third baseman, for a pinch hitter in the second inning of a World Series contest and the deeply humiliated Boyer howled about the indignity long after like a scalded whippet.

They say you don't really know a man until you work for him or a woman until you marry her. Similarly, most ballplayers say they don't know a manager until they play for him, and frequently the player who'll give you the best line on a manager is someone like Tom Shopay.

Banducci Team Wins Third In Row

"We haven't peaked yet," Bruno Banducci said today after his Marin Catholic footballers collected their third straight triumph, a 23-12 win in Oakland Saturday over St. Elizabeth.

Maybe the team has not reached its prime, but it has been a while since the Wildcats notched a trio of consecutive triumphs.

"Ofensively," Banducci commented, "I don't feel we've jelled." However, the former San Francisco 49er great said he was happy with tailback Pat Parnow's running play. He tallied two times covering three and seven yards. Parnow has 10 scores in all.

The ecstatic coach added "it's going to be a good year. We're going to win them all."

And if the squad goes unbeaten the rest of the way, the Kentfield delegation can thank its fine defense. "We take pride in playing defense, and knocking passes down. They like hitting people. Benny Partee (defensive halfback) plays nothing else, and he loves it.

Don Bunce Aids Tribe Bowl Push

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

STANFORD leads the Pacific-8 race to the Rose Bowl today thanks to a demonstration by Benny Barnes and the rest of the "Thunder Chickens" of how to stop Sonny Sixkiller and his high scoring Washington Huskies.

The "Thunder Chickens," Stanford's name for its defensive unit, had the Cherokee quarterback running for his life most of the game Saturday while posting a 17-6 victory over the Huskies.

As a result, Sixkiller completed only 12 of 46 passes and threw four interceptions, three of which were picked off by Barnes who also sacked the quarterback with safety blitzes three times before he could get rid of the ball.

Washington had been averaging almost 50 points a game and was leading the nation in putting points on the scoreboard but against Stanford's Indians the Huskies got only one touchdown and that late in the game.

"Our defense played a near-perfect game," said Stanford's coach John Ralston. "The sacks came at the right time and we got the interceptions at the right time. It was superb execution by the players."

His praise seemed far from outlandish since the Indians held Washington to minus 26 yards rushing and only 77 in the air.

NFL ROUNDUP

Veteran Redskin Defense Vaults Leaders To Win

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The "Geritol Group" has done it again.

Washington's veteran defense, which numbers over a century of experience, provided the game's only touchdown and harassed the starting quarterback out of action for the fourth consecutive week Sunday as the unbeaten, untied Redskins made it fourth in a row with a 22-13 victory over the Houston Oilers.

Ron McDole, the 290-pound defensive tackle with 11 years experience, intercepted a Charley Johnson pass in the second period and rumbled 18 yards for a score. Curt Knight kicked a club record five field goals to boost the 'Skins over the charged-up Oilers.

The veteran Washington unit intercepted three passes and recovered two fumbles to become the first Redskin team since 1943 to win its first four games. That year, with Sammy Baugh leading the way, Washington won the National Football League title, its last.

"We took the ball away from them five times and we made the big play when we had to," said Coach George Allen, who took over the Washington club this year. "We were a little flat after being emotionally up against Dallas the week before but the Houston club is a good, tough team."

In National Conference action, Detroit held off Green Bay 31-28, St. Louis ripped Atlanta 26-9, Minnesota blanked Philadelphia 13-0, and Chicago stunned New Orleans 35-14. The New York Giants are at Dallas tonight.

In American Conference play, New England crushed the New York Jets 20-0, Cleveland downed Pittsburgh 27-17, Baltimore humiliated Buffalo 43-0, Miami defeated Cincinnati 23-13 and Kansas City trounced San Diego 31-10.

Greg Landry threw for 302 yards and four touchdowns as Detroit built up a 24-7 lead and then held on in the second half to beat the Packers. Landry, who had his best day as a pro, hit Earl McCullouch with a 17 yard TD pass and teamed with Larry Walton on scoring passes of 10 and 60 yards.

Dave Osborn ran two yards for the game's only touchdown and Fred Cox kicked field goals of 14 and 17 yards as Minnesota beat Philadelphia and spoiled Ed Khayat's coaching debut. Ed Sharockman returned an interception to the Philadelphia five to set up Osborn's TD and ruin the day for Khayat, who took over the head coaching job after Jerry Williams was fired this week.

Bill Nelsen threw a 19-yard pass to Milt Morin for one score and Bo Scott ran 18 yards for another as Cleveland beat Pittsburgh to take a one-game lead in the AFC Central Division.

Jim Bakken kicked four field goals and MacArthur Lane and Roy Shivers plunged for short yardage TDs to lead the Cardinals to their upset of Atlanta. The Cardinal secondary picked off four Atlanta passes to set up the victory..

Bob Griese threw TD passes to Paul Warfield and Howard Twilley to help Miami past injury-riddled Cincinnati.

Norm Bulaich and Don McCauley scored two TDs each as Baltimore cruised past Buffalo.

Bosox Swap Lonborg In 10-Player Deal

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Frank Lane, baseball's most active trader, even at 75, used a rainy day lull in the World Series to swing a 10-player deal with the Boston Red Sox which brought the Milwaukee Brewers Billy Conigliaro, George Scott and Jim Lonbrg among others.

The 6-for-4 trade saw the Red Sox send Congiliaro, Scott, Lonborg, Joe Lahoud, Ken Brett and Don Pavletich to the Brewers in exchange for Lew Krausse, Pat Skrable, Tommy Harper and Marty Pattin.

The trade was announced by general managers Lane of the Brewers and Dick O'Connell of the Red Sox.

O'Connell said Harper probably will play as the Sox' regular right fielder, joining Carl Yastrzemski and Reggie Smith in the Boston outfield. Harper hit .258 and had 14 homers playing mostly second and third base for the Brewers last leason.

Pattin, 14-14 last season, should join the Red Sox' regular rotation, according to O'Connell, while Krausse (8-12) is scheduled for duty as a swingman.

Skrable, a 23-year-old left-handed batter, hit .268 at Evansville in the American Association last season.

Scott, a long-ball threat who can play first or third, hit only .263 for Boston but had 24 homers and drove in 78 runs. Congiliaro, a speedy outfielder who walked off in a huff during midseason but was reinstated, hit 11 homers, drove in 33 runs and compiled a .262 average. Lahoud, despite only a .215 average, drove in 32 runs and hit 14 homers as a part-time outfielder.

Lonborg is perhaps the biggest name involved. He was a 20-game winner in pitching Boston to a miracle pennant in 1967 and then tore up his leg in an off-season skiing accident. He never has regained his form, being saddled with shoulder and back injuries. He was sent to the minors this season and returned to compile a 10-7 record with an unimpressive 4.13 era.

Brett, considered two years ago to be the outstanding pitching prospect in the Boston organization, was 0-3 this year with a 5.34 era. Pavletich plays first and catches and batted only 27 times last season.

"The key to this whole thing for us is Conigliaro and Scott," said Milwaukee Manager Dave Bristol. "We're thinking of Congiliaro as one of our regular outfielders. Scott also will get a shot at a regular job."

Drake Registers First Grid Triumph

receiver, Marty Larsen, for a 21-yard touchdown with 23 ticks left on the game clock. After the conversion attempt was successful, the Mustangs tried the inevitable onside kick, but were deprived of a last-minute victory try when Pirate Bob Guastucci latched onto Greg Mazeres' crazily twisting roller at midfield as the clock ran out.

San Marin Head Coach Bob Martin philosophized "It was a good game, but of course I'm disappointed at losing." He explained that Wright's lackluster completion average was due to the receivers dropping the ball. He noted "Hoza throws a hard pass, and we've been having trouble holding on to them."

Both teams escaped the game relatively unhurt, with Mustang runningback Fred Doar being the worst off, after having his ribs bruised. Drake defensive back and reserve signal caller Tom MacAusland had his knee banged up early, but came back to bolster the Drake defense in the second half.

Drake hosts the other candidate for MCAL cellar-dwelling next Saturday, with winless Tamalpais visiting the Pirates at College of Marin in an afternoon game. Franceschini said he hoped his team could pick up a second win, to gather momentum for the toughies still to come.

He expected two injury victims of last week, Gene Gilbert and Dave DeMoss to return to action against the Indians.

In contrast, San Marin has drawn Terra Linda for the weekend, and although the Trojans were humbled by Novato, Martin knows they are tough. "They are a typical Terra Linda team, well coached and quick. They don't make many mistakes."

U.S. Takes Romania; In 'Cup'

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI)—Ilie Nastase of Romania and American Frank Froehling were to complete an anti-climactic Davis Cup match today in the tournament settled Sunday by U.S. Army Pfc. Stan Smith's easy victory.

Smith quickly disposed of Romanian Ion Tiriac 8-6, 6-3, 6-0, to give the U.S. team three out of a possible five matches in the tournament and an edge, 23-22, over Australia in the overall Davis Cup competition.

Rain washed out the Nastase-Froehling match that followed with Nastase holding fir the first set 6-3 and ahead in the second 2-0. It was Froehling's advantage at deuce in the third game.

Novato Upsets Terra Linda

hundreds of fans poured onto the field to bask in Black and Gold triumph glory.

"We fell behind twice, but our team kept coming back. It never, ever quits, and we kept our poise.

"This shows true team effort. We've got great kids — true fortitude."

At that juncture, burly Novato linemen Pat Karinen, Rick Reis and Russ Weklych, the heart of a hit-hungry defense, hoisted Scott high on their collective shoulders, proceeding nonstop to the locker room.

Later, Scott commented that "Terra Linda has a helluva football team. It must be a hard one to lose. But now we are on top, and everybody will be pouring on us, because we're right up there."

The MCAL king, "might have died, but not without a valiant struggle.

During what Scott termed "my greatest victory," in the MCAL game of the week, the visitors parleyed the passing of quarterback Kevin Donohoe and the catching of end John Buckley to lead from the 8:50 mark of the second quarter to the final minute of the contest.

After a feeling out process in the opening 10 minutes, which included three punts, Novato drove 68 yards in eight plays for a Bob Cooper field goal from the Trojan 24. The key play in the drive was a 30 yard sweep of left end by lanky Ed Harris on a second and 16 situation.

The hosts held off the determined Terra Lindans for one sequence but were then bombarded with a 70 yard, three play Trojan explosion.

On second and seven from their own 33, Donohoe, who threw 39 times, spotted tight end Wes Emerson with a look-in, good for 12 and a first down. Donohoe then found Buckley fly beyond the secondary and hit the speedy receiver with a aerial covering the 55 yard distance, Terra Linda 7-3 at the intermission.

Before the gun, Buckley roared into paydirt on the heels of a 43 yard punt return, but it was nullified by a clipping marker.

While Terra Linda fans along the sidelines mulled over the possibility of "Novato quitting now that they are behind," the Hornets formulated other ideas during halftime. In the closing minutes of the period, Moroski's alternate, Tom Conklin pilfered a tipped pass on the Trojan 13; Moroski and his mates took it in four plays hence with the All-League signal caller performing the honors on a one yard plunge with one second left.

"There's plenty of time; we've got the whole fourth quarter," Trojan coach Don Lucas yelled. His proteges heeded the encouragement, jaunting 53 yards in 12 calls for the tally, which put the guests ahead 13-9. The key plays were a pair of Donohoe clutch tosses to Buckley for 17 and 14 yards. The last one planted the ball on the Novato one. On first and goal, fullback Mike Sabel lowered his head and boomed across.

The winner's engineered one first down after the ensuing kickoff but could no further, surrendering the ball when Trojan lineman Steve Rowell dumped Moroski for a seven yard loss on fourth and 10. However, the Terra Linda team was forced to punt, giving the Hornets a final opportunity with 2:49 left on their own 25.

Johnson netted five on a sweep before Moroski fired a nine yarder to end Charley Chung. Two plays later, a Leo Mogers to Chung pass was ruled a 16-yard completion when an official called interference in the Trojan secondary.

With 1:12 remaining on a second and 11 setting, Moroski drilled his first of two successive passes to sure-handed end Greg Straw. The first netted seven and the other 26, marking the ball on the Rojan 13.

Cries of "keep your poise" echoed from the Trojan side. They did, but the Trojans lost the game on the next play when Robinson ran a down and out to the left corner of the end zone; Moroski found him with unerring accuracy to wrap up the last-minute thriller.

The score by quarters:

Terra Linda	0	7	0	6	— 13
Novato	3	0	6	7	— 16

N — Cooper 24 field goal; TL — Buckley 55 pass from Donohoe (Corbett kick); N — Moroski 1 run (run failed); TL — Sabel 1 run (run failed); N — Robinson 13 pass from Moroski (Cooper kick).

Seals Tie Leafs, 3-3

OAKLAND (UPI) —Maybe the California Seals, nee the Oakland Seals, ought to change names again.

This time to the California Seal Pups for youth is the trademark of the enthusiastic "new look" team.

The younger Seals outskated Toronto throughout the game Sunday night on their way to a 3-3 National Hockey League tie. The Seals got off 39 shots to the Canadian squad's 24.

Two power play goals in the last period by Wayne Carleton gained the deadlock.

Carleton, who came to the Seals during the winter from the Boston Bruins, finally broke loose in the final 10 minutes of the game to make his scores, both power plays, and put the Seals back in the game.

But it may have been a costly tie for the Seals. Captain Carol Vadnais, who scored the first Seal goal in the first period, had to be carried off the ice because of strained ligaments.

The Seals now have two ties after settling for a 4-4 score with the Los Angeles Kings Friday night. They meet Philadelphia here Wednesday.

The Seals have only eight skaters from last year's squad and most of those secured in trades during the winter are youngsters.

"I expect this group of youngsters to gain a playoff spot in their division," said Coach Fred Glover, basing his estimate on the speed and desire of his team.

"They aren't afraid to go into the corners and battle for the puck and they're not going out on the ice expecting to be beat," he said.

"They are all out to win."

49ERS

Francisco is 2-2, a half game behind.

Ray's clinching field goal was set up when Bob Windsor fumbled the kickoff following Smith's TD. Matt Maslowski recovered the ball on the San Francisco 28 and seven plays later Ray hit for three points.

Tommy Prothro, the Rams coach, was as delighted as he could be with the victory.

"It was a very strange game," Prothro said, "but I liked it."

Prothro said Smith's TD run came on a very simple play that, when it works, looks great.

"San Francisco was in a breakable defense," Prothro explained. "That defense, with everyone practically on the line, is designed to stop a one-yard play, but if you break it you can go all the way, and that's what Smith did."

Rhome said he called the play himself in the huddle.

"With all those guys up close," said Rhome, "I figured if we could get Larry past the line he could go all the way. It worked this time."

Gabriel suffered a mild concussion when Cedrick Hardman sacked him just before the first quarter ended and neither team without a point. While he was in there Gabriel attempted one pass and missed.

"That's why it was a strange game," said Prothro." "It just doesn't figure we could win without gaining anything passing."

Dick Nolan, San Francisco's head coach, was upset at his team's turnovers.

The 49ers lost the ball twice on fumbles and twice on pass interceptions and the Rams cashed in those mistakes for 10 pounts. They also were assessed 90 yards in penalties.

RAIDERS

replaced the injured Don Horn. Horn suffered an achilles tendon injury late in the first half.

Both starting quarterbacks were surprised by their injures.

"I pulled the tendon when we were down around the goal line, and I don't know how," Horn said. "When I put weight on it a certain way, it hurt, and I didn't want to damage it any more."

Lamonica suffered a pulled hamstring in his right leg on the second series of downs. "Nobody touched me, and it's tough to get hurt when you don't even get knocked down," he said.

Oakland coach John Madden expressed pleasure with both the victory and with the play of Stabler, a 25-year-old quarterback from Alabama.

"This was a physical game, and the heat and altitude affected us," Madden said. "We didn't plan to fool around and come on in the second half to win, but it's just happened that way the last couple of weeks."

"What can I say?" Bronco Coach Lou Saban said afterwards. "Two pass interceptions hurt us, but this rookie quarterback (Ramsey) is going to be okay. He made some mistakes against one of the best teams in football.

Marin Hockey Teams Triumph

Teams in the Marin Amateur Hockey Association made it a clean sweep over the weekend, with 7-year-old John O'Hara leading the way with a sparkling performance in the Mite division.

Little John scored all seven goals as the Mites defeated Eastridge of San Jose, 7-4, at Raydine' rink in Corte Madera.

The Marin Squirts whipped Eastridge, 6-1, in San Jose; the Marin Pee-Wees edged Belmont, 4-3 in Corte Madera, and the Marin Bantams defeated Sun Valley of Concord, 3-2, in Concord.

Guaranteed Brake Reline

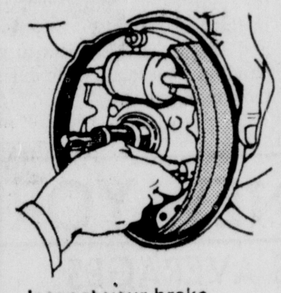
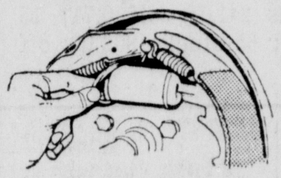
DRUM-TYPE BRAKES and/or FRONT DISC
Any American Car and most Foreign Cars.

We do a lot more than reline your brakes...here's what we do:

We replace your worn linings with new bonded brake linings on all four wheels.

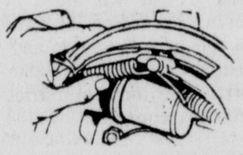


Inspect your brake drums for contact with the linings.



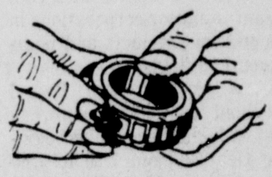
We examine your wheel cylinders and master cylinder for leaks.

Brake shoe return springs are checked for proper tension.



Next, we inspect the brake fluid lines for leaks or weak points.

Because wheel bearings can be badly damaged if the original grease has dried and caked, we clean and repack the outer bearings on both front wheels.



The final step is to add heavy duty brake fluid and road test your car.

As you can see . . . your money goes a long way at Firestone. It buys you prompt and dependable brake service by expert brake mechanics. Why not give us a try?

GUARANTEED 30,000 MILES OR 3 YEARS

We guarantee our brake lining, used in normal passenger car service, for the specified number of miles or years from date of installation, whichever comes first. Guarantee will be honored by Firestone Dealer or Store performing the original work and adjustments prorated on mileage and based on prices current at time of adjustment.

New Zealand GNP Shows Steady Rise

NEW YORK (UPI) —The average annual growth of New Zealand's Gross National Product during the decade 1960-70 was 7 per cent, says a financial report by the New Zealand Consulate General here.

The growth was aided by a substantial inflow of capital into the private sector and by retention in New Zealand of profits from the subsidiaries of overseas companies.

Wall Street: Low Prices, Slow Trading

NEW YORK (UPI) —Slightly lower prices and a slow, semi-holiday trading pace characterized activity on Wall Street through the first two hours today.

"A lot of the dullness has to do with the Columbus Day holiday," said Harry Laubscher of Walston & Co said. Banks and insurance companies were shut down for the day. Laubscher observed no great rush to sell stocks, and he looked for the market to turn around later this week.

The Walston executive added: "there is confusion about President Nixon's 'Phase Two', but overall there is an optimistic feeling that the plan is going to be a prop to business and the stock market."

Declines topped advances by almost two-to-one near noon, while the Dow Jones industrial average showed a loss of 3.14 at 890.77. Other market indicators also pointed slightly lower.

Prices also eased in light turnover on the American Stock Exchange. Stocks on the most active Amex list generally declined. National Realty Investors, which headed the active list, was off more than 2 points on over 110,000 shares.

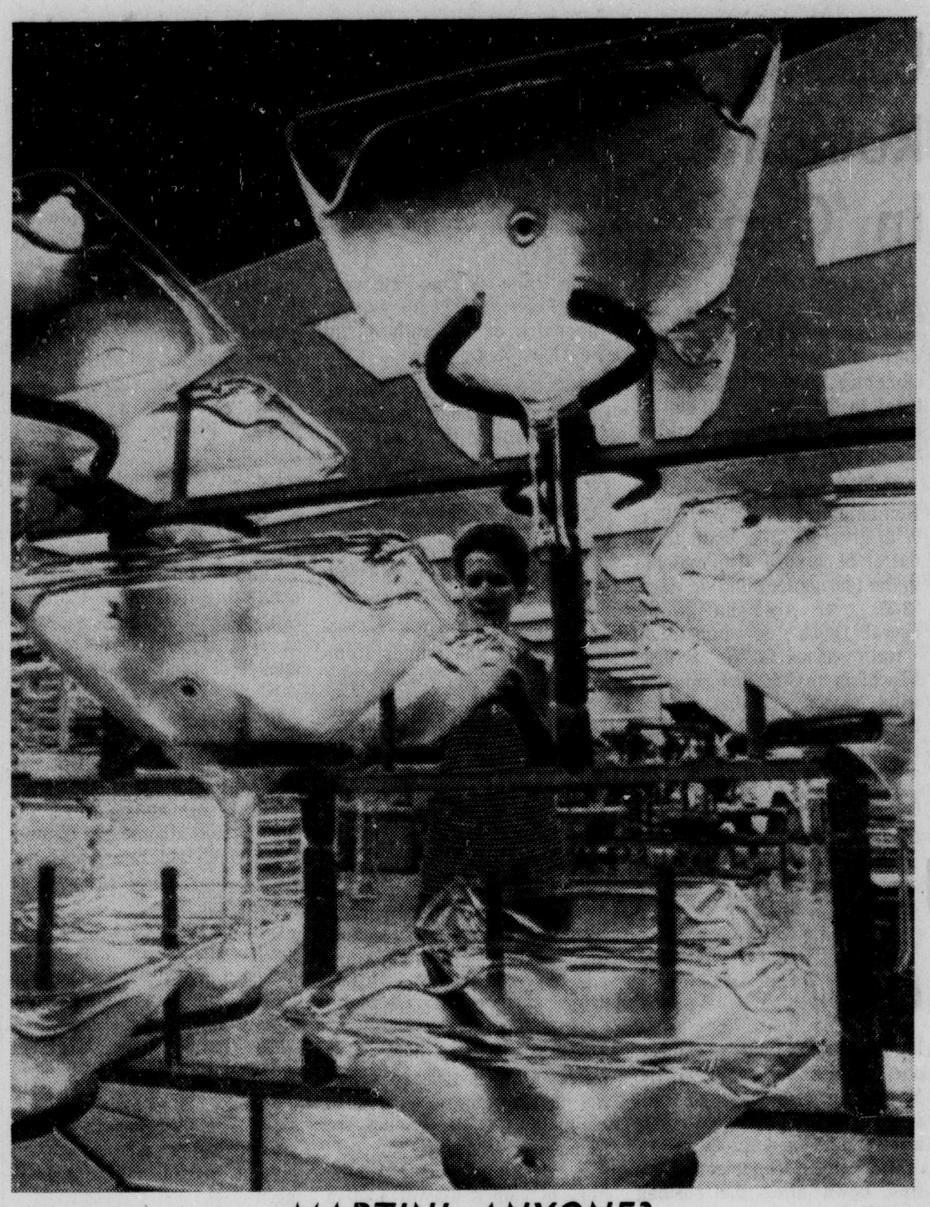
Exec Leaves Firm, Goes Into The Community

MENLO PARK (BW) — Saga Administrative Corp. vice-president Donald M. Cope has been granted a two-year leave of absence to work with the Involvement Corps of Palo Alto, a non-profit community service organization.

Cope, 41, will serve as special assistant to the Involvement Corps executive director, Ells Culver, with responsibility for internal administration and area activities coordination. The move is effective next Jan. 1.

Cope also will act as a liaison with the national center for voluntary action in Washington, D.C.

The involvement Corps, founded in 1968, works for constructive social change by organizing task forces generally composed of middle-class adult citizens to support self-help projects in urban areas. It has task forces currently working in the San Francisco Bay Area and Denver and expects to expand on a national scale during the coming year.



MARTINI, ANYONE?

Some people might like to think of these items as very large martini glasses. The folks at Westinghouse Electric Corp., though, like to think of them as glass envelopes used in making color television tubes. In their final form, these envelopes will have a faceplate sealed to their wide end and an electron gun inside their stems in order to bring the color picture on home TVs.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Expect Recovery For Ipco Supply

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Earnings for Ipco Hospital Supply (NYSE) have been reduced in the last several quarters. What is your opinion of this stock? — S. K.

A. Success in the health care field depends heavily on a broad product line, an extensive distribution system, in house manufacturing and tight inventory control. Although Ipco is strong on the first two counts, in the latter two areas problems exist. However, Ipco is rapidly righting these conditions. At last report, only 30 per cent of Ipco's products were manufactured by the company. An increasing percentage — perhaps to 50 per cent by 1975 — of self-manufactured products should result from recent and proposed plant expansion.

Inventory imbalance, primarily reflecting the economic slowdown, resulted in higher interest expenses. Start-up plant costs were also a factor in limiting fiscal 1971 earings.

Diversification into the dental and optical fields has been stepped-up by three recent acquisitions and added retail optical outlets. Dental products accounted for only 14 per cent of fiscal 1970 sales, but 34 per cent of profits. Although dental sales and net were lower in fiscal 1971, this backlog of previously deferred dental work should contribute to a resurgence this year. Profit recovery is anticipated, reflecting the revised dividend policy, closer alignment of inventory, increased in-house production and expansion in dental and optical operations. Hold for expected recovery.

Q. If a person in his 60s received principal amounting to $300,000 to be invested in not more than eight securities to be held four to five years, what securities would you suggest? — J. D.

A. Because of the time restriction which has been imposed on this capital it would be unwise to invest in equity securities. Regardless of the stability or quality of the issuing corporation, a shareholder must have the freedom to act if changing corporate, industry or political conditions indicate such a move. For this reason I would recommend a portfolio of good quality corporate bonds or if your tax status requires, tax exempt municipal bonds.

'Brine Mine' Will Save Money On Salt

NEW YORK (UPI) —A "brine mine" has been developed that can save industrial users up to $6 on a ton of salt, according to a three-year study by Cargill, Inc.

The "mine" turns rock salt into pure brine at an economically feasible cost for smaller users —food and textile plants that require only 1,000 to 3,000 tons of salt per year.

The device is a self-contained stainless steel unit that produces from 50 to 100 gallons of high-purity, saturated brine per minute.

FALL — A TIME FOR REFLECTION

With its crisp, clear days and bright sunlight filtered through multi-colored leaves, fall days are perfect for reflection and study — or so this young woman at the Reading, Pa., Public Museum believes. Summer's heat waves and fun and frolic are just recently past, but already the nearby Pennsylvania countryside glows with the scarlets and oranges of autumn. Soon the leaves will fall and winter will blanket the forests with snow.

Battle-Weary GIs Refuse To Fight, Demand Pullout

67 Soldiers Petition Kennedy For His Help

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. infantrymen defending the embattled fire support base Pace on the Cambodian border refused direct orders to go out on night patrol Saturday, military spokesmen said.

Reports today from Pace said 67 American soldiers there had sent a petition to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., say they would not patrol further and demanding their immediate withdrawal.

Reports reaching U.S. command headquarters in Saigon indicated that when the patrol was ordered to leave the base, which has been under heavy Communist pressure for two weeks, "some of the members expressed a desire not to go."

There were, however, conflicting reports from the field that six men refused to go on patrol after six others from Bravo Company walked into a claymore mine trap laid by Allied troops earlier in the day.

The men walked into the midst of the mines, set in elephant grass and undergrowth to go off automatically when tripped, the field reports said. The ambush, apparently laid by other U.S. troops or South Vietnamese 200 yards from the base perimeter, did not go off, however. And the patrol returned to the base unharmed.

The company commander tried to form a patrol to go out at dusk. He issued direct individual orders to six men during a formation of the 90-man company and when all of them refused, he gave up, the reports said.

The story told by military sources in Saigon indicated in a brief statement that the commander prepared to send out a 12-man patrol at dusk and "some of the members expressed a desire not to go.

"The infantry company commander repeated the order and the men prepared to move out when they learned that an ARVN (South Vietnamese) element had already manned the ambush position," the statement said.

"At this point the order was withdrawn and no further action was taken," the statement added.

Elsewhere, the U.S. Embassy in Saigon disclosed today that U.S. and South Vietnamese officials had negotiated with the Communists on release of a North Vietnamese army lieutenant and expressed hope his release would lead to the freeing of more war prisoners.

The lieutenant was flown in an unarmed helicopter today to a point inside Cambodia and released near the area where U.S. S. Sgt. John C. Sexton was released by the Communists on Friday. A spokesman said the lieutenant was freed as a reciprocal gesture in hopes there would be other exchanges. Sexton left for home today.

The release occurred near the Cambodian rubber plantation town of Krek where new fighting was reported today between North Veitnamese and South Vietnamese units. A spokesman said 52 Communists were killed in the latest flareup there and that the government lost four killed and 20 wounded.

In addition to the fighting around Krek, military spokesmen reported a battle on Highway 1 linking Saigon and Phnom Penh and said 46 Communists were killed at a cost of seven Saigon troops killed and 15 wounded. The battle took place near the Cambodian town of Kampong Trabek about 80 miles northwest of Saigon.

Reports in Phnom Penh said a force of 1,500 South Vietnamese opened the operation in the Kampong Trabek area Sunday although they were ordered out of the area by the Cambodian government two months ago on grounds they were committing atrocities against Cambodian civilians there.

The U.S. command said the North Vietnamese lieutenant was flown to a secret location

Bombs Hit Consulate In Turkey

ISTANBUL, Turkey (UPI)— Two bomb explosions hit the U.S. consulate and a consulate automobile in Istanbul today shortly before Vice President Spiro T. Agnew arrived in Ankara for an official two-day visit to Turkey.

There were no disturbances in Ankara.

The Agnew plane touched down at Ankara Airport at 10:30 a.m. (4:30 a.m. EDT). The bomb explosions had been reported at 12:45 a.m. and 1 a.m.

There were no immediate reports of trouble in Ankara, but in Istanbul, two bombs exploded at the U.S. Sonsulate, and two automobiles, one of them belonging to U.S. cultural Attache Kenton W. Keith, were reported destroyed.

"It's because that man Spiro Agnew is coming," one Istanbul resident told UPI.

In a short statement at the airport, Agnew said that "since 'Kemal' Ataturk, Turkey's first president "gave the new republic its direction and inspiration, Turkey has become and has served as an example and inspiration to several developing countries."

Agnew said Turkey's role in world peace is an important one and added the United States would do everything possible "to help Turkey achieve its desired developments."

Last Americans In DMZ Begin Two-Week Phaseout

SAIGON (UPI) —The U.S. military command said today it has begun phasing out the last American combat soldiers anywhere near the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ).

The two-week phaseout involves more than 2,000 soldiers in several batteries of the 24th Corps Artillery at a string of bases on the DMZ defense line in Quang Tri province and in northern Thua Thien Province.

The beginning of the withdrawal followed by two days the activation of a new South Vietnamese army division in the north to help take up the slack caused by the American pullout and to bolster DMZ defenses.

Also coming out of Quang Tri and Camp Evans, just inside Thua Thien province, will be the Third Squadron, 5th Armored Cavalry, elements of the 101st Airborne Division and engineer and communications units, command spokesmen said.

U.S. troops strength in Vietnam fell by 2,500 men last week, the command said in its weekly statement.

The report said 210,000 GIs, most of them soldiers, remained in the war zone as of Oct. 7.

Army strength fell to 164,000 men, down 2,500 from the week before.

The Air Force lost 300 men and brought their strength to 34,900 men.

But while the Air Force lost, the Navy gained. Because of an influx of replacements, the Navy gained 300 men, raising its total to 10,200 sailors, the command said.

A command spokesman told newsmen that he realized the decline of 2,500 men was far less than the number required per week to meet President Nixon's goal of 184,000 men in Vietnam by Dec. 1.

"We've already said we needed to send home 3,300 men a week starting last week to make the President's 184,000 man goal by Dec. 1," he said. "Obviously, one of these weeks we're going to have to go way over 3,300 to do it."

21 Senators Would Seek U.N. Aid Cut

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)— Sen. James L. Buckley, R-N.Y., said today a group of at least 21 senators will seek a "dramatic reduction" in U.S. financial support of the United Nations if Nationalist China is expelled.

The conservative Republican issued the warning a week before the General Assembly begins debate on a U.S. resolution to seat both Communist China and Nationalist China and an Albanian resolution to give mainland China the seat now occupied by Formosa.

Buckley told a news conference he was acting as spokesman for a group of senators "who feel deeply that the expulsion of the Republic of Nationalist China would be an act of injustice which would require our reevaluation of the

Marin County Fair Will Close Gates At 10 O'Clock Tonight

The 1971 Marin County Fair entered its final day today — it closes at 10 o'clock tonight — following a weekend that saw attendance records set at the new fairgrounds at Marin Civic Center.

Today was Children's Day at the fair, with boys and girls under 12 admitted free.

Long lines of men, women and children filing through the gates to the fairgrounds continued today to fill the various exhibit halls.

Yesterday's attendance soared to 14,022 paid admissions, and an additional 6,837 children under six who were admitted free hiked the overall crowd to 20,859 people.

This surpassed the record-setting 15,983, including 10,637 paid, who attended the fair on Saturday, and helped run up a total attendance for the first three days of the four-day event to 40,298, with 28,234 paid.

"We could never jam in more than 9,500 people a day at our previous site in Ross," said Marcelle McCoy, fair manager, "and it is gratifying to have the people of Marin turn out in such great numbers to enjoy the fair in its new home"

Soon after the gates opened at 10 a.m. yesterday it was apparent that visitors to the fair would top all previous figures.

By 1 p.m., lines a half-hour long were stretched out in front of each of the three ticket windows at the entrance to the fairgrounds.

Mrs. McCoy and Asst. County Administrator Thomas F. Campanella helped take tickets at a fourth window to accommodate the crowds, assisted by A. C. Slinde, executive director of the Tulare County Fair, who was on hand as an observer and who was pressed into service as a ticket seller.

Some 6,000 visitors had paid their way in to the fair by that time, and by 4 p.m. that number had reached 9,600 paid.

At the same time, there were

Firefighters Save Homes From Huge Blaze Near Carpinteria

CARPINTERIA, Calif. (UPI) —A small army of firefighters diverted a massive brush fire Sunday away from outlying homes of this community, but the inferno continued to spread eastward, burning out of control early today along a four-mile front.

The wind-whipped blaze, which has charred more than 9,000 acres, surged to within 300 yards of outlying homes Sunday before the flames were halted with a giant backburn. No structures were damaged.

The main part of the community was safe behind a barrier of fruit orchards and the Pacific Coast highway.

The blaze caused two brief electric failures in communities from Goleta to here and Southern California Edison Co. officials said a major power breakdown was possible in the area.

A transmission line was burned out, affecting 200,000 persons, but an alternate line was switched into use about 20 minutes later.

All power sources for the surrounding cities lie "within the fire area and all could be severed or destroyed," a power company official said. "In that case the result would be a major electric shutdown of indeterminate duration."

The fire, which has claimed four lives and destroyed seven homes since it broke out Wednesday, moved along the coast side of the Santa Ynez mountains in an uninhabited foothill area of Los Padres National forest today.

Its advance has slowed, firemen said, because of dying winds but it was still described as "burning out of control." Since Wednesday it has been whipped by winds up to 40 miles per hour.

"We're keeping our fingers crossed that we'll continue to get a break in the weather," said Tim Huff, a state fire information officer. "But we're making no predictions on containment."

More than 2,100 state and federal firemen battled the blaze as it ripped across a thick carpet of brush from the community of Summerland to here, a distance of eight miles.

"It's up in the rugged canyons now, no homes are threatened," Huff said. "But it's really hard to get in there to dig lines and fight it."

Four bulldozer operators were killed Thursday when flames suddenly spurted through their working area. Two other firemen were seriously burned.

Seven other persons, six firefighters and a resident, have been injured.

Seven homes in the $40,000 to $100,000 range were destroyed near Summerland in the early days of the blaze. The cost—blackened watershed, destroyed homes and property and the cost of the firegighting effort — mounted to nearly $2 million.

Fire officials mounted an all-out aerial attack during the weekend, with 17 air tankers dropping thousands of gallons of water.

Warm Moscow Welcome For Sadat; Talks Are Due

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

President Anwar Sadat of Egypt arrived in Moscow today to discuss his end-of-the-year deadline for peace or war in the Middle East and walked right into the arms of Leonid I. Brezhnev, Alexei N. Kosygin and Nikolai V. Podgorny.

The three-man Kremlin leadership group greeted Sadat warmly as he stepped down from a Soviet-chartered TU134 airliner at Moscow's Vnukovo airport.

The airport was decked with Soviet and Egyptian flags and sixlane boulevards leading out to it were spanned by red and white streamers proclaiming "Soviet-Egyptian friendship will continue."

Diplomatic sources said that was one of the topics Sadat would begin discussing today with the Kremlin leaders. Hard feelings have developed between Moscow and Cairo over the Cairo trial of pro-Soviet leftwingers.

The sources said the talks would center on the options open to Egypt this fall and winter in the confrontation with Israel and which ones will get Soviet backing.

Defense Minister Andrei A. Grechko and Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko were among the airport greeters.

Sadat arrived from atwo-hour talk with the Shah of Iran and a one-day stopover in Kuwait. The Shah personally greeted Sadat as he stopped over in Tehran.

ANWAR SADAT
War options topic

Kosygin had just flown in from visits to Algeria and Morocco where he warned that the tensions in the Middle East could flare once again into open war if no solution to the problems are found. He said the only solution would be for Israel to give up all territory it captured from the Arabs.

Sadat has said several times the Middle East conflict must be settled this year through war or peace and he repeated this statement before leaving Cairo.

"We have reached a decisive point...if we let this year end without taking action...the occupation (of Arab land by the Israelis) will become the status quo," he said.

Political sources in Beirut said Sadat planned to discuss with the Soviet leaders at a series of talks today, Tuesday and Wednesday the alternatives if the current deadlock continues. They said one alternative under consideration would be "heating up" the situation along the Suez Canal or a resumption of the war of attrition against the Israelis.

Sadat's trip to Moscow—the second since he succeeded the late Gamal Abdel Nasser a year ago —comes at a time when Egyptian-Soviet relations are not particularly warm despite a 15-year friendship treaty signed in May.

Ex-Panther Leader Dies By Police Guns

DENVER (UPI)—A former Black Panther leader who said his people were not yet ready for violence died Sunday in a volley of police bullets after he tried to run down a law officer in a panel truck.

Police said James Albert Young Jr., 30, died of multiple gunshot wounds. He died only a few yards from where a Denver policeman was shot to death in a disturbance last week.

Young allegedly stabbed three women during a dispute, tried to run over an officer with his panel truck and was slain when he opened fire on several other police officers.

Investigators said Young, a former mental patient with a police record dating back to the age of 14, used a knife or a pair of scissors to stab three women who were arguing with his wife outside an after-hours club.

Young tried to flee in his panel truck when police arrived and one officer, Patrolman Richard Petry, said he was knocked to the ground by the van.

After a 10-minute chase, police said Young opened fire

Young, former defense minister for the Denver Black Panthers, claimed in 1969 he was instrumental in the escape of Black Panther leader Eldridge Cleaver from the United States. Cleaver denied the claim.

Rogers' View

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers believes expulsion of Taiwan from the United Nations might set "a very dangerous precedent" that could result in 10 other countries losing their seats.

He did not identify the other 10 nations.

The United Nations is expected to take up soon the question of the Chinese seat, now held by Taiwan.

Reagan In Taipei

TAIPEI (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan of California today reassured a Nationalist China of continued U.S. support in defense of Formosa and her seat in the United Nations.

In a speech at an American university club dinner in celebration of Nationalist China's Oct. 10 national day, Reagan said he was authorized to reiterate the United States will "continue honoring our treaty commitments" to Taipei. The republican governor came here Saturday as President Nixon's personal representative.

President Chiang Kai-shek expressed this deep-rooted anxiety and accused the non-Communist world of abandoning his "outstanding but persecuted people who have chosen to resist Communism to the bitter end."

Cardinal's Plan

VIENNA (UPI) — The Austrian government and Roman Catholic church hope Cardinal Jozsef Mindszenty will change his mind about living in Vienna, church and state sources said today.

The sources said the 79-year-old primate of Hungary will be allowed to live here if he insists. But they expressed fear that his presence here would harm both Austria's relations with Hungary and the position of the church within Hungary itself.

Mindszenty went to the Vatican last month after 15 years of asylum in the U.S. embassy in Budapest. He remains, for the moment, the archbishop of Esztergom and, as such, titular leader of the Hungarian church.

Nixon Choice Hit

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — President Nixon has been asked to drop his nomination of Mrs. Romana Banuelos for U.S. Treasurer and select another "more qualified" Mexican-American.

The request was made Sunday by some 300 delegates attending the concluding session of the second annual Mexican-American National issues conference.

Conference chairman Manuel Banda Jr. charged that Nixon failed to consult "responsible" Mexican-American leaders about Mrs. Banuelos nomination and said delegates were "very much dissatisfied" with the way it was handled.

Bridge Dedicated

LAKE HAVASU CITY, Ariz. (UPI) — The 140-year-old London bridge, largest antique ever sold, was reborn Sunday in the hot Arizona desert halfway around the world from the River Thames.

The lord mayor of London, Sir Peter M. Studd, dedicated the reopening of the granite bridge across a segment of the Colorado River. Then he retired to a pub with other dignitaries for stout and beer.

"This grand bridge will continue to inspire men and friendships we've made over the years. What an act of generosity this has been. I hope it will be as hallowed here as it was in England," Sir Peter said.

It took a 40-man crew 23 months to reassemble all 10,276 granite blocks shipped and trucked here in precisely the same order they were when the bridge was built.

Sexton Due Home

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. Army S. Sgt. John C. Sexton Jr., who was released Friday by the Viet Cong in Cambodia after more than two years in captivity, will fly to the United States tomorrow morning, U.S. military spokesmen said today.

Sexton, 23, of Warren, Mich., was undergoing treatment at a U.S. Army hospital near Saigon for old shrapnel wounds and a partially blind eye since his release near Loc Ninh, 70 miles north of Saigon, Friday.

It was not immediately known where Sexton would be taken, but it was understood the ultimate destination would be his hometown of Warren where his family has promised him a Christmas feast to make up for the holidays he missed as a prisoner of war.

Hirohito In Bonn

BONN (UPI) — Emperor Hirohito of Japan arrived from Geneva today for his first visit to Germany, his country's ally during World War II.

The 70-year-old emperor and Empress Nagako landed at Bonn-Cologne airport aboard the imperial DC8 jetliner to begin a three-day visit to West Germany, the last country they will tour on their seven-nation European trip.

The emperor was welcomed at the airport by a deputation headed by Hans Koschnik, president of the Upper House of the Bonn Parliament.

Red China Shakeup Suspected; Mao, Lin Piao May Be Involved

HONG KONG (UPI)—A major shakeup of Communist China's top military command may be under way, diplomatic sources said today. They said it could involve Lin Piao, China's defense minister and the chosen successor to Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

The sources, who specialize in Chinese affairs, said the apparent command changes could be the result of the "incapacity" of Lin Piao. There have been rumors he is ailing or dead, since he has not been seen in public for several months. The first sign of a possible command shakeup was the apparent transfer and possible promotion of the commander of one of the 13 military regions in China, Hsu Shih-yu.

Hsu has been commander of the important Nanking military region for about 15 years. He also is a vice defense minister and, more important, a full member of the powerful 25-member political bureau (politburo) of the Communist party's Central Committee.

A recent provincial radio broadcast from Anhwei identified Hsu's deputy, Liao Jung-piao, as Nanking commander, according to diplomatic sources here. The Anhwei military district is one of three which comprise the Nanking region.

Analysts here speculated that Hsu has been promoted and sent to Peking.

"We can only speculate at this stage," one diplomatic analyst said. "There has been no official confirmation of his transfer. But there are some grounds for speculation that he may have been sent to Peking to take over as the chief of staff or possibly as defense minister. At least, these possibilities cannot be ruled out."

These sources said it was doubtful that Hsu would agree to a transfer to become one of the deputy chiefs of staff since this really would not be a promotion.

"And we have to assume that if he is being transferred it is intended as a boost upward because there has been nothing at all to indicate he would be demoted," the sources said.

China's top military commanders have not appeared in public since an apparent leadership struggle developed in Peking in mid-September.

This situation is believed to have been so serious that it caused cancellation of the traditional National Day mass rally and parade on Oct. 1 in the Chinese capital.

It was specualted earlier that either Mao or Lin Piao had died or was seriously ill. Mao appeared in public for the first time in two months Friday to receive visiting Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie. Mao's appearance, combined with a series of other curious developments still unexplained, heightened speculation that Lin Piao was dead or so ill that he could not perform his duties.

Lin Piao was designated as the "successor" to Mao in the new party constitution, adopted at the ninth party congress in April, 1969. There is no indication that the line of succession after Lin Piao has been set and some analysts believe this may have been what touched off the crisis.

Planners To Discuss Building Moratorium

The Novato Planning Commission, meeting at 8 p.m. today in the Novato Community House, will consider a resolution placing a moratorium on all buildings in Novato.

The moratorium would stop all construction in the city until completion of a new general plan.

The Novato City Council, after a three-hour public hearing on Sept. 30, ordered that such a resolution be drawn up by the planning staff for the commission's consideration tonight.

The commission had been requested by Guthrie R. Greene, president of the North Marin Federation of Homeonwers Association, to halt all construction. Greene said that the member organizations were alarmed over the townhouse and apartment house complexes being constructed in the city.

Other items to be considered by the commission include a 62-unit townhouse project at Hill Road at the Nave Shopping Center for Paul Pickart, an eight-unit apartment house at Railroad Avenue and Logan Street for Fred Mauroni, a five-unit apartment building on San Marin Drive west of San Mateo Way for Major Investments, changing the name of Bugeia Lane to Bahia Drive and a review of the use permit of the Kok-Pit saloon in Sundown Shopping Center east of Highway 101 north of Bolling Drive for Nick Morf.

Kidnapping Reported By 2 Girls, 14

Two 14-year-old Mill Valley girls reported they were kidnapped Friday by a man who picked them up hitchhiking at Dolan's Corners in Tamalpais Valley.

Both escaped unharmed, Marin County sheriff's deputies reported.

The girls — Becky Sue Cahoon of 15 Euterpe Street, and Anne Shaw of 14 Matilda Avenue, told deputies they were hitchhiking to the 7-11 Market on Shoreline Highway and were picked up by a man driving a Mustang.

The man told the girls he was going to Stinson Beach, and he continued driving past the food store, the girls said.

When Miss Cahoon protested, the man turned around and let her out of the car not far from the food store, but before Miss Shaw could get out, he took off again on Shoreline toward Stinson Beach.

When she attempted to open the car door, Miss Shaw told deputies, the man grabbed her by the neck and began choking her but she was finally able to free herself.

Teen-Age Center On The Agenda

A proposal to use Stinson Beach School for a teen center will be considered by the Bolinas-Stinson School board at 8 p.m. today in Bolinas School. The school was heavily damaged in an arson fire in April of last year and has been vacant since that time.

The board will also elect a president to replace Edward Z. Lewis, board president who died in September, and set a date for a special election to fill the vacancy created by Lewis's death.

A report from the superintendent on a proposed transportation policy for the district will be presented to the school board.

Youth Is Arrested In Fair Trespassing

An 18-year-old San Rafael youth got free admission into Marin County Jail yesterday after he tried to sneak into the county fair at the civic center fairgrounds.

Fred Blanchard Harrington, 18, of 112 Twelveoak Hill Drive, was booked on suspicion of trespassing and possessing marijuana and held in lieu of $100 bail to appear in Marin Municipal Court tomorrow.

Marin sheriff's deputies said Harrington and another youth were seen by a security guard at the fair attempting to enter the fairgrounds free of charge by crossing over the lagoon bridge at the rear of the grounds.

As the youths ran from him, the guard, Jimi Hodges, said he heard a loud bang. Thinking they were armed, Hodges said, he fired at the boys.

Harrington, stopped, but his companion continued running and escaped.

A sheriff's deputy summonded by Hodges found one suspected marijuana cigarette in Harrington's pocket, and he was arrested.

Fair manager Marcelle McCoy, said today the only other criminal incident at the fair occurred Friday night when canvas on one of the fences was ripped, apparently to allow persons to sneak into the grounds.

Damage was minor and the canvas was repaired Saturday morning, she said.

FAIR

long lines in front of the moon rock in the space exhibit in the exhibition hall of the Veterans Memorial Building, and at the carnival rides and the boat rides.

A bright sun and balmy fall weather helped attract the crowds during the day, but they continued to stream in even after dark.

By 8 p.m., when the Marin Civic Ballet began its performance in the Veterans Memorial Building theater, more than 13,000 had paid their way into the fair, accompanied by some 6,000 boys and girls under six who were allowed in free.

During the day the portable backdrop for the circular outdoor stage was turned around so that the entertainers could face the large lawn in the center of the fairgrounds.

Hundreds of men, women and children then lolled on the grass while they watched Phil Temple and his magic act, and Dick Zimmerman and Diane perform feats of legerdemain.

WAR

on Highway 7 between the Cambodian towns of Memot and Snuol.

High Vietnamese sources said the release was negotiated with the Communists who originally wanted two of their men released for one American. The South Vietnamese, however, insisted that it be a one-for-one exchange. The United States went along with this, spokesmen said, and flew the NVA lieutenant to Memot-Snuol area.

The highway in that area is under Communist control and is about 20 miles from where heavy fighting has been going on for the past two weeks around the Cambodian plantation border town of Krek.

Sexton was released by the Viet Cong and made his way to Loc Ninh, 70 miles north of Saigon and about nine miles from where he was captured Aug. 12, 1969. He still was under treatment today for old shrapnel wounds and a partially blind right eye at a U.S. Army hospital near Saigon. Plans were being made to fly him home.

A U.S. command spokesman said "the release today was made in response to indications that the enemy would welcome such a release at a given time and place. We have no assurance whatsoever at the present that this reciprocal gesture will lead to the release of additional American prisoners. That, however, is the goal to which we are working."

Men Flee With Cash At Market

Two men stole $410 Saturday from the Food Mart, 709 Fifth Avenue, San Rafael, police reported.

Police said one of the men, described as black, 6-feet tall, 160-170 pounds, medium build and semi-Afro style hair, made the clerk, Melvin B. LaFranchi, ring up a purchase. When the register was open, the other man, described as black, 5-feet, 11-inches tall, 150-160 pounds, slender build, Afro style hair, with a mustache, asked for a package of cigarettes.

While the clerk was getting the cigarettes, the first man grabbed $20 and $10 bills from the register and both men fled on foot, according to the report.

"If the Republic of China is expelled we will immediately introduce legislation calling for a dramatic reduction in the extent of America's financial support of the United Nations," he said.

Buckley conferred with U.S. Ambassador George Bush before issuing the state zevbuckley conferred with U.S.1 - hbassador George Bush before issuing the statement.

The United States over the weekend gained one more cosponsor for its two-China policy which calls for the seating of the Peking government by simple majority and making expulsion of Nationalist China an "important question," requiring a two-thirds majority vote.

The new cosponsor, Mauritius, added its name to 20 other sponsors, including the United States, Japan and Australia, for the expulsion resolution and 17 other sponsors of the Peking resolution.

Nevertheless, the general feeling among the observers was that the U.S. policy will fail and an Albanian resolution calling for outright expulsion of the Taiwan government and seating of Peking will carry.

Bush last week said it was "nip and tuck, very, very close."

The China question will open for discussion one week from today and voting on the issue is scheduled three weeks from today.

There were two questions for debate on this week's agenda.

One is the Southwest Africa issue where the United Nations has claimed jurisdiction for the past five years and South Africa, the administering power, has refused to yield to the world body.

The other is a charge by Zambia that South African security forces have violated Zambian territory in "hot pursuit" of African liberation fighters trying to enter Southwest Africa.

Speakers today were three Arab nations, Saudi Arabia, Southern Yemen (formerly British Aden) and Libya, and the foreign minister of Singapore.

Explosion Kills Five In Georgia

CARTERSVILLE, Ga. (UPI) —Five members of a North Georgia family were killed today when a rural frame home exploded. There were two survivors who were hospitalized.

Authorities identified the victims as Richard Harris, 38, an employe of a chemical firm in Cartersville; his wife, also about 38; and three of their children, Terry, 10; Inez, 13; and Betty Jean, 8.

Ronnie, 16, and Patsy, 15, survived, but were taken to Sam Howell Hospital.

The badly burned bodies of the victims were strewn throughout the ruins of the home and nearby. Two of the children's bodies were found by rescuers on a side porch and one was found in the back yard.

The mother's body was found in the kitchen, under debris. The badly injured Harris was found by neighbors in the front of the house. He died while being taken to the hospital.

Neighbors said there were three explosions and a fire at the Harris home on a dirt road about three miles south of Cartersville.

Civilian Travel Allowances Revised

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The government, in a move expected to save several million dollars annually, put new travel allowances into effect today for all of its 2.6 million civilian employes.

In place of the standard $25 per diem allowance for travel expenses provided since 1969, federal workers now have what is termed a "lodgings-plus" allowance.

5 Die As Church Boiler Explodes

MARIETTA, Ohio (UPI) — At 11:28 a.m., the Sunday School class at the First Baptist Church was discussing the religious implications of Charles Manson's hippie commune. In 17 minutes, Michael Murphy, 30, would dismiss his class.

Suddenly a boiler encased in concrete on the middle floor of the three-story church annex exploded. The floor "crumbled like an eggshell" and tons of concrete, metal and scalding water cascaded down on Murphy's first floor classroom.

The teacher and four of his teen-age students were killed. Fourteen others attending his and other classes in the annex building were injured, one critically.

William Hickman, teaching an adult class 20 feet from the boiler, was flung to the floor by the blast and cut by flying glass. He groped his way through smoke and blackness into an adjacent nursery, where he heard two 1-year-old children crying.

He told police he dug through the rubble of a fallen wall and rescued the three infants.

"I found all three babies and handed them to someone who was standing beside me and I guess they took them out. I think the babies might have suffocated had they not been removed quickly."

Debbie McLendon, 15, recalled from her hospital bed later:

"Our teacher, Mr. Murphy, was interested in the Manson case and we were talking about the religious cults that surrounded the case.

"Then the explosion hit, everything went dark —almost completely black," she said. "For about a minute or two I couldn't see anything. Finally it started to get light in the room and it was filled with steam. Someone yelled, 'get out.'"

The blast, according to Mayor John Burnworth, came only three minutes after the church custodian shut off the boiler when he found the boiler room full of steam and the temperature 30 degrees above normal. The boiler had been started an hour earlier because of the crisp October weather.

"The floor crumbled like an eggshell," Burnworth said. "It just opened up and the boiler, the concrete and steel fell onto a class beneath it. It just blew all to hell."

Methodists Move On Social Concerns

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The United Methodist Church may adopt resolutions advocating amnesty for war resisters, the right to object conscientiously to a specific war, and reduced penalties for marijuana possession.

The resolutions, drafted here during a weekend meeting of the church's 88-member board of christian social concerns, will be considered at a general conference in April in Atlanta.

New Railroad Pact Is Signed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — About 90,000 workers represented by four railroad shopcraft unions have until Nov. 9 to ratify a new agreement with the nation's railroads.

The agreement was signed Friday by the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen, the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers and Blacksmiths, and the Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

Details of the contract were not disclosed pending the ratification vote.

Parade In San Francisco Is Enlivened By Shooting

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— San Franciscans were treated to two parades Sunday and some got more excitement than they bargained for.

More than 75,000 persons turned out for the traditional Columbus Day Parade to honor the man generally credited with the discovery of America.

Police chased the car of a suspected holdup man through the thick auto traffic caused by the Columbus Day parade and cornered him in a Chinatown housing project.

Lief Erikson was also honored. Scandinavian dancers celebrated his earlier discovery with music and folk dances in Golden Gate Park.

The second parade was held in Chinatown, marking the establishment of the Republic of China.

The armed youth allegedly shot at another motorist during the chase.

Officers said the suspect identified himself as Douglas Hom, 21, San Francisco.

He allegedly tried to hold up a service station at gunpoint but suddenly fled when the attendant went to get the money.

Police said the driver of a car matching the description of the holdup vehicle reportedly shot several times at a passing motorist, Michael Mah, 21, in an intersection.

Sunday night the Chinese Community held its annual "Double Ten" parade.

The "double ten" comes from the revolution in China that started on the tenth day of the tenth month of 1911 and led to the overthrow of the Manchu Dynasty.

The parade highlighted a day-long festival and included a block-long, paper dragon that ran through the streets.

Wedding Ferry Sinks — 19 Die

WARSAW (UPI) — Nineteen persons, including the bridegroom's mother, died Sunday when a wooden ferry taking them to a village wedding capsized in the river Visitula, police said today.

The bride and groom were not on the ferry and the wedding went on as planned. "But it was a very sad party," said Maj. Wladyslaw Wierzbinski, commandant of the police station at Kozienice.

Fourteen bodies have been recovered, Wierzbinski said.

EOC's Past, Future To Be Studied

What has Marin's Economic Opportunity Council accomplished since its creation in 1966 and what does it propose to do in the future?

Marin County Board of Supervisors hope to get these answers tomorrow morning at a joint meeting with the EOC board of directors at 9 a.m. in Room 332 of the Civic Center Administration Building.

W. Robert Lomax Jr., EOC executive director, and several EOC board members will discuss programs undertaken such as manpower development and Head Start.

At 10:30 a.m., the county supervisors will reconvene in their chambers for the regular Tuesday session.

Among items on the agenda are:

REDISTRICTING — Supervisors will discuss the state Senate's proposed gerrymandering of Senate district that would leave Marin parceled out to four different senators. County Administrator John F. Barrows will report that Marin's supervisorial districts do not need drastic changes because of proper population distribution.

COURTHOUSE — San Rafael Mayor Paul C. Bettini will appear before the supervisors to see if some arrangement can be made for the city to buy the old courthouse site.

NEW ROUTE — The San Anselmo Chamber of Commerce will ask for investigation of a new north-south route from near Terra Linda.

Mother Killed On Rail Trestle

BOYS RANCH, Tex. (UPI) — Cecil Reynolds, his wife and their three sons —Mitch, 5, Dudley, 8, and Mike, 11 —were walking across a narrow railroad trestle 30 feet above the dry Canadian River bed Sunday when they heard a train.

They were 50 feet from the end of the trestle, but the freight train was only 150 feet away and bearing down on them.

Reynolds grabbed Mitch and ran with Mrs. Reynolds towards the end of the bridge. Unable to reach it in time, the three lay flat on the bed of the tracks.

Mrs. Reynolds was killed and Reynolds and Mitch were critically injured. The other two boys, Mike and Dudley, were able to climb down a ladder on the trestle and were not hurt.

The train slashed Reynolds' back and cut and bruised Mitch. They were taken to an Amarillo hospital.

ADA Criticizes 'Favorite Sons'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Americans for Democratic Action (ADA) says "favorite son" candidacies for presidential nominations are contrary to reform movements in the Republican and Democratic parties.

State delegations often have backed a "favorite son" for President to hold a bloc of votes for bargaining with serious contenders.

The ADA said in a weekend report prepared by a task force that it was even prepared to go to court to block "favorite sons."

Delegations from California, Illinois, Maryland, New Jersey, Ohio, Texas, Massachusetts and the District of Columbia, by ADA calculations, are preparing to enter favorite son candidates at next year's Democratic convention.

Supervisorial Districts Due Some Minor Changes

Marin's five supervisorial districts will not require reapportionment this year because population distribution remains within legal requirements, County Administrator John F. Barrows said yesterday.

Barrows, in a letter which will go to the board of supervisors tomorrow, quoted a report from the county counsel's office which said each of the five districts holds between 17 and 23 per cent of the total county population — within federal guidelines.

Barrows said, however, he would propose minor changes to "improve the community of ikinterests . . . without involving three of the five districts disturbing the population balance."

Present district populations and the supervisors who represent them are:

District 1 (Supervisor John F. McInnis) — 43,677 persons, or 21.20 per cent of total population.

District 2 (Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr.) — 38,000 persons, or 18.88 per cent.

District 3 (Supervisor Michael Wornum) — 47,111 persons, or 22.87 per cent.

District 4 (Supervisor Louis H. Baar) — 36,373 persons, or 17.65 per cent.

District 5 (Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste) — 39,987 persons, or 19.41 per cent.

The county's total population by 1970 count is 206,038.

Changes proposed by Barrows are the shift of 1,240 persons living in east Corte Madera from Wornum's district to Barr's, since Baar now represents the rest of Corte Madera, and transfer of 523 residents in the College Park and Murray Park areas of Larkspur from Arrigoni's district to Baar's. This would bring all of the older section of the city into District 4, Barrows said.

The minor alterations are in sharp contrast to the planned reapportionment of state senatorial districts as unveiled by Sacramento Democrats.

Panel To Decide The Fate Of Landmark Church

Dissident members of the congregation of the First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael have won a round in their efforts to block demolition of the 74-year-old landmark.

The presbytery of the Redwoods region, meeting in Larkspur Friday, agreed to establish a committee of 13 members to study whether the old bluestone structure can be saved or must be razed as too prone to earthquake hazards.

The committee will consist of three members of the presbytery, five of the dissident congregationers, and five persons from the church's session, or governing body — which voted late in January to level the landmark and build a new church.

No meeting date has been set for the study committee. Its members still must be named by the three groups represented, according to Jan Page of San Rafael.

Only One Black College On List

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Only one Negro college ranks among the 100 leading recipients of federal aid, although U.S. contributions to black colleges increased 16 per cent in the past year.

Howard University, which is almost entirely supported by the federal government and the District of Columbia —which receives much of its budget from the federal treasury — was the only predominantly black college listed in a report released over the weekend.

The other 99 colleges receiving the most federal aid in dollar value were predominantly white.

Leader Of 'Third World' Sees Role Of A 'Negotiating Power'

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)— The new chairman of the "Group of 77" developing nations believes the changing global strategic balance could open the way for the Third World to become "a great negotiating power."

Gen. Edgardo Mercado Jarrin, foreign minister of Peru, points to the emergence of China, the rise of Japan as an economic power, the strengthening of the European community through expansion in Common Market membership and the increase in trade between capitalist and communist nations.

"New political and economic powers are emerging. There are harmonizing policies among the more powerful nations. In the Third World we have a new power of negotiation to find new avenues of understanding," Mercado said in an interview while attending the 26th General Assembly.

Mercado, the only U., delegate to address the assembly in uniform complete with a 5-inch square block of decorations, became a spokesman for the developing nations that make up the Third World when Peru was elected last month to head the "Group of 77" which meets in Lima Oct. 25 to Nov. 6.

The loosely knit organization was formed in Algiers in 1964 to coordinate trade and development policies of developing nations in the United Nations. Originally numbering 77 nations —hence the name —it now has 94 member states.

Mercado speak in broad terms of his hopes for "the strategy of development of countries belonging to the Third World"—the developing nations of Asia, Africa, the Middle East and Latin America which seek to remain outside the immediate spheres of the great democratic and socialist powers.

"There is a new meeting ground for third World and developing countries so the Third World can eventually become a great negotiating power," he says. "It is vis a vis the Third World where the world will come to evaluate the new dimensions of peace.

"The future is to be found in the element of diversity."

But Mercado, speaking for his left wing military government, deals with specifics in the political present:

—The nations of the Third World will insist on a voice on the monetary crisis. "We will request at the Lima meeting that we should form a special advisory monetary committee to draft a resolution requesting the General Assembly to call a world monetary conference. No international monetary arrangements will be acceptable if the Third World is not consulted."

—President Nixon's 10 per cent surcharge on imports, intended to improve the U.S. balance of payments, is "unfair" to developing nations which did not create the problem. They therefore should be exempt.

—Peru, as the world's top fishing nation, looks to the United Nations to help protect its rich fishing preserves and wants the General Assembly to "reconsider the dangers" of French nuclear tests in the Pacific. "Obviously, if the slightest danger (of contamination) exists, the tests should cease."

—Peru will not modify its claim to a 200-mile territorial sea —which has resulted in the seizure of U.S. tuna boats fishing without license from Peru —and seeks to have the United Nations incorporate the limit in its new law of the sea.

Third Newton Trial To Begin

OAKLAND (UPI) —Black Panther Party co-founder Huey P. Newton, just back from a visit to Mainland China, is scheduled to go on trial Tuesday for the third time on charges of slaying policeman John Frey.

Newton arrived here Friday after a 10-day visit to China and told newsmen he never considered staying in the Communist nation because, "I would be like a soldier leaving his post if I stayed away from home."

A petition to delay the trial on charges of voluntary manslaughter was turned down Friday by the state court of appeal.

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

West's Excessive Power Is Not 'Enough' To Beat Bid

You never know what is enough unless you know what is more than enough. Blake probably wasn't thinking of bridge when he wrote this proverb, but it certainly applies to West's trump holding. He'd have been much better off with only five instead of seven trumps.

DOUBLE PLUNGE

West didn't count on his partner for any defensive tricks when he doubled four spades. West expected to win his ace, a king or two, and three or four trump tricks. Perhaps that's why his double shook the room.

West confidently opened the ace of hearts and was disappointed to see that his kings would be worth very little since dummy had the ace-queen of each minor suit. Still, West was sure he would win enough trump tricks to pile up a big penalty.

West shifted to the ten of clubs at the second trick, and South won a finesse with dummy's queen. Declarer next led dummy's trump to his own ace, and East's heart discard confirmed South's suspicions about the trump position.

NO CONCESSIONS

A timid player might concede three or four trumps and get it over with, but the actual declarer was made of sterner stuff. South led the jack of diamonds for a finesse. West covered with the king, and dummy's ace won.

South won two more diamond tricks and the ace of clubs, reducing West to six of his original seven trumps. Then declarer led a fourth diamond from dummy, discarding a club from his hand.

MUST RUFF

West had to ruff and then had to return a trump, allowing South to win with the eight of spades. South then led his losing heart, whereupon West was obliged to ruff again. West had to lead trumps once more, giving South a second free finesse.

Nothing could stop declarer from winning a trick with the ten of spades, so that he wound up losing only one heart and two trumps. West's excessive trump length forced him to win his partner's trick and then yield two free finesses to declarer.

New Golden Gate Bridge District buses arrive daily at its Jacoby Street, San Rafael, maintenance facility from the General Motors plant in Michigan. This row of 24 of the air-conditioned luxury coaches arrived during the week end. The bridge district is gearing up for the Dec. 1 start of the system, which will have 154 buses. The $45,000 coaches are checked as they arrive, and only minor electrical problems have been detected in the 51 buses already delivered.

Prosecution Of Angela Is Defended

SACRAMENTO , Calif. (UPI) — Attorney General Evelle Younger said Sunday that, "through deliberate or accidental deceptions, many people have actually come to believe that Angela Davis is being prosecuted because of her sex, race or politics." Younger's office is assisting in the prosecution of Miss Davis on murder and conspiracy charges resulting from the San Rafael Courthouse shootout last year.

He contended that the court system, may for the first time, face a "situation in which the people's case has been prejudiced to an almost unbelievable extent."

"The conditioning process has been so complete," he said, "that many people have forgotten the courthouse shootout and resulting murder that shocked the nation, and don't stop to consider that we are basing the charges on the evidence."

Younger's remarks were made in a tape recording distributed to California radio stations by his office.

President Studying Court Nominees, Wooing Labor

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon today began what he termed "a very busy" two-week period, concentrating on the search for two Supreme Court nominees and seeking organized labor's cooperation with his new economic policy.

The President planned to take advantage of the Columbus Day holiday and a virtually appointment-free calendar to work privately at the White House after a two-day stay at Camp David, his mountaintop retreat in western Maryland.

"I'm going to have a very busy next two weeks—a lot of work to do, for you too, as you will see," Nixon told reporters at Camp David before returning Sunday to the White House.

Neither the President nor his press secretary, Ronald L. Ziegler, would elaborate. But his offhand remark was taken to mean that he soon might announce at least one of his choices to fill the Supreme Court vacancies created when the late Hugo L. Black and John M. Harlan resigned last month.

Speculation focues primarily on Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, the assistant Democratic leader in the Senate who is regarded a "strict constructionist " which the President favors.

Nixon's work schedule also was certain to include efforts to win organized labor's support for his plan to set up a Pay Board and a Price Commission as part of his continuing battle against inflation.

The Pay Board would have 15 members—five each from the general public, labor and management—and Nixon was expected to await the outcome of a Tuesday summit meeting called by AFL-CIO President George Meany before appointing anyone to either that panel or the Price Commission.

Meany and other union leaders have said they want the Pay Board to operate totally free of government intervention and that they are not certain that the administration is prepared to promise such autonomy.

As for the Supreme Court, Nixon and Byrd talked privately Friday during a plane ride to Elkins, W. Va., where they attended a forest festival. They were understood to have discussed the openings on the high court, but neither the 53-year-old senator nor the White House has had any comment on the speculation.

Two announced candidates for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination talked about it Sunday—and took divergent positions on Byrd's qualifications.

Sen. George S. McGovern of South Dakota predicted Byrd would win Senate confirmation if nominated and praised him as a man of "enormous industry and personal pride."

But Sen. Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma said he would oppose Byrd, saying his record did not warrant appointment and that he "has not had the depth of legal experience ... you would want to see appointed to the Supreme Court for life."

Byrd received a law degree in five years after being elected to the Senate in 1958 and after renouncing his membership in the Ku Klux Klan. He voted against the Civil Rights Acts of 1964 and 1965 but supported civil rights legislation passed in 1957, 1960, 1962 and 1968.

Before dealing with these and other matters this week, the President relaxed Sunday at the White House and hosted another in the series of worship services there—this one the first conducted in his own Quaker faith.

Dr. D. Elton Trueblood, a professor at Earlham College in Indiana and a well-known Quaker clergyman, told the gathering of several hundred government officials, sports and entertainment figures that the central problem facing society and its leaders is how to nourish the roots of human action—the soul.

Fight Vowed Over Veto Of VD Bill

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A legislative fight to override Gov. Ronald Reagan's veto of her venereal disease instruction bill was promised today by Assemblyman March K. Fong, D-Oakland.

The measure, AB 950, vetoed last week by Reagan, would permit the instruction in public schools without first requiring parental consent for children to attend the classes.

Current law requires such consent, thus hobbling such instruction, according to Mrs. Fong, because teachers fear losing their credentials when the burden of obtaining consent is imposed on the schools.

Mrs. Fong stressed that her bill would not deprive parents of their right to have their children excused from such instruction.

She appealed to citizens to let their legislators know, especially Republicans, that the veto should be overridden.

Senators Ask Labor To Back President

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Two influential Democratic and Republican senators have asked labor to cooperate with President Nixon's post-freeze economic policies, but two Democratic presidential hopefuls believe the the administration plan favors big business.

Administration officials said labor support was needed to make the cooperative phase of the President's economic plan work.

Presidents George Meany of the AFL-CIO, Leonard Woodcock of the United Auto Workers and Frank Fitzsimmons of the Teamsters Union were scheduled to meet Tuesday to discuss labor's role.

Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., said labor should participate fully in the post-freeze program. Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said politics should be set aside to help Nixon's new policy take effect beginning Nov. 14.

The only declared candidates for the democratic presidential nomination in 1972—Sens. Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma and George McGovern of South Dakota—were reserved.

The overall plan is "still loaded in favor of big business," McGovern said, while Harris said the pay and price boards smacked "too much of a mass of bureaucracy."

Nixon proposes setting up independent boards to keep prices and wages from contributing to inflation. But labor leaders have expressed concern that the already-operating Cost of Living Council, which is interpreting administration economic policy, might overrule the pay board's decisions.

Scout Who Revived Sister Due Medal

A 14-year-old Boy Scout from San Marin has been awarded a national medal of merit by the Boy Scouts of America for saving the life of his two-year-old sister.

Brian Duncan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Duncan, and a member of Troop 42, will receive the award tonight in his troop's monthly court of honor at 7:30 in West Novato School.

Last February Brian's sister, Melissa, went into convulsions and stopped breathing as she slept. Brian, using resuscitation techniques he had learned in scouting, breathed into her nose because her jaws were locked and started her breathing.

The child was rushed to Novato General Hospital where nurses had to use ice water and alcohol rubs to bring down her 105-degree fever.

For his feat the lanky teenager was recommended for the scout's lifesaving award by the Marin Boy Scout Council. The recommendation was approved by the national court of honor.

Brian will also receive six merit badges, star scout rating and two troop assignments tonight. In addition to scouting he is a class officer and member of the football team at Sinaloa Junior High School.

New Dispute; Southstate Dockwork Comes To Halt

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Work on docks in Los Angeles and Long Beach came to a halt Sunday in a new dispute between longshoremen and employers. Elsewhere on the West Coast, cargo was being loaded and unloaded.

A spokesman for the Pacific Maritime Association said no regular work gangs were ordered in the two Southern California ports Sunday morning. The only cargo being handled was on two military vessels and two ships not associated with the PMA.

The dispute between the association and the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union started Saturday morning when dock crews reported for work.

The PMA said it had asked for specialty workers but the union sent others instead.

The workers were turned away and no more have been sent to the waterfront.

Los Angeles and Long Beach combined form the largest West Coast port. Management claims the special men are needed to get the docks back in shape to pave the way for other workers.

The union filed a grievance and federal arbitrator George Love, in a preliminary ruling, upheld the PMA's contention that it was entitled to ask for the special workers who move equipment such as forklifts and cranes.

A PMA spokesman said he doesn't expect a final ruling until Friday at the earliest and "more likely it will come next week," possibly keeping the ports tied up until then.

Meanwhile, longshoremen loaded and unloaded ships at other ports from Seattle to San Diego as the first vessel-carrying cargo destined for Hawaii steamed westward in the Pacific.

The men reported to work for the third day following a back-to-work order issued under the Taft-Hartley Act that suspended a 101-day walkout.

Some longshoremen were unhappy over the federal court order that sent them back to the job and appeared geared for a slower-than–normal pace.

"We're not working very hard," said one grumpy stevedore on the San Francisco docks.

The prolonged strike by 15,000 members of the ILWU brought shortages of food and other supplies to Hawaii. Prices soared during the walkout as supplies dwindled.

The freighter Californian sailed Saturday morning from Vancouver, B.C., for Honolulu under a special charter purchased by the city of Honolulu.

The first vessel bound for the islands out of the San Francisco Bay was the Transoneida. She was departing early today laden with building materials, foodstuffs, toilet paper, napkins, chickens and frozen meat.

If we're to keep up with the competition in the restaurant business these days, we have to offer an advantage of some kind besides just truly superior food and drink. One day someone noticed that our location on the San Rafael Yacht Harbor meant customers could swim directly to our private docks from almost any point in the Bay Area. We checked to see if any of our competitors were stressing this, and none were. So if you don't want to fight traffic getting to a fine restaurant, now you know what to do.

SANDWICH GOODNESS STARTS WITH LANGENDORF BREAD

MANY OF the 22 couples honored at a marriage celebration yesterday at the Synanon facility in Marshall stand behind the wedding cake, baked for the party by Izzy Cohn, (rear, left), who came to Synanon last year. After 12 years of donating goods from his bakery in Southern California, Mr. Cohn sold his bakery and moved into the Synanon facility in Santa Monica.

IT IS hoped by Synanon residents that the marriage celebration will become a semi-annual tradition with a party planned each spring and fall. More than 500 guests attended yesterday's celebration of 21 recent marriages and the renewal of vows for a couple wed more than 20 years. The party was held in the spacious utilitarian building of Synanon.

22 Couples Say Vows Again In Ceremonies At Synanon

By JOAN LISETOR

Twenty one Synanon couples, all married in the eyes of the State of California in the past few weeks, were married in the eyes of the community yesterday in a marriage festival at the Synanon facility at Marshall.

Also taking part in the ceremony were the George Hearsts, who were married more than 20 years ago. Their marriage has taken on a new meaning since they became residents of Synanon, giving them the desire to renew their vows.

More than 500 guests attended the celebration, held inside the spacious living-dining building, where the Synanon store, offices and library are also situated.

FRIENDS AND relatives of the newlyweds and members of the Synanon community from the Santa Monica and Oakland facilities joined the more than 200 residents of Synanon on Tomales Bay for its biggest event yet in the number of people and amount of food.

Festivites began at 11 a.m. with the entrance of the elders. The couples filed into a room adjacent to the living-dining area, where guests were assembled, and received the blessing of Rev. C. Mason Harvey, a former Presbyterian minister, who teaches at the Synanon school in Santa Monica. A group sang "We've Only Just Begun," and the couples performed a mating dance, resembling a minuet.

With the conclusion of the ceremony came congratulatory hugs and kisses and expressions of good wishes, and the party began.

The newlyweds, brides dressed in peasant gowns and bridegrooms in overalls, lead the way to the feast tables, containing trays of turkey, chicken, ham, pastrami,tongue, potato salad, macaroni salad, homebaked breads, cookies and pastries and fruits. The lavish trays, beautifully decorated with fresh vegetable relishes, were replenished by the kitchen staff, wearing snow white chef's outfits, throughout the day and into the evening.

CONVERSATIONS CENTERED around the beauty of the celebration and the hope that it would become a Synanon tradition with a joyous celebration planned for each spring and fall.

Roses and carnations decorated the interior of the otherwise utilitarian building. Center of attention was an elaborate three-tiered wedding cake, baked by Izzy Cohn, who began helping Synanon in its early days 13 years ago by donating the day old bread from his bakery in Ocean Beach to Charles Dederich, Synanon founder. After 12 years of helping Synanon, Mr. Cohn sold his bakery and joined the Synanon community in Santa Monica last year.

The cake was wheeled into the dining room on a cart, and the guests cheered the baker, who cut and served the cake.

Like most wedding celebrations, much activity was for the benefit of the camera.

The day was not without minor mishaps, as when a bowl of water, used for dipping the frosting smudged knife during the cake cutting, toppled on the floor. Like the tables after meals, the mess was cleaned in seconds.

Four Daughters Marry — 'It Was A Humdinger'

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (UPI)—Justin Hund married off all four of his daughters simultaneously Saturday, but the girls went on separate honeymoons.

"It was one humdinger of a wedding," said the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Thomas O'Toole, who performed the ceremonies.

"It's not as bad as four separate weddings would be," added Hund, who made four trips to the altar, each time escorting a different daughter down the aisle at St. Anne's Roman Catholic Church.

Hund made shuttle trips to the alter with Judy, 24, Janice, 23, Joan 22, and Jeannette, 18. There were eight bridesmaids.

Then one by one he handed over the brides —after scampering to the back of the church each time—to the bridegrooms: Gerald Howard, Air Force Lt. Kenneth Smith, Darryl Sellas and Larry Hyder.

Black-Tie Dinner, Ball At Yacht Club

By MOLLY MARIN

British Week was celebrated Saturday night at a black tie regatta dinner and ball at Corinthian Yacht Club in Tiburon where Scottish Highland bagpipers and dancers performed for British guests, American military officers, officials of United California Bank and club members.

The gesture of friendship and trade promotion is held bi-annually in a different country explains John Colver of Belvedere, chairman of the dance and British Week regatta.

The dance was followed yesterday by a regatta for invited classes and divisions, and trophies were presented by E. Herrick Low, vice president of United California Bank.

Among the guests Saturday night were British Consul General James Murray, British Minister for Trade Rt. Hon. Michael Nobel, a member of Parliament; Anthony H. Vine, director of British Week for the British foreign office; Capt. R. D. Butt, Royal Navy, commander of HMS Blake, a heavy cruiser; and "Miss London Stores," Penny Butler.

They joined U.S. Navy and Coast Guard officers and Corinthian club members.

Among Tiburon Peninsula residents attending were Messrs. and Mmes. Sidney Chapin, Colby Howe, Richard Burnstein, Ralph Jennings, Harold Monozon and Mr. Warren Vincent.

A CARMEL OUTING is planned this week by a group of residents of the Tamalpais Retirement Residence in Greenbrae. They will leave Thursday morning and spend the afternoon visiting the little shops in Carmel. Dinner that evening will be at the Pine Inn, where the group will also stay overnight and return on Friday.

MARIN VISITORS aboard the Queen Mary at her berth in Long Beach were Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Medeiros of Sausalito. He was a delegate to the National Postmaster's convention held in Anaheim.

ONE OF THE honored couples, Mr. and Mrs. Randall Rumery, married six days, choose from the elaborate, plentiful buffet of turkey, chicken, tongue, ham, pastrami, potato and macaroni salad, fruits and home baked breads, rolls, cookies and assorted pastries. The feast, which began around noon, continued throughout the day.

A MOMENT to relax for Ann Garrett of the Synanon Oakland facility. Married in the eyes of the State of California two and one half months ago, Ann and her husband were one of 22 couples honored in the public celebration at Synanon, symbolizing their union in the eyes of the community.

THE SPOUSE GAP

Many Joke About Marriage, But. . .

By ROBERT LEE and MARJORIE CASEBIER

Of the making of jokes about marriage there is no end. For instance, there is the old saw which goes: "Marriage is love, love is blind; therefore, marriage is an institution for the blind." Or there is the quip that "all men are born free, but some get married."

LAUGH AT MARRIAGE though we may, the truth of the matter is that the vast majority aspire to the marital status. Indeed, most single young adults search intensely and sometimes desperately, with computer aid, to find a partner to join in the dance of married life. The so-called eligible bachelor is just that, eligible for marriage.

Thus the mating game — that discovery, pursuit, and capture of the right person with whom one is "to live happily ever after" — continues to pervade our conversations, popular songs, books, magazines, and movies. Even when the beaches are littered with the wreck of broken marriages — family members, friends, the individual's own previous one (or more) — the single person still assumes he can find and must find that single other person with whom he can enter the state of wedded bliss.

The marriage mystique is a discernible force drawing two people together, but in and of itself this mystique provides no assurance that the couple so attracted will make a satisfactory match.

IN STUDYING the discrepancy between expectation and realization in the lives of married couples now in the throes of middlescence, we have discovered three primary fields in the couple's prenuptial relationship where the seeds of future difficulty may have been planted: What was meant by "falling in love," how the courtship game was conducted, and the various expectations and images brought to the marriage itself. As these three subjects are briefly explored, the reader is asked to play a game of "remembering it like it was" — applying any descriptions and discoveries to his own experience. By looking backward squarely at the relationship with the marriage partner and "remembering it like it was," we will be enabled to now "face it like it is" and after that to "imagine what it can yet be."

ASK ANY COUPLE why they joined in matrimony and the overwhelming response is, "We fell in love." It may surprise some to learn that "falling in love" — so esteemed as the prerequisite of marriage today — was probably unknown in earlier periods of man's history.

Most of us will readily admit that our culture is preoccupied with the idea of romantic love, and, if we are honest, we must admit that we too are captive to its strong appeal. In romantic love the couple is always young and beautiful, carefree and happy when alone together, with no worries, no responsibilities, and an unending desire and capacity for making love. What a make-believe world! Romantic love as the sole basis for marriage is at best an illusion and at worst an impossibility.

YET SOMETHING in all of us seems to continue to yearn for romantic love, for visions of Camelot, leaving us disappointed and disenchanted when the dream fades.

A second area to discuss in the middlescent marriage game of remembering it like it was brings us back to our courting days. Intimations of the coming spouse gap often pop up while we are playing the courting game. Being aware of how and why you got involved with your marriage partner may provide some clues on the nature of the gap which subsequently developed.

Meeting the right person with whom to enter the bonds of wedlock is certainly no easy matter. One recognizes the truism behind the comedian's quip, "My father got to marry my mother, but I've got to go out and marry a perfect stranger!" Most of us follow a pattern of random dating in which we gradually build up knowledge of the opposite sex and of ourselves in that relationship. Then a particular person emerges from among the dating partners as more interesting or attractive or attentive than the others (and who experiences me the same way) and we advance to "going steady." This "going steady" may happen only once or it may happen a number of times, but at some point we then move on to become engaged and to marrying.

WHILE WE ARE accustomed to "dating-mating-and--debating," this American system has often been considered shocking in other cultures, though it is now practiced rather widely all over the world. A basic factor in the dating system is the freedom of two people to decide to relate to each other. Perhaps one thing we have not always admitted, however, is that this freedom operates within definite limits. For one thing, research has revealed that the greatest determiner in mate selection is sheer propinquity, which is to say, where you happen to live determines whom you meet.

But it is also true that this "freedom" by which we choose a person to date and, eventually, to marry is usually heavily cloaked in the kind of romantic aura we mentioned previously. These emotional feelings are interpreted as love, but it is more likely they are strong feelings of sexual desire, or fear of loneliness, or hunger for approval. People in love have often described the emotion they felt as ecstasy — which actually means a state of being in which the person is beside himself and beyond all reason and self-control. Hence they claim to be "madly in love." Such absorbing and overwhelming feelings of madness can hardly be deemed a proper state from which responsible freedom can be exercised!

With this general situation in mind let us look at some particular aspects of the "courtship routine" where difficulties may occur.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

He Should Have A Belt, Then Tell His Wife What He Thinks

DEAR HELEN:

My new wife left me once because she didn't like my drinking. I'm not a heavy drinker, but liquor makes me outspoken. I promised to shape up and she came home. Everything was going fine until this weekend, after she'd been back three days.

First she wrecked the car ($500 bill). I didn't get mad. Friday night she went to a dinner party and left me home. (I burned my leftovers.) Later I heard I was invited too, but she hadn't told me.

Saturday, she went shopping, charged a bunch of stuff I can't afford, left the house for me to clean, and gave me a TV dinner. When I acted loving, she said "I'm too tired." Still no drink, no temper. (On my part.)

Sunday we went to a party given by her family. I got a new suit, wanting to make a good impression, but my wife didn't even notice it. When we got there she didn't introduce me around. She just started dancing with former boy friends, and there I sat like a lump. I cut in on her once, kissed her on the ear, and she said, "Oh, Harry, don't act dumb."

When I saw her going out in the garden with this big college-type bruiser, I took my first drink. Well, I ended up insulting my mother-in-law.

Now my wife has left me again. This time she swears she won't forgive me. She's beautiful and I love her.

Please tell he how I can get her back. — HARRY.

DEAR HARRY:

Don't try! Your wife will never grow up so long as you take the blame for her faults.

If liquor makes you outspoken, I'd suggest you gulp a good belt and tell her exactly how spoiled and selfish she is. Then: let her beg you back — on your terms, or not at all.

And remember: Time dulls beauty, but it often sharpens a mean disposition. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

My family is staunchly patriarchal, religious and moralistic. Haim's are also, but of another faith. We were drawn together as friends in grade school because we were both immigrants to the U.S. We continued to be friends through high school and college. Such wonderful friends — who can really communicate!

Now we are in mid 20s, both having attained our master's degrees and being settled in excellent careers. With so much intelligence, why then can we not solve our problem? Are we still immature, frightened children?

We are in love. We've known this for almost 10 years. Yet Haim has never held my hand. Our rigid upbringing stands between us like a sword. We are of different, and highly conflicting religions.

In every other area, we feel we are the perfect match. We understand and respect each other, and our love grows so strong that we know we must either part or marry. But our heritage — the unquestioning obedience of child to father with which we were brought up — makes us wonder whether we could ever "comprmise" on religion, our second "father."

When I tell you, Helen that I was never allowed to date in my teens, or even go out unless accompanied by an adult member of my family, and that my dress was "old-country" modest until I started buying my own clothes, you may realize that our European indoctrination is not easily put aside, even when our American education shows us there are other ways.

How can we resolve our conflict? — TWO FRIENDS

DEAR FRIENDS:

By marriage!

At the risk of offending some who believe religious differences are irreconcilable, I say that people who love each other can always come to a workable compromise (even though their parents may not agree).

For me, which route you take to the Great Hereafter isn't nearly so important as how you navigate the here and now. — H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. She will also welcome your own amusing experiences. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

How To Keep Your Child Crash-Safe

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — A group of doctors known as Physicians for Automotive Safety has come to the resuce of parents seeking advice on ways to insure the safety of young children in automobiles.

The doctors have issued a folder entitled "Stop Risking Your Child's Life."

They point out that highway accidents are the leading cause of death for all ages from 1 to 33 and that approximately 1,000 children under the age of 4 are killed in cars every year.

MANY OF these deaths might have been avoided if the victims had been properly "packaged" against the risk of injury. Yet most parents continue to allow youngsters to move around inside the car without restraint.

Because of their small size, they do not often fit properly into the adult-size seat and shoulder belts. For full protection, they need special protective devices.

Even a mother's lap is not safe. In a collision, the child could be crushed between the adult and the vehicle interior. Even if the adult is wearing a lap and shoulder belt, the child could be wrenched free and thrown against the dashboard or ejected from the car altogether.

Tying a child into the same belt used by an adult could be even more injurious because of the extra pressure possible against the child's abdomen.

MOST CAR seats are also too flimsy for proper protection, according to the doctors. Some add extra hazards that could cause injuries, and few can be secured so they will not be thrust forward in a collision.

Harnesses that are secured by merely looping a strap around the back of the car seat may be no better because the seat back itself may fall forward.

Since April 1 of this year, manufacturers have had to comply with a federal law setting minimum standards for children's car seats. A standard for children's harnesses has also been in force for some tim e. But seats and harnesses not meeting these standards continue to remain on the market.

Given a choice, the doctors would choose harnesses as more effective than car seats. But they list several models of each product that meet their approval.

Included are two marketed by automobile manufacturers, Ford's Tot-Guard and General Motors' Infant Carrier. The Tot-Guard, say the doctors, has performed well in simulated crash tests. It consists of a cushion and plastic shield placed in front of the child and strapped tight with a regular lap belt.

GM'S INFANT Carrier is for children unable to sit up. The child is strapped into the carrier with a harness, and the whole thing is then strapped to the seat with a lap belt. The child faces backward. This device is also said to have performed well in crash tests.

Other car seats listed are the Guardian (Price Products Co.), Auto-Safe (Strolee of California) Bobby-Mac (Bobby Mac Co.) and Protecta-Tot (Hamill Manufacturing Co.). Manufacturers offering effective harnesses include American Safety Equipment Corp., Hankscraft Co., Irvin Industries, Rose Manufacturing Co. and Market Forge Co. Labels should say the device meets United States standards.

Silicone Warning

According to the American Medical Association, the use of liquid silicone injections to enlarge breasts has increased considerably in recent years with the onset of the "topless" fad among waitresses and showgirls. The AMA warns against this "unapproved surgical technique", and cites a report from the U.S. Food and Drug Administration of four deaths, following the procedure. "Massive abscesses necessitating surgical removal of the breast, have also followed such injections," an FDA official states.

ON THE AGENDA

Catholic Women Plan To Discuss Legal Aid To Their Schools

Legal assistance to non-public schools will be the major topic at the Thursday meeting of the Marin County Council of the Archdiocesan Council of Catholic Women, according to Mrs. Marie Limon Kennedy, president.

The meeting will take place at 8 p.m. in St. Raphael's School auditorium in San Rafael.

Guest speaker will be Joseph P. McElligott, director of the Sacramento-based Education Division of the California Catholic Conference. McElligott will deal primarily with legislative processes affecting nonpublic schools brought about by recent court rulings on state and national levels.

McElligott is responsible for coordination of federally funded and state administered educational programs and new experimental projects with California's nine diocesan school systems, comprising 780 schools. He is currently chairman of the Educational Research Commission of California.

A native San Franciscan, McElligott received his M.A. degree in school administration and B.A. in education from San Francisco State College.

AN AFTERNOON luncheon and fashion show will be held Thursday at 11:30 a.m. at the home of Dr. Hulda E. Thelander in Tiburon to benefit the Mothers' Milk Bank of the Bay Area.

An outdoor luncheon and informal boutique will be a part of the activities.

Each year babies throughout the Bay Area in need of mothers' milk receive it from the Milk Bank, a volunteer operation. Funds raised will help defray costs of running the bank. Dr. Thelander, Marin and San Francisco pediatrician, is a founder of the 23-year-old bank and now serves as an advisor. She is former chief of staff of Children's Hospital in San Francisco.

Models will be Mmes. M. N. Berry of Ross, William Gaffney of Tiburon and John Mueller of Tiburon. Mmes. Muller and David Hudson of San Rafael are chairmen for the day. Reservations chairman is Mrs. Lawrence Billwiller, 147 Graystone Terrace, San Francisco.

THE VILLAGE Salvage Shop in Tiburon will hold its annual fashion show and boutique on Thursday from 9:30 a.m. to noon. Its theme, "S.O.S: Save Our Shop!," appeals for funds to relocate it. Nearly-new clothes and household items will be sold.

Models will be Mmes. Roderick McKenzie, William King, Thomas Crawford, James Wilson and Rex Jones, all of St. Stephen's Guild; Mmes. John Loiacono, George Gnoss, Knowles Hall, Michael Linwood, John Marr and James Kreidle, all of Reed Union School District; Mmes. Charles Robertson, Kenneth Hirsch, Gaylord Vasconcellos, R. E. Baker and Gordon Rice, all of St. Hilary's Church; Mmes. Gerry Carlson, Martin Williams, James W. Gwin, James Leonard and Paul Steward, all of Westminster Presbyterian Church.

JOSEPH P. MC ELLIGOTT
San Rafael speaker

Committee members are Mmes. Marguerite Pruett, G. R. Jones, Steve Manning, John Edgar, James Ballard, Walter Crain, John Fulton, Peter Watson, Al Aramburu, Charles McGranaghan, Victor Avilla and Joseph Ramblas and Miss Virginia Simpson.

LAUREL REYNOLDS of Berkeley, conservationist, noted photographer and film maker, will present her film "World at Your Door" for the Novato Garden Club at noon tomorrow at the Community House in Novato.

A luncheon will precede the program, with Mrs. Frank Baccaglio and Mrs. Sam Marzell as chairmen.

Pride Is Tops In Country Music

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Charley Pride, country music's only major black singer, captured the industry's top awards Sunday night — entertainer of the year and male vocalist of the year.

For Pride who grew up in Mississippi cotton fields listening to the Grand Ole Opry on an old radio, the fifth annual country Music Association awards ended a long series of disappointments.

Often he had been nominated but never honored. The packed house at the Grand Ole Opry House gave him a standing ovation when he appeared and sang "Kiss An Angel Good Morning."

"Everyone told me it was possible," said Pride, who lives in Dallas, Tex., "When you are even nominated, I feel like you are a winner."

Pride almost didn't become a country singer, choosing professional baseball instead. But when the New York Mets told him he was too old, he traded his bat for a guitar.

Lynn Anderson, the pretty blonde whose hit "Rose Garden" made both country and popular music charts, won the honor as female vocalist of the year in a nationally televised program hosted by Tennessee Ernie Ford.

Art Satherly, the Englishman who discovered such stars as Gene Autry, Bob Wills and Roy Acuff, was inducted into the country music hall of fame from a field of five nominees.

Sammi Smith, who recorded Krish Kristofferson's "Help Me Make It Through the Night," wonbest single record of the year.

Ray Price was awarded the honor for his album of the year, "I Won't Mention It Again."

In other categories, "Easy Living," written and sung by Freddie Hart, won song of the year; the Osborne Brothers were the vocal group of the year; Porter Wagoner and Dolly Parton were the vocal duo of the year; Danny Davis and the Nashville Brass won the instrumental group of the year and Jerry Reed was named the instrumentalist of the year for his guitar playing.

For the past several years, the awards have been dominated by the winner of entertainer of the year honor: Glen Campbell, 1968, Johnny Cash, 1969 and Merle Haggard, 1970.

However, this year Pride was the only nominee receiving more than one award.

"I'm shaking again. I don't talk too well. But I'm just happy," Pride said when he walked up to receive country music's greatest honor.

A Ranchero Setting For 'Twelfth Night'

Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night," staged in an early California setting will open Nov. 5 at the College of Marin's fine arts theater, the campus drama department has announced.

It will be directed by instructor James C. Dunn, who successfully transposed the Bard's "Taming of the Shrew" into a Wild West comedy, and will attempt to work the same magic with "Twelfth Night."

The love-sick Duke Orsino, played by Reynold Acevedo of Mill Valley, will be casted as a Spanish Don in the days of land-grant Spanish Rancheros.

His court, customed in the Hollywood-created image of the era, will be a collection of Caballeros, mantilla-clad ladies and serenading mariachis.

The cast, selected from the college's drama department, also includes: Barry Bauman of San Anselmo as Curio; Bette Besuner of Petaluma as Maria, Joel Blum of San Anselmo as Sebastian, John Chapot of Fairfax as Valentino, William Childs of Inverness as Fabian, Pamela Contos of Belvedere as Olivia.

Adrienne Farrel of Greenbrae, Laurie Nichols of Mill Valley, Irene Ferrari of Novato and Kathy Rainey of Ross as ladies to Olivia; Shelly Lipkin of San Rafael as Seste, J.W. Harper of Fairfax as Sirtoby Belch, Alan Kernan of Kentfield as Sir Andrew Aguecheek, Jack Livingston of San Rafael as the sea captain, Robin Williams of Tiburon as Malvolio, Ann Long of Mill Valley as Viola, Daniel Long of Mill Valley, Charles Conein of Fairfax and Tom Spilsbury of Mill Valley as officers and Mark DeGroft and Elwood Markham of Mill Valley as musicians.

Tickets and reservations will be available at the college box office Oct. 26.

Dancers To Perform At Auditorium

San Francisco's 40-member Russian Dance Ensemble will perform in the new Veterans Memorial Building at the Civic Center at 3 p.m. next Sunday.

The troupe, directed by choreographer Vladimir Perfiloff, will perform dances of Russia, the Balkans, Romania and the Ukraine.

Baritone Ivan Assur and tenor Vladimir Martynenko will sing.

Boris Vertoogin, president of the Russian Center in San Francisco and owner of the Russian Renaissance Restaurant, said that the Russian Dance Ensemble is a nonprofit youth organization established "for the purpose of preservation and introduction of folk dancing among the American youth as a healthy and clean form of physical activity."

The only source of income for the organization is an annual concert tour of Bay Area cities, Vertoogin said.

Tickets for the performance are now on sale at the Memorial Box Office at the Civic Center.

British Soldier Dies Of Gunshot Wounds

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—British army Pvt. Roger Wilkins died in a Belfast hospital today, two weeks after being shot in the head by gunmen in Londonderry, an army spokesman said.

The death of Wilkins, 32, a father of five, brought to 25 the number of soldiers killed in the British province in 1971. In all, 87 persons have died in this year's bloodshed.

Barbershop Singers To Harmonize

The Marin Barbershoppers' 18th annual show will fill Angelico Hall of San Rafael's Dominican College with close harmony Saturday, beginning at 8 p.m.

The organization — Marin's chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America — will dedicate the program to its director, Ned Hardin, music instructor at Balboa High School in San Francisco, who is recovering from a heart attack.

The 400 chapters of the SPEBSQA support the Institute of Logopedics in Wichita, Kan., for children with severe defects, with proceeds from their programs.

Featured Saturday, besides the Marin Barbershop Chorus, will be three local quartets, the Golden Gaters, the Big Time Operators, and the Bay Rums, plus two out-of-county quartets, the Fancy Dans and the Outer Limits.

Members of the Golden Gaters are John Ahlers, Howard Henry, Ron Murray, and Jack Dale. The Bay Rums are Stan Elkjer, Drew Fossgren, Bob Hibbs, and Al Franham. The Big Time Operators are Ken Moran, Frank C. Sutliffe, Maury Carlson, and the chapter president, Tom Knight.

The Outer Limits is a female quartet recently returned from entertaining U. S. troops in Vietnam. Members are Rosalie Kelly, Phyllis Sagen, Jackie Gleed, and Barbara Bianchi. The Fancy Dans, Far Western District champions in SPEBSQSA competition, are Lloyd Oksen, Bob Browne, Clark Daniel, and Jim Purcell.

Japan Militarism Charge Held False

TOKYO (UPI)—Japan's top defense official said today that charges of Japan's return to militarism were unfounded and that his country's defense policy ruled out any overseas military commitments, including a United Nations peacekeeping mission.

Naomi Nishimura, director general of the self-defense forces, told foreign newsmen that Japan's primary means of protecting its interests were through economic sanctions, not the use of military force.

Jackson Criticized In GOP Newsletter

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Republican National Committee, in its weekly newsletter, says Sen. Henry M. Jackson, DWash., has made a "sudden swing leftward on the Vietnam War" in an effort to improve his presidential prospects.

But the GOP committee said Jackson has lost "the goodwill of millions of Republicans" as well as that of moderate Democrats by trying to please "the ultraliberals who now dominate his party." Moreover, the newsletter said "there is no indication that Jackson's waffling on Vietnam has helped him in the country and it is possible it will hurt his chances" in Florida's primary election in March.

Catholics Grapple With Thorny Celibacy Issue

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Archbishop Joachym Ndayen summed up the priest problem —and its solution —for many Roman Catholic churchmen.

"Let us ordain married men now," said the archbishop from the Central African Republic. "Otherwise, within 10 years I will have to go back to planting onions."

Ndayen was voicing a fear that the priesthood might dry up and the Catholic church itself wither.

Many of his fellow 209 delegates at the Third International Synod of Bishops agreed today, as they resumed work on the thorny question of the priesthood, that an end to the celibacy law might ease the strain caused by sharp drops in the priestly population.

Other bishops and cardinals did not feel the church should end a 700-year-old law forbidding married men becoming priests.

About 60 more cardinals and bishops announced their intention Saturday to speak on the subject, now in its 10th day of debate, and Vatican sources said many of them would make the problem of the diminishing priesthood the main point of their remarks.

Philippines Whipped By Tropical Storm

MANILA (UPI) — Tropical storm Faye whipped across the northern provinces of the Philippines' major island of Luzon Sunday and early today, leaving death and widespread flooding in its wake.

Police and provincial authorities reported that at least 11 people died from drowning and landslides.

COLUMBUS DAY RITUAL

J. Cervetto, San Rafael, Discovers America Again

By MARY LEYDECKER

Today was once more the big day of the year for Joseph Cervetto of San Rafael.

For the 14th year, he donned his Renaissance velvets and plumed bonnet and set forth from Marin to discover the New World in San Francisco's Aquatic Park.

Well, not exactly; that's how it used to be, but racial sensitivities and the new militance have somewhat altered the script for the pageant in which the 62-year-old maintenance company entrepreneur has been the perennial star.

He now lands in Spain celebrating his triumphant return from the Americas.

Outside of a few problems with Indians, who have refused to answer telephone calls or letters of invitation to participate in today's festivities, the cheerful Cervetto has been looking forward to his annual portrayal of the role of his hero.

At his San Rafael canalside home the other day, Cervetto donned his new costume made for him last year in Italy according to specifications of the mayor of Genoa.

With his plumed hat, long-haired wig, cape, elaborate pantaloons, tights and buckled shoes, Cervetto became Columbus.

By his side was his sword (made in Toledo, Spain, "just like Columbus") as he sat regally in a chair on his patio overlooking the canal where his yacht, the Santa Maria, is berthed.

Cervetto, who came to the United States from Genoa (also the home town of Columbus), was president of the annual Columbus Day celebration in San Francisco when he took over the role in 1957.

He found in his new role that "people kept asking me questions," such as about the length of the first voyage (68 days, Cervetto said) and how Columbus happned to land in Central America. It was the search for answers that made him a student of Columbus.

"That Colombo — he a very smart fella," Cervetto said, answering his own question. "He had the genius to start from Africa and he knew he would hit China if he did."

Actually, of course, Columbus landed in San Salvador, an island that Cervetto has visited once and plans to return to this year.

Cervetto has traveled the world in his search to find out "what did he see" as he retraces Columbus's steps. His memories are a combination of his trips and his avid reading of everything he can learn about his hero.

Cervetto recounted numerous vignettes about Columbus, but one of his favorites was about how the explorer outwitted some Indians on Jamaica.

"The poor fella thought he was finished," Cervetto said, but because Columbus knew an eclipse was coming, he threatened the Indians with taking away their moon if they didn't build him a boat so he could leave the island after his own ship was smashed in a storm.

"Those guys gave him anything he wanted after the eclipse came," Cervetto said.

Cervetto said that three times this year he had called the chief of the Indians who formerly participated in the annual celebration, but that his calls went unanswered. Then a letter was written, but still there was no answer.

The Indians, apparently tired of being discovered by white men, also boycotted last year's festival but Cervetto is unconcerned.

"We have the pageant, like every year, only we call it landing in Spain," he said.

In fact, Cervetto said, portraying Columbus's triumphant return to Spain is more appropriate for his elegant new costume, which is a detailed copy of the "suit Colombo wore when he went to see Isabella."

Aboard ship, Columbus wore a simple tunic, Cervetto added.

Why does he spend so much time on Columbus Day?

"If we don't keep it alive, who's going to do it?" he answered.

"We (the Italian community) fought like hell for this holiday," he added.

His 16-year-old son Joseph, a student at Marin Catholic High School, is following his father's love for Columbus and has played a role in the pageant for many years.

Recently he took his father's place when Cervetto was busy elsewhere.

"He calls himself 'Diego, the son of Columbus,' " Cervetto's wife, Pamela, said.

As for his own discovery of America, Cervetto started in San Francisco as a janitor and built up a firm in which he now has "a few hundred men working."

Looking around at his pleasant home, garden and boat, Cervetto quickly said, "I work hard, though. I've cleaned a lot of toilets and washed a lot of windows."

As he pointed out Columbus's route on an old map in his living room, his wife (who is not Italian) said with a slight smile, "I just heard on the radio they've renamed it 'Leif Erikson Day.' "

"Oh my God," Cervetto said.

Board To Eye Agency Merger

The Novato Sanitary District Board will discuss a proposed consolidation of county water and sewerage agencies in an adjourned meeting at 6 p.m. today in the north Marin County Water District office.

A consolidation has been proposed for the two major water districts and all of the sanitary districts in the county.

The board also will discuss a sewage study for Marin and Sonoma counties.

Ordinance On Zoning Before Panel

The Fairfax City Council will be asked tomorrow night to set a public hearing on a proposed zoning ordinance.

The hearing is being requested by a committee to Preserve Land and Nature (PLAN) which was organized to preserve Marin Town and Country Club in Fairfax for recreation and prevent its development for apartment housing.

PLAN's letter requesting a hearing be set sometime next month makes no mention of the town and country club, but does say the group is primarily interested in a section of the proposed ordinance dealing with establishment of a commercial-recreational zone.

The proposed ordinance has been approved by the city's planning commission and is awaiting action by the city council.

According to the council's agenda, there will be no official discussion tomorrow when the council meets at 8 p.m. on the city's effort to fire Police Chief James R. Orr.

Orr's attorney, Leonard Shaw said today he has requested a hearing on the firing by the city's board of review, but no date has been set.

4 Youths Cited In Burglary Of Hub Log Cabin

Four youths have been cited to juvenile authorities on suspicion of burglarizing the American Legion Log Cabin in San Anselmo, police said today.

Officers said two youths, James Robert Zook, 17, of Ukiah and Glen Charles McClure, 16, of 1030 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, San Anselmo, were cited yesterday following investigation of the Wednesday night burglary.

Cited today were Guy D'Amico, 16, of 54 Oakland Avenue and Richard E. MacCarthy, 15, of 22 Grove Hill, San Anselmo, officers said.

According to officers, two of the youths were stopped for reckless driving yesterday near the legion cabin and a quantity of beer and liquor believed stolen from the meeting hall was discovered in the auto.

Police said the stolen items included three cases of beer, 17 bottles of liquor and a quantity of cigarettes.

Two Swept To Death As Boat Capsizes

Two Sacramento area men drowned Saturday when their boat capsized in the ocean off of Point Reyes Peninsula.

Marin County Sheriff's deputies identified the men as Donald Kroma, 48, of Carmichael, and William P. Hood, 49, of Sacramento.

They were among a group of eight Sacramento men who had taken two 16-foot outboards out of Lawson's Landing, Dillon Beach, for a day of fishing.

When the water got too rough, survivors told deputies, both boats headed back toward shore. A large wave hit them from the rear, overturning a boat owned by Lonnie E. Massey, 56, of Fair Oaks, and throwing Massey, Kroma, Hood and Charles E. Williams, 47, of Orangevale, overboard.

The second boat, could not get near the victims because of rough surf, but radioed for help.

A boat operated by William Volger and Paul DeVall of Lawson's Landing went out and picked up Massey and Williams and the bodies of Kroma and Hood.

Massey and Williams were held overnight for observation at Hillcrest Hospital in Petaluma and released yesterday.

Funerals were pending today for Kroma and Hood at Mount Vernon Memorial Park in Sacramento.

PG&E answers most-asked questions about nuclear power.

To serve increasing energy needs in Northern and Central California, we must build new electric generating plants. Nuclear plants are the best answer and the most environmentally acceptable. Nuclear fuel is clean, safe, readily available, economical and an ideal source of controlled heat in power plants. Some people have questions about this relatively new energy source. Here, experts answer the most frequent queries.

Is it safe to live next door to a nuclear power plant?

Yes. Nuclear plants are constructed and designed with multiple back-up safety systems to prevent release of radioactivity. Conditions required for an atomic explosion are not present in a nuclear power plant. The safety record of the nuclear power industry is unparalleled. Not one person has suffered radiation injury in the 14 years of U.S. utility operating experience. Today there are 22 nuclear units in operation in the U.S., 55 under construction and 44 planned.

What is the radiation exposure to a person living near a nuclear power plant?

Radiation from a typical modern nuclear plant would be about 5 millirem per year or less. A person living 24 hours a day next door to a typical modern nuclear plant continuously for 10 years would be exposed to about the amount of radiation he would receive from one chest x-ray. Radiation at the plant boundary would add only 1/25 to the radiation people receive annually from natural sources at sea level, and even a smaller fraction at higher elevations because natural background radiation increases at upper altitudes. However, natural radioactivity in any city ranges in an unpredictable manner and commonly causes larger variations in radiation levels than a nuclear power plant would.

Are radiation protection standards conservative and safe?

Yes. On January 15, 1971 the National Council on Radiation Protection and Measurements, made up of 65 eminent U.S. radiation experts, reaffirmed that the existing 500 millirem per year limit on radiation from a plant is well within requirements for public safety. The Atomic Energy Commission has found that improvements in technology and experience with nuclear power plants make it practicable to achieve limits far below that already conservative standard and on June 7, 1971 proposed a plant radiation criterion of 5 millirem annually —a 100-fold reduction.

Is a nuclear power plant safe in an earthquake?

Yes. We employ eminently qualified geological and seismological consultants to study all aspects of local and regional geology and seismology to determine the earthquake potential at a proposed plant site. Then, the plant is designed to assure that it will withstand the most severe earthquake conditions. This procedure results in a facility many times stronger than required by earthquake building codes.

How do you dispose of radioactive waste from nuclear plants?

All radioactive by-products are controlled under strict AEC regulation. Small amounts of radioactive gases and liquids are released under highly controlled conditions, resulting in less than 5 millirem per year possible exposure to an individual living 24 hours a day next door to the plant. Solid wastes are sealed in containers and sent to AEC-licensed sites for long-term storage. Radioactive material remaining within the spent fuel is sent to reprocessing plants where the "nuclear ashes" are removed before ultimate storage in solid form underground at government supervised sites.

How does the warmed water from a nuclear power plant affect marine life?

Plants fueled by natural gas or oil need cooling water to condense the steam from the turbine. So do nuclear plants. This water never enters the nuclear reactor. From the condenser it is returned to the ocean, bay or river after being warmed about 18°F. (In parts of San Francisco, Morro and similar bays, there are natural daily water temperature variations of more than 20°F.) The slightly warmed water from power stations causes warm water plants and animals to increase in number over cold water types. However, studies over the past 20 years show that this effect is generally confined to within 500 feet of the outlet.

What about regulation of nuclear power plants?

No activity of industry or government is subjected to more regulation or scrutiny than the nuclear industry. More than 30 different government agencies have been involved in the planning of our Diablo plant.

If you have other questions, we'll appreciate the opportunity to answer them for you. Write Nuclear Information, PG&E, 77 Beale Street, San Francisco, California 94106. PG and E

News In Old Files Is History Today

"Today's news is tomorrow's history."

Also, yesterday's news is today's history, and history repeats itself.

The truth of these statements is easily affirmed by thumbing through a few old newspaper files. It is appropriate to do so today — the opening day of National Newspaper Week.

TAKE A BIT of old San Rafael history, for instance.

The first two meetings of the San Rafael town board following incorporation, on April 9 and 10, 1874, were duly recorded in that week's issue of the Marin Journal. After organizing on April 9, the newspaper related, the board heard from "the committee on petitions," which "reported favorably on petition for the prevention of animals running at large."

The board met again the following night and adopted San Rafael's Ordinance No. 1, "relating to animals roving in the streets."

"On and after the 20th day of April, 1874," it decreed, "it shall be unlawful for any person to permit or suffer any horse, mare, colt, cow, calf, bull, ox, mule, ass, sheep, goat, hog or pig to run at large in the public streets." Violation was made a misdemeanor, with a $5 fine for each offense.

THINGS HAVEN'T CHANGED so much in 97 years. Complaints about animals running loose now mostly concern dogs, but the San Rafael City Council had a long fight that went through the courts in recent years over a citizen's keeping horses in his back yard.

The 1874 Marin Journal files yield other items that have a contemporary flavor also.

For instance, on June 6 of that year San Rafael residents approved the town's first bond issue — for $10,000 for the construction of sanitary sewers.

The amount was far different, but the need was the same and so was the public response when the city's voters in June of last year approved a $1,105,000 sewer bond issue.

EVEN MASS TRANSIT was a current news subject in the first year of San Rafael's incorporation. The gasoline motor-driven vehicle was still far in the future (the town's Ordinance No. 3, adopted April 22, 1874, set up license fees for various categories of business, among them being "15 per wagon for carrying passengers"), but railroad promotions were in the air throughout the nation in 1874, and Marin was no exception. The biggest one here, as recorded in the pages of those old Marin Journals, was organization of the Sonoma and Marin Railway, the stock for which was actively promoted.

Yesterday's news is today's history. And history repeats itself. It's all there in the newspapers.

Marin Raccoons' Union

Marin's raccoons may not be college material, but we have been solemnly assured that the Inverness branch of the family has a union. When one finds an interesting garbage can which he cannot open, he calls in a work gang. Working together, they can usually do the job.

We wonder, do they pay dues? Perhaps in tongue-polished sardine tins. Or could it be that one garbage can lid equals 10 sardine cans?

Marks May Replace Marler As Republicans' Sacrifice

Gerrymander is a polite word for what legislators do when they reapportion districts, and this year it's really a euphemism.

But despite the abortion delivered after 10 months by Senate Democrats, we are confident that Sacramento politicians will come up finally with districts even worse than those they unveiled last week. (The Democrats' plan would give Marin four senators, split 20 of its governing districts, and make the county the small tail on three big dog districts.)

Heavy backstage action now centers about Republican Sen. Fred W. Marler Jr. of Redding, Shasta County. Marler was selected by the Democrats as the sacrifice when one Northern California district had to be transplanted to compensate for Southern California's population growth.

But Marler is working his fellow Republicans to come up with a new pigeon, and it will have to be another Republican to appeal to the Democrats. Signs point to one alternate — Sen. Milton Marks of San Francisco.

Virtually no other Republican votes more predictably with the Democrats, hardly an asset with Republicans casting about for someone to replace Marler as the sacrifice.

Marler has a lot going for him — seniority, position as minority floor leader, ability as an effective vote getter, and close relations with the governor — who could veto the Democrats' plan.

MARIN EVEN MAY be lucky enough to end up with only two or three senators instead of four.

To appreciate the reapportionment mess, look at this. Marler could move across town in time this year to run next year against Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, then continue to represent his old Second District if he lost to Collier. It would make no difference that Marler would continue living in Shasta County while representing a district in Los Angeles, which is where the Democrats transplanted his old district.

Then Marler could move back across town to the Fourth District of Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, and run against Behr in 1974 — all the time remaining a senator.

As for Behr, he would be in a bad way if he had to face Marler in a Republican primary election.

TIBURON CITY Councilman Branwell Fanning is in the lucky position of being able to vote to turn down plans for property his city council has voted to condemn. This gives him power to help depreciate its value.

His lucky chance will come when he votes later this month as a member of the Bay Conservation and Development Commission on an apartment project planned for Strawberry Cove. Some would call it a conflict of interest, but he did not indicate any concern when he sat as a commissioner last week when the plans were heard.

The city council, incidentally, will have to adjudicate more than its purchase price because the cove property is outside the city. The council also will have to prove that the purchase would be in the greatest public good and the least private injury.

The council conceived of the purhcase as a political ploy in its annexation of Strawberry, but now wants the parcel even if the annexation fails. It reminds us of a fisherman diving into the water to eat his own bait.

Make Dog Owners Prove Responsibility

Much has been written about the "dog problem" in Marin County and elsewhere, the problem being loose dogs, soiling of lawns and sidewalks, etc. It strikes me that the licencing policy is all backwards. Instead of licencing dogs, would it not make more sense to licence owners and require that ownership of a dog be contingent upon certain conditions? For example, a citizen in order to be a licenced dog owner should be made to prove that he has sufficient space, fences, etc., to provide for the welfare of the dog and to prevent the dog from being a nuisance to others. People who truly love dogs (and I count myself as one) would not subject them to the hazards of traffic, theft and other dangers; and a good neighbor and citizen should not object to the responsibility of keeping the dog quiet at night, cleaning up after him and otherwise preventing him from infringing on the safety and comfort of others.

Resident Finds Sad State In Fairfax

It is indeed a sad state of affairs, when the Fairfax City Council, against the wishes of most of the citizens, hires a city administrator from the metropolitan Los Angeles area to administer to a sleepy village type town like Fairfax.

What's next? . . . Parking meters? . . . Tow-away trucks?

The present city council should hide their heads in shame, they are sure as hell creating a very bad image for all small town city councils.

Secret closed hearings . . . undisclosed testimony, vague and mysterious charges against a police chief with 20 years of experience in law enforcement.

So much baloney it's really pathetic. Chief Jim Orr has created in Fairfax, a fine, efficient department, a credit to any community.

It is indeed hard to believe that they would try to ruin a man's long career in law enforcement when good cops are so hard to find these days.

I doubt whether we have heard the last of this indiscretion by our super-secret city fathers.

Civic Center Drink Issue Not Dead

It has been brought to my attention that the Marin County supervisors have again affirmed their commitment to acquire a license for serving alcoholic beverages in the cafeteria of our county administrative complex. To my knowledge, the only information which has been provided the citizens of Marin County concerning our supervisorial intent, was: (1) a couple of signs (standard form) at the entrances of the Civic Center buildings, and at one of the cafeteria entrances, (2) a notice in the legal section of the Independent-Journal, and (3) one article attributing some evaluative statements to the district director of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Department, located in Santa Rosa.

It is my contention that this is an inadequate exposure of an important issue before Marin County residents. In consequence, I should like to solicit responses by interested citizens willing to evaluate objectively this unprecedented action by the majority of the Marin County supervisors.

It is my understanding that the only persons allowed a hearing are those who have protested, according to the standard procedures suggested by the Alcoholic Beverage Control. I was informed that, if the licensing were approved, there would be a protestants' hearing; or if the license were denied, then the applicants (Marin County supervisors) would have a similar alternative. By this affirmation of intent, it would appear there will be a request for public hearing, regardless of the action by the Alcoholic Beverage Control. Thus, my solicitation for interested citizens support.

Judicial Tyranny Threatens Schools

Children and parents in Marin County are in danger. Not long ago a proposal was made that the schools of Marin County ought to be integrated with those of the City of San Francisco. A judge in Washington, D.C., expressed regret that he did not have the power to order the integration of District of Columbia schools with those of nearby Maryland and Virginia. Now a judge in Detroit has declared that he has the power to order the integration of schools in that city with the schools of the surrounding suburbs.

Up to now, so far as I know, integration has been ordered within one district. The Detroit judge has indicated that he intends to exercise the authority which he asserts he has, and order integration of city schools and suburbs, several school districts. You may be sure that as soon as that order has been issued, a similar order will be sought for Marin County and the City of San Francisco. Children from Kentfield will be transported by bus to schools in the Fillmore district.

Judicial tyranny is an insidious thing. It grows as the judges become more and more corrupted by their unrestrained power. A non-lawyer thinks that laws are written in constitutions and statute books, but lawyers constantly cite "case law," decisions of judges, outside constitutions, frequently contrary to the customary meanings of words in statute law, as written there by legislatures. Advocates of this tyranny now cite the acquiescence of parents in the busing of their children. Probably nine-tenths of the people in Russia acquiesce in the tyranny under which they must live. Does that make it right?

If we are to retain the few liberties we have left, and, hopefully, to recover some of those we have lost, we must constantly protest against tyranny and seek ways to overcome this tyrannical power.

Thieu Election Not All Bad; Shows People Want To Vote

WASHINGTON — The instant reaction of some American commentators to the Vietnamese voting gives an unbalanced picture. What happened needs to be assessed from two standpoints:

From the standpoint of internal Vietnamese democracy which it seriously deformed.

From the standpoint of the ability of South Vietnam to defend itself and the prospect of faster U.S. withdrawal. Both are enhanced.

I would not minimize one bit the inadequacy and unfairness of the uncontested presidential election. But there are significant gains and we need to keep the setback and the gains in reasonable perspective.

The gains are these:

THE MASSIVE TURNOUT of the South Vietnamese voters shows that the people of South Vietnam wanted to use their democratic rights — and did so. Nearly 88 per cent of the electorate went to the polls and that is far higher than in any national election in the United States and higher than in the most politically conscious parliamentary governments of Western Europe.

Whatever their motives for voting — and motives are hardly measurable in the secrecy of the voting booth — the people of South Vietnam were showing a healthy respect for the democratic process even when their political leaders were showing an unhealthy disrespect.

It may well be that this big popular vote, of which President Thieu got 91 per cent because there was no other choice, does not mean any great confidence in Thieu. But if it wasn't a "vote of confidence," it was a "vote of support." And this suggests that the South Vietnamese consciously united behind a stable government capable of finishing the job of defending the country which it was given by the voters four years ago.

THEY COULD HAVE rejected Thieu at the expense of grave uncertainty and possible chaos. They chose stability. They did better than their leaders deserve and in effect they said to Thieu and company: "Now you do better for us."

This consequence of the election is helpful to the United States. Our paramount interest is a viable South Vietnamese government able to assume full responsibility for its country's own defense. Without such a government there will be no prospect of a negotiated peace or an independent South Vietnam. With such a government, Vietnamization can proceed rapidly and the pace of U.S. withdrawal can be speeded. (Evidence: On the day after the election, 3,215 more Americans started home, the third largest troop cutback since withdrawal began.)

THE SHORTCOMINGS of the election are evident. Thieu could certainly have brought about a contested election and his failure to do so served to discredit the democratic process. But he was not exclusively to blame. His strongest potential opponent, Gen. Big Minh, helped to create a no-contest election rather than run the risk of a landslide defeat.

One fact which emerges is that the non-Communist opposition to the Thieu government is weaker and more disorganized than most observers believed it would be. The Wounded War Veterans Association and the Student Activists — both anti-Thieu — were able to mount only small and scattered demonstrations.

I think back to early 1944 when a well-known liberal American columnist launched a crusade to call off the U.S. presidential election on the grounds that it would be perilously divisive in the midst of war — and give F.D.R. a fourth term without any vote at all.

The South Vietnamese have done remarkably well in the midst of war. Their votes said: "We don't necessarily care for Thieu but we care for our country more."

Not One Silly Hat As Women Plan Politics

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

WASHINGTON — Helen Hokinson is dead these 22 years, God bless her, but even if she were still with us she would have felt lost among the 125 women who gathered at one of the local hotels the other morning to talk politics.

In her cartoons, she made stout ladies' garden club meetings, with their silly hats and inane lecture subjects and general air of well-meaning helplessness, into the cliche that most men still think of when a women's conference on any subject is mentioned.

But there was not a hat, not one, at this Democratic Women's Leadership Conference (except, that is, when Congressperson Bella Abzug of New York arrived for lunch afterward). The panel discussion was entitled "Positive Thinking About Running for Office" and that Might have been inane in Miss Hokinson's hey-day, but it becomes more realistic every election day. There was nothing helpless about the women or their conversation. The nearest it got to ruffles and flounces was when Minnette Doderer, a state senator from Iowa, confessed with perhaps a tinge of blush that she raised her campaign funds not only from the local Democratic organization but also importantly from bake sales, rummage sales, style shows and bridge parties.

WHEN MYRLIE EVERS, the widow of the slain black civil rights leader, Medgar Evers, excused herself to catch a plane she explained that she had to go make a speech in Washington state, then one in Montana, then hurry back to Mississippi to help her brother-in-law, Charles, run for governor. "With a schedule like that, you may find that Myrlie Evers is a vice presidential candidate," she said with a winning smile.

I don't think it occurred to a person in the room to laugh at the prospect. She had, after all, already run a respectable race for Congress in California. She was talking to a roomful of women legislators, party chairmen and organizers. One of their sisters, Congressperson Shirley Chisholm of Brooklyn, is thinking seriously about running for President, and in hard truth, Myrlie Evers is twice as pretty as she is. Mrs. Evers would, indeed, look very good on a ticket with Edmund Muskie.

All of this testifies to a new spirit among women politicians and presumably women voters, as contrasted with the ban-the-bra show business of the wilder Women's Lib types. (At this gathering, there was only one young woman who was noticeably without her brassiere, and she looked as if it might have been oversight rather than intention.) Their attitude is no longer that of decorations who willingly play hostess at political cocktails, take dictation, lick envelopes and accept election as the purely honorary vice chairman of every committee. Nor is it that of hysterical, paranoid shrews shrilling for their rights. It is, instead, calm realization that now, 51 years after they got the vote, their rights are in hand, and the thing to do is exercise them.

NOT WITHOUT a little reverse favoritism, if that seems promising. As Mary Anne Krupsak, a New York legislator, commented: "We used to think it was a political liability to be a woman running for office. Now I think it's probably an asset. We have a credibility that men don't. We went through the Eisenhower era and the father image, so now maybe it's time we had a mother image."

The reality is that no one in the room or in either party so far has an image motherly enough to be taken seriously as a presidential possibility. There is only one Golda Meir, and she wasn't there.

But in the coming year, the ones who were there are going to do much more than scream and strip to correct the fact that in 1968, only 13 per cent of the delegates to the Democratic National Convention were women, while in the population at large, 53 per cent are women. For example, a group appointed itself as a continuing caucus to oversee the party's implementation of the convention reforms adopted since 1968 by the national committee.

IT IS A HARDHEADED lot, including India Edwards, who for many conventions was a familiar face on the rostrum as vice chairman of the national committee.

That was in the days of the old politics, and this week no less an institution than India Edwards herself certified in a resolution that the old politics is out. The new politics is in.

By usage, that phrase has meant the extensive employment of computers and television to win elections. In practice, it also is going to mean full employment of a common household gadget that has been around far longer than electronics, or even the Democratic Party.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

Youth Solves Transit Problem And Knows What Day It Was

A cheerful long-haired young man who likes to attend the Angela Davis hearings at the Hall of Justice is the catalyst behind a reevaluation of life in general and transportation in particular.

This young man carries with him a tattered piece of cardboard which says "Berk." on one side and "San Rafael" on the other.

"It's his only investment in transportation," a smiling bailiff said.

This remark brought reflections of the subject of investment in transportation — having just paid two repair bills plus buying a new tire and getting a doubled insurance bill for a 1969 Camaro. I began to think the young man might have the right answer.

THESE THOUGHTS were confirmed later in the day by remarks in the courtroom.

The prosecutor, Albert W. Harris Jr., was referring to an event that occurred on Oct. 21, 1970. "I don't know what day of the week that was," he said.

Since the day of the week seemed important, the judge, Richard E. Arnason, asked court attaches for a 1970 calendar but no one had one.

"It was Wednesday, your honor," the long-haired young man called out from the audience.

Soon a reporter, who found a 1970 calendar in her purse, confirmed this.

After court, a member of the attorney general's staff, Eric Collins, asked the young man, "How did you ever know that Oct. 21, 1970 was a Wednesday?"

"It was easy," he replied. "That was my brother-in-law's birthday and also I made an important decision that day."

Collins shook his head in wonder at such a memory, as did the rest of us.

I began to reflect that it was all part of a pattern.

The young man, who was preparing to turn his sign to the "Berk." side in order to get a ride across the bay, does not have his mind cluttered up with insurance bills, teen-age drivers, worn-out tires and all the rest of it.

Maybe if we all sold our cars, we would be able to remember at least what day it is today.

SPEAKING OF LONG-HAIRS, the support being given fired Fairfax Police Chief James Orr by the hip community is a wondrous thing.

Apparently, the reason is not that Orr has been any more loved than any other member of the "fuzz," but when a rumor started that one of the causes for his firing was an alleged "softness on hippies," the long-hairs rushed to his defense.

At the noisy meeting in Fairfax last week, the young people were quieter than the outspoken older types who supported the chief, but they demonstrated their feelings by frequent applause and cries of "right on."

Ice Dig Could Produce Data On Air Pollution

RENO, Nev. (UPI)—A winter in Antarctica digging in the ice and snow may not be everybody's bag.

But for three University of Nevada scientists, it's a long-awaited experience. And the world may learn a little more about air pollution from the data the trio collects this winter.

Two of them, Dr. Joseph Warburton, research professor at the campus Desert Research Institute, and Lawrence Young, a research associate, have already spent one nippy winter season (1969-70) in the South Pole region.

Warburton, Young and Mike Owens, a research assistant, leave for Antarctica in early November to begin three months of gathering core samples of ice and snow at three different sites. First stop for the team is Byrd Station.

In the 1969-70 expedition, Warburton and Young shipped back to Reno about 1,500 pounds, or 250 samples, of Antarctic ice. One piece given to them by another crew of U.S. scientists is said to date back 2,000 years.

The specimens came from various levels of the Antarctic 7,000-foot ice pack. Young said the ice is being tested for silver and iodine content to determine two things: The possible increase of air pollution during the Industrial Revolution in the 1800's, and the effect on ice of cloud seeding by Australia in the early 1950's.

"You see, it snows 6 to 12 inches a year at Byrd Station but the snow never melts," said Young. "So, as we dig deeper into the ice, it represents an older period of time."

By comparing the natural concentration of silver in the ice during different periods of history, the three scientists hope to discover what effect the Industrial Revolution and cloud seeding produced on the ground in the South Pole region.

"There is pollution over Antarctica now," said Warburton. "Dust layers are lying over the continent, and they're not coming from the ice."

The results of research from the first trip will be released about June, 1972, Young said.

The second trek to the South Pole will be something else. Young said this time the men won't be digging so deeply into the icy earth and will be gathering ice from three far-apart areas of the continent instead of only one portion.

"We want to see if there is any variation in the amount of silver and iodine in the ice as you move inland on the continent," said Young.

"We want to see if the high atmospheric winds are dependent upon the geography as you move inward."

Getting around on the ice continent is no problem, said Young. He and Warburton used an airplane, snowmobiles, dog-pulled sleds and even walked to and from work.

School Board Cancels Meeting

The special meeting scheduled for tomorrow by the San Anselmo School Distirct board has been cancelled according to Supt. William K. Lowry.

Board president Franklin C. Latcham said the meeting, which had been scheduled as a follow-up to two prior meetings discussing responsibilities of the board, staff and administration, was eliminated because the board plans to attend Marin County School District meetings on similiar matters.

WASHINGTON REPORT

Democrats Toy With Idea Of No-Contest 'Primary'

By BEJAMIN SHORE

WASHINGTON — If anyone has questions about the role of rich men in politics, some answers are available in California from the potential backers of likely Democratic presidential candidates.

These campaign money-givers and money-raisers see an $8 million to $10 million tab looming for next June's primary election if the expected five or six candidates show up. These are dollars that might be better spent battling Nixon in November, they argue.

So they have come up with the idea of the Democrats putting together a "unity slate" headed by a "favorite son," with Muskie, McGovern, Jackson, Lindsay, Harris, Bayh, Mills, Chisholm and other possible aspirants staying out. These candidates would be assured a percentage of the "unity delegation" votes at the Miami Beach convention, and they would also get a unified Democratic Party (i.e., one spared a divisive primary fight) in California that would help the nominee win this key state in the fall.

THE MONEY MEN have asked Sen. John V. Tunney to head this "unity slate". Tunney modestly says he would be "very reluctant" to do so, but he would consider it if the party leaders agreed on him and if all major presidential candidates agreed to stay out of California.

That second condition alone would seem enough to quiet talk of a Tunney-led "unity slate," for it is hard to imagine any candidate who is still on his feet after early primaries staying out of California with its rich winner-take-all prize of 271 delegate votes.

But the key here is money. If the rich men who give and raise money for Democratic candidates could agree to withhold their dollars from their favorite candidates, then those candidates would have a hard — if not prohibitive — time financing a primary campaign in the state that requires the most money.

Political pros here consider this agreement highly unlikely, just as they consider it even more unlikely that the leading candidates would stay out just because some of their financial backers want to save money.

But it is interesting, nevertheless, to observe the party's leaders toying with an idea that would deny party members a free and open primary.

ONE OF THE ideas put forth would have the "unity delegation" divide up its 271 votes at the convention on the basis of how the various candidates stood in California public-opinion polls on the eve of the primary. Would reform-minded Democrats actually let polls call the shots?

Yet, some of the strongest arguments for a "unity slate" are coming from the new, young leaders of the state's Democratic Party. Many are close allies of Tunney, and they are anxious to enrich his political power in the state.

They are also genuinely concerned about a bitter primary fight that could split the party many ways and render it impotent for the battle against Nixon. Many have been working successfully this past year to rebuild the splintered party, and they would do almost anything to keep it together.

Tunney says the idea of a "unity slate" that would have the effect of denying the party's rank-and-file a voice in the selection of the candidate has to be weighed against the expenditure of millions in a primary that could be won by the candidate who can raise and spend the most money.

THERE ARE THOSE, however, who would say that the answer is not to eliminate open primaries, but to curb campaign spending so all candidates may have an equal chance.

Meanwhile, where does all this leave Sen. Alan Cranston, the state's Democratic senior Senator? It leaves him, by his own words last week, standing behind a January 1971 speech to the California Democratic Central Committee convention in Sacramento, in which he said:

"To deny the Democratic voters of California an open primary, as Ronald Reagan denied the California Republicans a free choice in 1968, would be a self-defeating exercise in the old politics."

Over $6 Million Raised By UBAC

The United Bay Area Crusade has announced it has raised $6,394,224 toward its "fair share goal."

The announcement by campaign chairman Lawrence Hoyt came at the crusade's second campaign report meeting Thursday.

Betsy Chapman, singer-composer from Marin, led the audience in the "UBAC Campaign Song," with lyrics written by her to the theme of the national campaign film, "If You Don't Do It — It Won't Get Done."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Growth Of A Living Organism Is Complex, But Orderly Process

Growth of the living organism is a complex, but orderly process. And the most dramatic changes take place when the developing structure cannot be seen by the naked eye. This explains why the chicken bears no resemblance to the egg or the newborn baby to the human ovum.

The miracle of mammalian growth is that it begins with a tiny fertilized cell. It weighs very little but grows at a rate that varies markedly in different species. The gestation period of man and cattle is approximately the same, yet at birth the human child weighs seven and a half pounds and the calf 77 pounds — 10 times as much. In other mammals, the rate of growth during the entire gestation period may be 100,000 times greater in one than in the other.

BABY MAMMALS also gain more weight per day during the suckling period than they did before birth. The rate of growth depends upon the food supply and the ability of the young to make use of it. Undernourishment is disharmony and some organs are more affected by the deficit than are others.

Each organ of the baby begins to grow at a different time after conception. Growth of the structures also ceases at its own appointed time. Teeth appear at the precise moment the jaw has room for them.

Cell division stops when each organ has reached maximum size. In some parts of the body, cellular activity can start up again. This has been noted when part of the liver has been removed or destroyed by disease.

BONE GROWTH is adapted to the life the animal will lead outside the uterus. The lamb, foal, calf and camel are born with long legs because they are wanderers and may be forced to leave shortly after birth for protection and food.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

'TURNING' TO FAT

Mrs. H.A. writes: How long does it take for food to turn to fat? What I mean is, after eating a good meal, how many hours pass before it turns to fat?

REPLY

Fat cells appear in the blood within an hour after eating this type of food. If it is not burned up immediately as energy, it is stored in the tissues during the ensuing 24 hours.

DISCOMFORT FROM VACCINATION

D. K. writes: Does a child feel sick after getting shots for contagious diseases?

REPLY

Usually not, although some children develop slight fever and have pain at the site of injection. These symptoms are controlled by aspirin.

SCALP SWEATING

Mr. E. D. writes: What causes me to perspire on the forehead and scalp when I eat? P.S.: I'm bald.

REPLY

Food is fuel to the body and in some persons the old furnace gets hot enough to stimulate sweating. Baldness has nothing to do with it except lack of hair makes the beads of perspiration more noticeable.

BOWLEGS

M.N. writes: Our 2-year-old son has been bowlegged since birth. Should anything be done about it now or later?

REPLY

Ask your physician to examine the child's legs to determine if the defect represents true bowleggedness. If so, treatment may be considered at this time. Surprisingly, many toddlers outgrow this condition as their legs grow stronger.

CHEMICAL INSANITY

REPLY

We do not know the cause of this form of insanity, but a biochemical origin has been implicated. The symptoms can be reproduced with certain drugs. Transient psychoses have been induced with LSD (lysergic acid diethylamide) and mescaline. Other chemicals being studied include the amino acids and epinephrine.

Protests On Book Due At Meeting

The San Rafael Board of Education will hear protests at its meeting tomorrow about the use of a book described as a "revolution kit" at San Rafael High School as well as alleged racial problems at the school.

The board will meet at 7:30 p.m. at the district office, Third and E streets, San Rafael.

The book entitled "The Movement Toward a New America" has been passed out to students in American government classes taught by Virginia Franklin, but she said Friday that the book has not been used in the classroom yet.

The board will also look into alleged racial problems at the high school, stemming from fights last Monday involving black and white youths over the theft of a pair of shoes and the collection of alleged debt.

Canal Zone Tense During Panama Leader's Speech

PANAMA CITY (UPI)—Panamanian national guardsmen and U.S. troops lined the Canal Zone boundary today as thousands of peasants arrived to hear a speech by military strongman and militia leader Omar Torrijos.

Tens of thousands of compesinos (peasants) were bused to the city's Cinco de Mayo Plaza within sight of of Fourth of July Avenue marking the limit of the United States-controlled zone to hear Torrijos' first speech in a public plaza.

U.S. commanders canceled the Monday Columbus Day holiday for forces in the zone and deployed troops along the boundary to prevent civilian rioting over the touchy issue of sovereignty over the Panama Canal Zone, in U.S. hands since 1904.

Panama and the United States are negotiating a new Canal treaty in Washington. Provisional President Demitrio B. Lakas said Saturday that the question under negotiation "is not whether Panama shall exercise sovereignty over the Canal Zone but only when and how Panama shall exercise sovereignty..."

3 Chutists Die

Young Divorce More Than Old

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Census Bureau reports a higher divorce rate for young married couples than for older ones, particularly for black Americans.

The bureau said Sunday data for two decades ending in 1967 showed 28 per cent of men married before age 22 were divorced within 20 years. For men 22 or older when they married, the rate was only 13 per cent. The figures were nearly the same for women who were wed in their teens and those who were older.

For black men, however, 46 per cent of those married by age 21 were divorced within 20 years —compared with 26 per cent for whites. Negro females married in their teens had a 47 per cent divorce rate, compared with 25 per cent for white women.

Slippery Filipino's Life Of Crime Ends

MANILA (UPI) — Leonardo Manecio, who slipped through the hands of police so many times he was knicknamed "Muddy Leonard," was public enemy No. 1 in the Philippines. He reportedly had killed at least 10 persons, including a provincial police chief and had escaped from prison while serving an 182-year sentence.

Police caught up with him again Sunday, but Muddy Leonard —"Nardong Putik" in Tagalog —didn't live up to his slippery reputation. He died in his little red sports car, his body and head so riddled with bullets that he had to be identified by fingerprints.

We see the happy world of children at play, but we know, too, there exists at the same time a world of alienation and rejection. Troubled by these harsh contrasts, we ask the question "Why?" Why poverty in a land of plenty? Why loneliness in a world that would join hands? Why war when the impulse of the heart is to love? The aching chasm between the real and the ideal everywhere provokes the question . . .

WHY?

In a world looking for answers maybe God is the place to start. God is hope. God is now.

BRITISH MARCH THROUGH TIBURON

The Royal Artillery Band, in the Bay Area for British Week, remained on to open festivities Sunday at the Corinthian Yacht Club by marching through Tiburon before playing a concert on the club's deck. Dole Says GOP Is Real People's Party

CHICAGO (UPI)—Robert J. Dole, Republican national chairman said Sunday that the Republicans have replaced the Democrats as the "true party of the people" and "radical liberals, labor bosses and irresponsible politicians" have driven out American ethnic groups which formerly gave the Democrats their strength.

Dole spoke at a dinner of the Illinois Republican Nationalities Council. The Kansas senator credited President Nixon with clearing the way for nationality groups to enter the GOP.

In the last two months alone, Dole said, Nixon had made 17 presidential appointments of ethnic Americans, including persons of Polish, Cuban, Mexican, Hungarian, Latvian, Filipino, Chinese, Italian, Puerto Rican and Greek ancestry.

He said the Republican party, "that once was thought of as the party of the privileged elite —the so-called WASP—is now the true party of the people."

The Democratic party, he said, once could lay claim to being the "melting pot party," but "now some of the more radical members of the youth wing seem more interested in 'pot' than in melting pots, and the solid mass of religious, patriotic, hard-working ethnic Americans who once identified with the Democratic party find themselves in search of a new political base."

"Failures and disasters" have attended the Democratic leadership, the GOP senator said, and it included "divisive Democratic politicians who turned on their own elected leadership and prolonged the war by sowing discontent at home and—whether they wished it or not—boosting enemy morale and demoralizing our own fighting men."

Youths Held In Battery Case

Three youths were arrested yesterday in Petaluma on suspicion of battery on a peace officer and disturbing the peace.

Booked into Sonoma County Jail were Cathy McClean, 18, of 25 Hayes Street, San Rafael, and Arthur Michael Farmer, 18, of no known address. Sent to juvenile hall was John William Green, 17, also of 25 Hayes Street, San Rafael.

Officer Dolph P. Camilli said he was answering a complaint at 10:30 p.m. about a noisy disturbance at 415 Kentucky Street when he found the youths sitting on the front porch. Camilli said an argument began and that he was knocked down and kicked in the legs, groin, head and back. Miss McClean and Farmer were scheduled for arraignment tomorrow in Southern Sonoma Municipal Court.

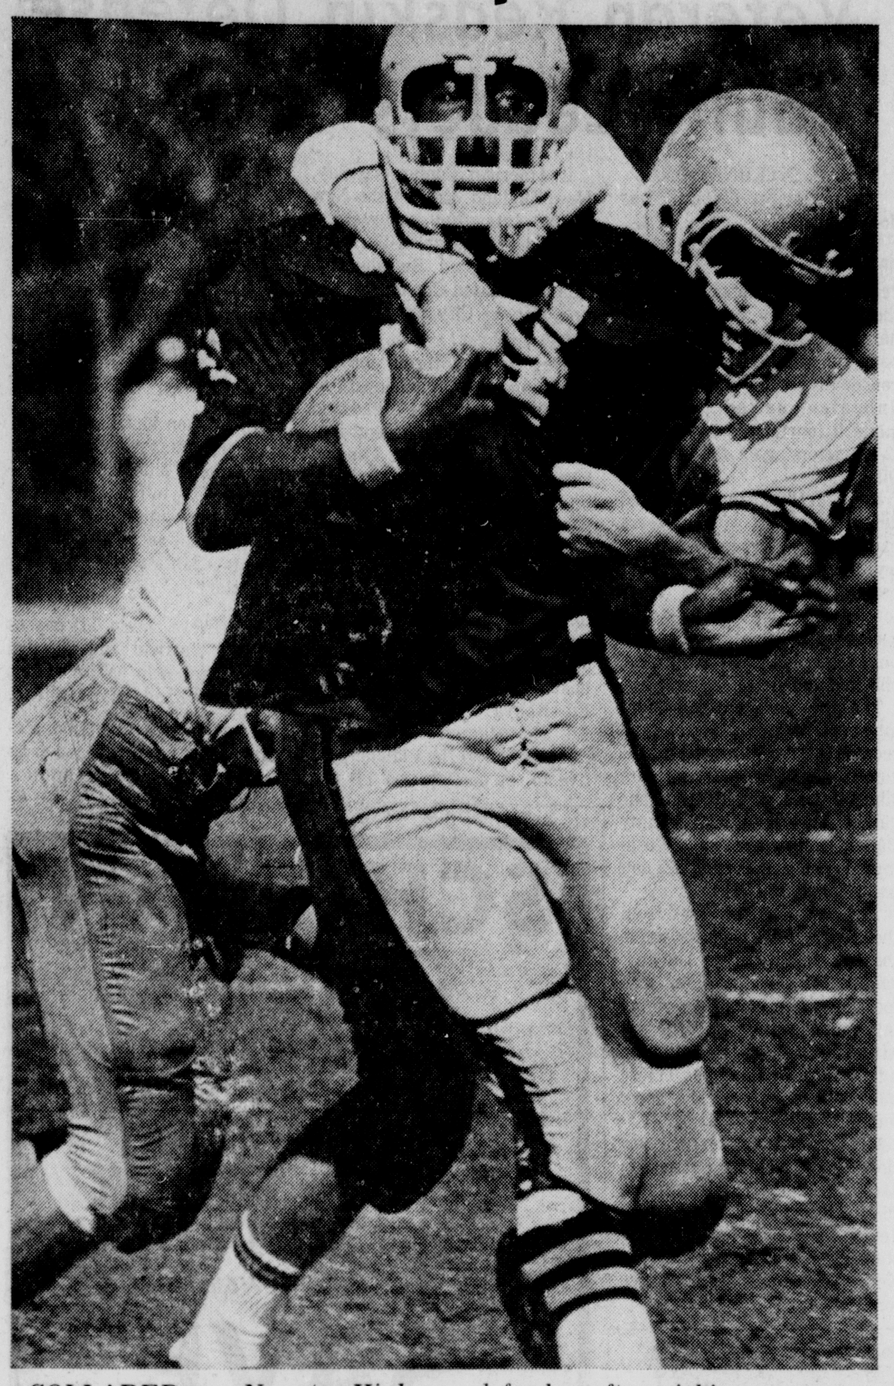
Novato Spills Terra Linda In MCAL Thriller, 16-13



COLLARED — Novato High School's Ed Harris was collared by an unidentified Terra Linda defender after picking up some yardage in Saturday's game, won by Novato, 16-13.

Moroski-Robinson Pass Wins

The last time Novato High School dumped Terra Linda High was in 1965 when Hornet mentor Al Scott was an assistant.

"With that win," he said jubilantly after the Novato footballers upset the defending champion Trojans 16-13 Saturday, "we went on to win the title."

If that bit of history repeats itself, Scott can thank his lucky stars, notably quarterback Marty Moroski and halfback Joe Robinson for teaming on a 13 yard scoring pass with 52 seconds left in the game before a capacity crowd in the winner's field.

The Trojans were similarly affected but Novato was not to be denied. "We did it," Scott screamed beneath a hot sun as

49er Errors Give Rams 20-13 Victory, NFC Lead

Wrong.

The Rams played the entire game Sunday against San Francisco with rookie Jack Youngblood of Florida in place of the injured Jones at defensive left end and all the kid did was keep the 49er offense honest around his end.

And Gabriel, one of the National Football League's top quarterbacks the last half dozen seasons, went out on the next to last play of the first quarter and never was seen again.

Jerry Rhome, the seven year vet from Tulsa who made the team after being claimed from Houston, filled in admirably for Gabe, who may have a slight concussion, while leading the Rams to an upset 20-13 victory over the 49ers.

Rhome stuck pretty much to the ground and while the Rams didn't do all that well carrying the ball, they got two big plays they didn't expect for the points that led them to victory.

The first break came early in the third quarter when Ken Willard fumbled on the San Francisco four and Gene Howard, a corner back with quick moves, scooped up the ball and ran it in for a score. That put the Rams ahead at the time at 10-3.

Then, midway through the fourth quarter with San Francisco on top 13-10, Larry Smith, the fastest of Los Angeles' four running backs, came in to try to pick up a first down with the Rams bogged down on their own 36 and needing a yard to keep possession. Smith busted over left tackle and broke clear on a 64-yard gallop for what proved to be the winning score.

David Ray, who earlier booted a field goal of 12 yards, added a 14-yarder with four minutes left for three insurance points as the Rams climbed into the NFC West lead. Los Angeles now is 2-1-1 and San

Oakland Triumphs In Denver

DENVER (UPI) — Defensive end Rich Jackson of the Denver Broncos sat in the dressing room with his teammates Sunday, wondering if they were "snake-bit."

"It looks to me that bad luck is cast upon this team," he said, still upset over Denver's 27-16 loss to Oakland. It was the third loss of the season for the winless Broncos, who also have one tie.

"It's got to be better," Jackson said. "This losing has got to stop."

Losing to Oakland was nothing new to the Broncos. They haven't beaten the Raiders since 1962. And Denver went into the game with a sputtering offense that had scored just two touchdowns in three games.

Oakland was hampered by the loss of starting quarterback Daryle Lamonica, who pulled a hamstring muscle early in the contest. But backup quarterback Ken Stabler got the offense untracked in the last half.

Stabler, who completed 10-of-23 pass attempts, ran nine yards for one touchdown and tossed nine yards to Raymond Chester for another TD. Oakland's other touchdown game in the final period when cornerback Jimmy Warren picked off a Steve Ramsey pass and ran 55 yards for the score.

The Raiders' other points came on field goals of 38 and 24 yards by George Blanda.

Marin Tars Lose To Physical San Joaquin Delta Footballers

"They were as physical as can be," said College of Marin head football coach Dick Read after his Tars were whipped, 38-21, by San Joaquin Delta College in Stockton Saturday.

"We were in the ballgame all the way," said Read, whose squad trailed by only eight points at half, 23-15. "But we didn't play well enough to win," he added.

The loss on the University of Pacific field left the Tars winless in four attempts. Next on the schedule is West Valley J.C. at Buck Shaw Stadium in Santa Clara next Friday, 7:30 p.m. It. will be Marin's Camino Norte Conference opener.

Leon Delisle scored twice for Marin, his first touchdown coming in the second period on a 24 yard-run, immediately following a 41-yard scamper by Larry Walker. Walker had scored earlier in the period on a one-yard plunge.

Delisle scored his second touchdown in the final period from one yard out. Bob Daniele kicked one Tar extra point and passed to Mike Locati for a two-pointer.

"He did a pretty good job," said Read about quarterback Daniele. The former Terra Linda prep completed 10 of his 25 passes for 117 yards. Three of his passes were intercepted, however.

Marin added 141 yards rushing for 258 total yards to 433 for Delta.

"We're getting better," said Read, "but we were still inconsistent."

Among the defensive stars for Marin were Leon Howard, Ken Blasingame, Lynn Merritt and Ron Budde.

MUSTANGS DROP

Drake Notches 12-8 Nod Gridders

By PAUL CANE

What was billed as a potential offensive "Blunder Bowl" became an unexpected "Defensive Delight" Saturday night in San Rafael, as the Drake High Pirates notched their first win of the 1971 MCAL campaign with a 12-8 victory over snakebitten San Marin High School.

Both Drake and San Marin were winless throughout the preseason, with each team being victimized by excessive mistakes. Last night, however, the teams defenses battled to a scoreless first half, and it took a breakaway, 67-yard run from scrimmage by Dave Segale to set up the first Drake touchdown near the end of the third period.

Drake coach Bob Franceschini said the long gainer "was just a basic dive" that happened to break, something that hadn't happened up to that point.

On the next play, Phil Wilkinson took a pitchout from quarterback Mike Simons for 17 yards and the first score of the game. Franceschini explained the play was made up at halftime, in an attempt to take advantage of the Mustang defense, which had begun to clutter up the middle. "We don't have much speed," the mentor laughed, and said it was necessary to really keep the defense guessing in order to move the ball.

San Marin's junior quarterback Hoza Wright floated a pair of interceptions in the second half, the second of which Drake turned into the other touchdown. After Wilkinson, a top-flight performer for Drake in both the offensive and defensive backfields, picked off Wright's pass, Simons drove the Pirates 29 yards for a 12-0 score.

Simons himself carried the ball 11 yards on a rollout for the TD, on a play Franceschini described as being very similar to the one Wilkinson scored with.

San Marin, although piling up 11 first downs, only managed 182 yards for the night, and was thwarted on three drives inside Drake territory by the stubborn Pirate defenders. Drake, too, was unable to capitalize on a couple of opportunities, including two chances inside the Mustang ten-yard line.

Franceschini was excited over the cutdown in turnovers for his ballclub, as Drake has decreased the average number of interceptions and fumbles from "eight or ten" per game, down to three.

Wright, a lefthander, completed only six of 22 in the air, but had the Pirate defenders jumping to prevent disaster. "Our defense used a lot of different sets," Franceschini mused.

Wright was not to be totally denied, as he hit his favorite

'Old '49ers Revert To Losing Ways, 20-13

By RALPH CHATOIAN

It was like watching the 49ers of old, the pre-Dick Nolan days.

They would make a long gain, only to lose it all because of a penalty. Then there were those untimely interceptions and lost fumbles. The San Francisco 49ers, expected to be the class of the National Football League, looked more like dazed boxers, hanging on, waiting for the knockout punch to drop them.

It did, finally, with the Los Angeles Rams running out the clock, and the fans running out of Candlestick Park grumbling about the 49ers' 20-13 loss. It was just like the old days at Kezar.

The story of yesterday's game can best be told with a yawn, and more than one of the pressbox crew could be seen doing just that. It would be hard to say which would have been more interesting, watching the first half of yesterday's game or looking at paint dry.

The game did have its mements, but the time in between those rare moments was almost too much to endure. The 49ers defense did a good job, but the offense couldn't put it all together, as the sporting fraternity phrases it.

The 49ers had their chances to break things open in the first half, the first time only minutes after the start when Ram Alvin Haymond fumbled a punt, the 49ers' Preston Riley picking it up on the Ram 16. Three plays later, John Brodie's pass was plucked off by Los Angeles cornerback Gene Howard. End of threat.

Later in the first quarter, defensive end Cedric Hardman slammed into Ram quarterback Roman Gabriel, resulting in a concussion for Roman and his forced exit from the game. Aha, said the 49er fans, without Gabriel the Rams will fold. In came backup man Jerry Rhome. He ended up with a grand total of 13-yards passing, not completing a pass until the start of the fourth quarter.

The 49ers' one big play in the second quarter was a beauty, a 42-yard pass from Brodie to Gene Washington on the Ram one. But wait, is that a eyllow hankerchief on the field? It sure is, signifying a holding penalty against the Niners. Ball called back, end of threat.

Then things just got worse. Ken Willard fumbled on the four and Los Angeles' Howard scooped it up and went in for a quick six in the third quarter. It was Bob Windsor's turn to fumble in the fourth quarter, losing it to Matt Maslowski. It was the 49ers' fourth turnover in this game of giveaway, and this one only resulted in three points, a field goal by David Ray.

It was a strange game, indeed. Most of the Rams offense was contained in two plays, a 57-yard run by Lester Josephson in the third quarter and a 64-yard touchdown sprint by Larry Smith in the fourth quarter. Without those two plays, the Rams' offense was confined to 98 yards by ground and 13 by air. It doesn't sound like the kind of game that would put a team in first place, but that's just what it did because now the 49ers (2-2) are one-half game behind the Rams (2-1-1) in the west.

I guess things could have been worse. I might have believed the oddsmakers who gave the 49ers eight points and bet my lunch money on the outcome. I didn't bet and now I can enjoy that ham on rye.

Here's a tip if you plan to go to next Sunday's game against the Bears. Go by helicopter. The Candlestick parking lot was completely filled 15 minutes before gametime with wall to wall cars.

Weaver Lauded By Team

BALTIMORE (UPI) — "The thing that impresses me most about him is the way he handles ballplayers. He has the knack for knowing exactly when to get on them. He has the same knack for knowing when to lay off."

Dave McNally, Baltimore's ace lefty, talks about his boss, Earl Weaver, like all the other Orioles do. Warmly.

In a way, that's normal enough. When a manager guides his ball club to three straight pennants as Earl Weaver has done with the Orioles, it's logical to assume most of his ballplayers are going to tell you what a great guy he is.

That doesn't always happen though.

Walt Alston led the Dodgers into the World Series one year and before that Series even started, one of his employees, Don Zimmer, took off on him publicly for not playing him.

Some years later, Casey Stengel, managing the Yankees, lifted Clete Boyer, his regular third baseman, for a pinch hitter in the second inning of a World Series contest and the deeply humiliated Boyer howled about the indignity long after like a scalded whippet.

They say you don't really know a man until you work for him or a woman until you marry her. Similarly, most ballplayers say they don't know a manager until they play for him, and frequently the player who'll give you the best line on a manager is someone like Tom Shopay.

Banducci Team Wins Third In Row

"We haven't peaked yet," Bruno Banducci said today after his Marin Catholic footballers collected their third straight triumph, a 23-12 win in Oakland Saturday over St. Elizabeth.

Maybe the team has not reached its prime, but it has been a while since the Wildcats notched a trio of consecutive triumphs.

"Ofensively," Banducci commented, "I don't feel we've jelled." However, the former San Francisco 49er great said he was happy with tailback Pat Parnow's running play. He tallied two times covering three and seven yards. Parnow has 10 scores in all.

The ecstatic coach added "it's going to be a good year. We're going to win them all."

And if the squad goes unbeaten the rest of the way, the Kentfield delegation can thank its fine defense. "We take pride in playing defense, and knocking passes down. They like hitting people. Benny Partee (defensive halfback) plays nothing else, and he loves it.

Don Bunce Aids Tribe Bowl Push

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

STANFORD leads the Pacific-8 race to the Rose Bowl today thanks to a demonstration by Benny Barnes and the rest of the "Thunder Chickens" of how to stop Sonny Sixkiller and his high scoring Washington Huskies.

The "Thunder Chickens," Stanford's name for its defensive unit, had the Cherokee quarterback running for his life most of the game Saturday while posting a 17-6 victory over the Huskies.

As a result, Sixkiller completed only 12 of 46 passes and threw four interceptions, three of which were picked off by Barnes who also sacked the quarterback with safety blitzes three times before he could get rid of the ball.

Washington had been averaging almost 50 points a game and was leading the nation in putting points on the scoreboard but against Stanford's Indians the Huskies got only one touchdown and that late in the game.

"Our defense played a near-perfect game," said Stanford's coach John Ralston. "The sacks came at the right time and we got the interceptions at the right time. It was superb execution by the players."

His praise seemed far from outlandish since the Indians held Washington to minus 26 yards rushing and only 77 in the air.

NFL ROUNDUP

Veteran Redskin Defense Vaults Leaders To Win

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The "Geritol Group" has done it again.

Washington's veteran defense, which numbers over a century of experience, provided the game's only touchdown and harassed the starting quarterback out of action for the fourth consecutive week Sunday as the unbeaten, untied Redskins made it fourth in a row with a 22-13 victory over the Houston Oilers.

Ron McDole, the 290-pound defensive tackle with 11 years experience, intercepted a Charley Johnson pass in the second period and rumbled 18 yards for a score. Curt Knight kicked a club record five field goals to boost the 'Skins over the charged-up Oilers.

The veteran Washington unit intercepted three passes and recovered two fumbles to become the first Redskin team since 1943 to win its first four games. That year, with Sammy Baugh leading the way, Washington won the National Football League title, its last.

"We took the ball away from them five times and we made the big play when we had to," said Coach George Allen, who took over the Washington club this year. "We were a little flat after being emotionally up against Dallas the week before but the Houston club is a good, tough team."

In National Conference action, Detroit held off Green Bay 31-28, St. Louis ripped Atlanta 26-9, Minnesota blanked Philadelphia 13-0, and Chicago stunned New Orleans 35-14. The New York Giants are at Dallas tonight.

In American Conference play, New England crushed the New York Jets 20-0, Cleveland downed Pittsburgh 27-17, Baltimore humiliated Buffalo 43-0, Miami defeated Cincinnati 23-13 and Kansas City trounced San Diego 31-10.

Greg Landry threw for 302 yards and four touchdowns as Detroit built up a 24-7 lead and then held on in the second half to beat the Packers. Landry, who had his best day as a pro, hit Earl McCullouch with a 17 yard TD pass and teamed with Larry Walton on scoring passes of 10 and 60 yards.

Dave Osborn ran two yards for the game's only touchdown and Fred Cox kicked field goals of 14 and 17 yards as Minnesota beat Philadelphia and spoiled Ed Khayat's coaching debut. Ed Sharockman returned an interception to the Philadelphia five to set up Osborn's TD and ruin the day for Khayat, who took over the head coaching job after Jerry Williams was fired this week.

Bill Nelsen threw a 19-yard pass to Milt Morin for one score and Bo Scott ran 18 yards for another as Cleveland beat Pittsburgh to take a one-game lead in the AFC Central Division.

Jim Bakken kicked four field goals and MacArthur Lane and Roy Shivers plunged for short yardage TDs to lead the Cardinals to their upset of Atlanta. The Cardinal secondary picked off four Atlanta passes to set up the victory..

Bob Griese threw TD passes to Paul Warfield and Howard Twilley to help Miami past injury-riddled Cincinnati.

Norm Bulaich and Don McCauley scored two TDs each as Baltimore cruised past Buffalo.

Bosox Swap Lonborg In 10-Player Deal

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Frank Lane, baseball's most active trader, even at 75, used a rainy day lull in the World Series to swing a 10-player deal with the Boston Red Sox which brought the Milwaukee Brewers Billy Conigliaro, George Scott and Jim Lonbrg among others.

The 6-for-4 trade saw the Red Sox send Congiliaro, Scott, Lonborg, Joe Lahoud, Ken Brett and Don Pavletich to the Brewers in exchange for Lew Krausse, Pat Skrable, Tommy Harper and Marty Pattin.

The trade was announced by general managers Lane of the Brewers and Dick O'Connell of the Red Sox.

O'Connell said Harper probably will play as the Sox' regular right fielder, joining Carl Yastrzemski and Reggie Smith in the Boston outfield. Harper hit .258 and had 14 homers playing mostly second and third base for the Brewers last leason.

Pattin, 14-14 last season, should join the Red Sox' regular rotation, according to O'Connell, while Krausse (8-12) is scheduled for duty as a swingman.

Skrable, a 23-year-old left-handed batter, hit .268 at Evansville in the American Association last season.

Scott, a long-ball threat who can play first or third, hit only .263 for Boston but had 24 homers and drove in 78 runs. Congiliaro, a speedy outfielder who walked off in a huff during mid-season but was reinstated, hit 11 homers, drove in 33 runs and compiled a .262 average. Lahoud, despite only a .215 average, drove in 32 runs and hit 14 homers as a part-time outfielder.

Lonborg is perhaps the biggest name involved. He was a 20-game winner in pitching Boston to a miracle pennant in 1967 and then tore up his leg in an off-season skiing accident. He never has regained his form, being saddled with shoulder and back injuries. He was sent to the minors this season and returned to compile a 10-7 record with an unimpressive 4.13 era.

Brett, considered two years ago to be the outstanding pitching prospect in the Boston organization, was 0-3 this year with a 5.34 era. Pavletich plays first and catches and batted only 27 times last season.

"The key to this whole thing for us is Conigliaro and Scott," said Milwaukee Manager Dave Bristol. "We're thinking of Congiliaro as one of our regular outfielders. Scott also will get a shot at a regular job."

receiver, Marty Larsen, for a 21-yard touchdown with 23 ticks left on the game clock. After the conversion attempt was successful, the Mustangs tried the inevitable onside kick, but were deprived of a last-minute victory try when Pirate Bob Guastucci latched onto Greg Mazeres' crazily twisting roller at midfield as the clock ran out.

San Marin Head Coach Bob Martin philosophized "It was a good game, but of course I'm disappointed at losing." He explained that Wright's lackluster completion average was due to the receivers dropping the ball. He noted "Hoza throws a hard pass, and we've been having trouble holding on to them."

Both teams escaped the game relatively unhurt, with Mustang runningback Fred Doar being the worst off, after having his ribs bruised. Drake defensive back and reserve signal caller Tom MacAusland had his knee banged up early, but came back to bolster the Drake defense in the second half.

Drake hosts the other candidate for MCAL cellar-dwelling next Saturday, with winless Tamalpais visiting the Pirates at College of Marin in an afternoon game. Franceschini said he hoped his team could pick up a second win, to gather momentum for the toughies still to come.

He expected two injury victims of last week, Gene Gilbert and Dave DeMoss to return to action against the Indians.

In contrast, San Marin has drawn Terra Linda for the weekend, and although the Trojans were humbled by Novato, Martin knows they are tough. "They are a typical Terra Linda team, well coached and quick. They don't make many mistakes."

U.S. Takes Romania; In 'Cup'

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI)—Ilie Nastase of Romania and American Frank Froehling were to complete an anti-climactic Davis Cup match today in the tournament settled Sunday by U.S. Army Pfc. Stan Smith's easy victory.

Smith quickly disposed of Romanian Ion Tiriac 8-6, 6-3, 6-0, to give the U.S. team three out of a possible five matches in the tournament and an edge, 23-22, over Australia in the overall Davis Cup competition.

Rain washed out the Nastase-Froehling match that followed with Nastase holding fir the first set 6-3 and ahead in the second 2-0. It was Froehling's advantage at deuce in the third game.

hundreds of fans poured onto the field to bask in Black and Gold triumph glory.

"We fell behind twice, but our team kept coming back. It never, ever quits, and we kept our poise.

"This shows true team effort. We've got great kids — true fortitude."

At that juncture, burly Novato linemen Pat Karinen, Rick Reis and Russ Weklych, the heart of a hit-hungry defense, hoisted Scott high on their collective shoulders, proceeding nonstop to the locker room.

Later, Scott commented that "Terra Linda has a helluva football team. It must be a hard one to lose. But now we are on top, and everybody will be pouring on us, because we're right up there."

The MCAL king, "might have died, but not without a valiant struggle.

During what Scott termed "my greatest victory," in the MCAL game of the week, the visitors parleyed the passing of quarterback Kevin Donohoe and the catching of end John Buckley to lead from the 8:50 mark of the second quarter to the final minute of the contest.

After a feeling out process in the opening 10 minutes, which included three punts, Novato drove 68 yards in eight plays for a Bob Cooper field goal from the Trojan 24. The key play in the drive was a 30 yard sweep of left end by lanky Ed Harris on a second and 16 situation.

The hosts held off the determined Terra Lindans for one sequence but were then bombarded with a 70 yard, three play Trojan explosion.

On second and seven from their own 33, Donohoe, who threw 39 times, spotted tight end Wes Emerson with a look-in, good for 12 and a first down. Donohoe then found Buckley fly beyond the secondary and hit the speedy receiver with a aerial covering the 55 yard distance, Terra Linda 7-3 at the intermission.

Before the gun, Buckley roared into paydirt on the heels of a 43 yard punt return, but it was nullified by a clipping marker.

While Terra Linda fans along the sidelines mulled over the possibility of "Novato quitting now that they are behind," the Hornets formulated other ideas during halftime. In the closing minutes of the period, Moroski's alternate, Tom Conklin pilfered a tipped pass on the Trojan 13; Moroski and his mates took it in four plays hence with the All-League signal caller performing the honors on a one yard plunge with one second left.

"There's plenty of time; we've got the whole fourth quarter," Trojan coach Don Lucas yelled. His proteges heeded the encouragement, jaunting 53 yards in 12 calls for the tally, which put the guests ahead 13-9. The key plays were a pair of Donohoe clutch tosses to Buckley for 17 and 14 yards. The last one planted the ball on the Novato one. On first and goal, fullback Mike Sabel lowered his head and boomed across.

The winner's engineered one first down after the ensuing kickoff but could no further, surrendering the ball when Trojan lineman Steve Rowell dumped Moroski for a seven yard loss on fourth and 10. However, the Terra Linda team was forced to punt, giving the Hornets a final opportunity with 2:49 left on their own 25.

Johnson netted five on a sweep before Moroski fired a nine yarder to end Charley Chung. Two plays later, a Leo Mogers to Chung pass was ruled a 16-yard completion when an official called interference in the Trojan secondary.

With 1:12 remaining on a second and 11 setting, Moroski drilled his first of two successive passes to sure-handed end Greg Straw. The first netted seven and the other 26, marking the ball on the Rojan 13.

Cries of "keep your poise" echoed from the Trojan side. They did, but the Trojans lost the game on the next play when Robinson ran a down and out to the left corner of the end zone; Moroski found him with unerring accuracy to wrap up the last-minute thriller.

The score by quarters:

Terra Linda	0	7	0	6	— 13
Novato	3	0	6	7	— 16

N — Cooper 24 field goal; TL — Buckley 55 pass from Donohoe (Corbett kick); N — Moroski 1 run (run failed); TL — Sabel 1 run (run failed); N — Robinson 13 pass from Moroski (Cooper kick).

Seals Tie Leafs, 3-3

OAKLAND (UPI) —Maybe the California Seals, nee the Oakland Seals, ought to change names again.

This time to the California Seal Pups for youth is the trademark of the enthusiastic "new look" team.

The younger Seals outskated Toronto throughout the game Sunday night on their way to a 3-3 National Hockey League tie. The Seals got off 39 shots to the Canadian squad's 24.

Two power play goals in the last period by Wayne Carleton gained the deadlock.

Carleton, who came to the Seals during the winter from the Boston Bruins, finally broke loose in the final 10 minutes of the game to make his scores, both power plays, and put the Seals back in the game.

But it may have been a costly tie for the Seals. Captain Carol Vadnais, who scored the first Seal goal in the first period, had to be carried off the ice because of strained ligaments.

The Seals now have two ties after settling for a 4-4 score with the Los Angeles Kings Friday night. They meet Philadelphia here Wednesday.

The Seals have only eight skaters from last year's squad and most of those secured in trades during the winter are youngsters.

"I expect this group of youngsters to gain a playoff spot in their division," said Coach Fred Glover, basing his estimate on the speed and desire of his team.

"They aren't afraid to go into the corners and battle for the puck and they're not going out on the ice expecting to be beat," he said.

RAIDERS

replaced the injured Don Horn. Horn suffered an achilles tendon injury late in the first half.

Both starting quarterbacks were surprised by their injures.

"I pulled the tendon when we were down around the goal line, and I don't know how," Horn said. "When I put weight on it a certain way, it hurt, and I didn't want to damage it any more."

Lamonica suffered a pulled hamstring in his right leg on the second series of downs. "Nobody touched me, and it's tough to get hurt when you don't even get knocked down," he said.

Oakland coach John Madden expressed pleasure with both the victory and with the play of Stabler, a 25-year-old quarterback from Alabama.

"This was a physical game, and the heat and altitude affected us," Madden said. "We didn't plan to fool around and come on in the second half to win, but it's just happened that way the last couple of weeks."

"What can I say?" Bronco Coach Lou Saban said afterwards. "Two pass interceptions hurt us, but this rookie quarterback (Ramsey) is going to be okay. He made some mistakes against one of the best teams in football.

Francisco is 2-2, a half game behind.

Ray's clinching field goal was set up when Bob Windsor fumbled the kickoff following Smith's TD. Matt Maslowski recovered the ball on the San Francisco 28 and seven plays later Ray hit for three points.

Tommy Prothro, the Rams coach, was as delighted as he could be with the victory.

"It was a very strange game," Prothro said, "but I liked it."

Prothro said Smith's TD run came on a very simple play that, when it works, looks great.

"San Francisco was in a breakable defense," Prothro explained. "That defense, with everyone practically on the line, is designed to stop a one-yard play, but if you break it you can go all the way, and that's what Smith did."

Rhome said he called the play himself in the huddle.

"With all those guys up close," said Rhome, "I figured if we could get Larry past the line he could go all the way. It worked this time."

Gabriel suffered a mild concussion when Cedrick Hardman sacked him just before the first quarter ended and neither team without a point. While he was in there Gabriel attempted one pass and missed.

"That's why it was a strange game," said Prothro." "It just doesn't figure we could win without gaining anything passing."

Dick Nolan, San Francisco's head coach, was upset at his team's turnovers.

The 49ers lost the ball twice on fumbles and twice on pass interceptions and the Rams cashed in those mistakes for 10 pounts. They also were assessed 90 yards in penalties.

New Zealand GNP Shows Steady Rise

NEW YORK (UPI) —The average annual growth of New Zealand's Gross National Product during the decade 1960-70 was 7 per cent, says a financial report by the New Zealand Consulate General here.

The growth was aided by a substantial inflow of capital into the private sector and by retention in New Zealand of profits from the subsidiaries of overseas companies.

Wall Street: Low Prices, Slow Trading

NEW YORK (UPI) —Slightly lower prices and a slow, semi-holiday trading pace characterized activity on Wall Street through the first two hours today.

"A lot of the dullness has to do with the Columbus Day holiday," said Harry Laubscher of Walston & Co said. Banks and insurance companies were shut down for the day. Laubscher observed no great rush to sell stocks, and he looked for the market to turn around later this week.

The Walston executive added: "there is confusion about President Nixon's 'Phase Two', but overall there is an optimistic feeling that the plan is going to be a prop to business and the stock market."

Declines topped advances by almost two-to-one near noon, while the Dow Jones industrial average showed a loss of 3.14 at 890.77. Other market indicators also pointed slightly lower.

Prices also eased in light turnover on the American Stock Exchange. Stocks on the most active Amex list generally declined. National Realty Investors, which headed the active list, was off more than 2 points on over 110,000 shares.

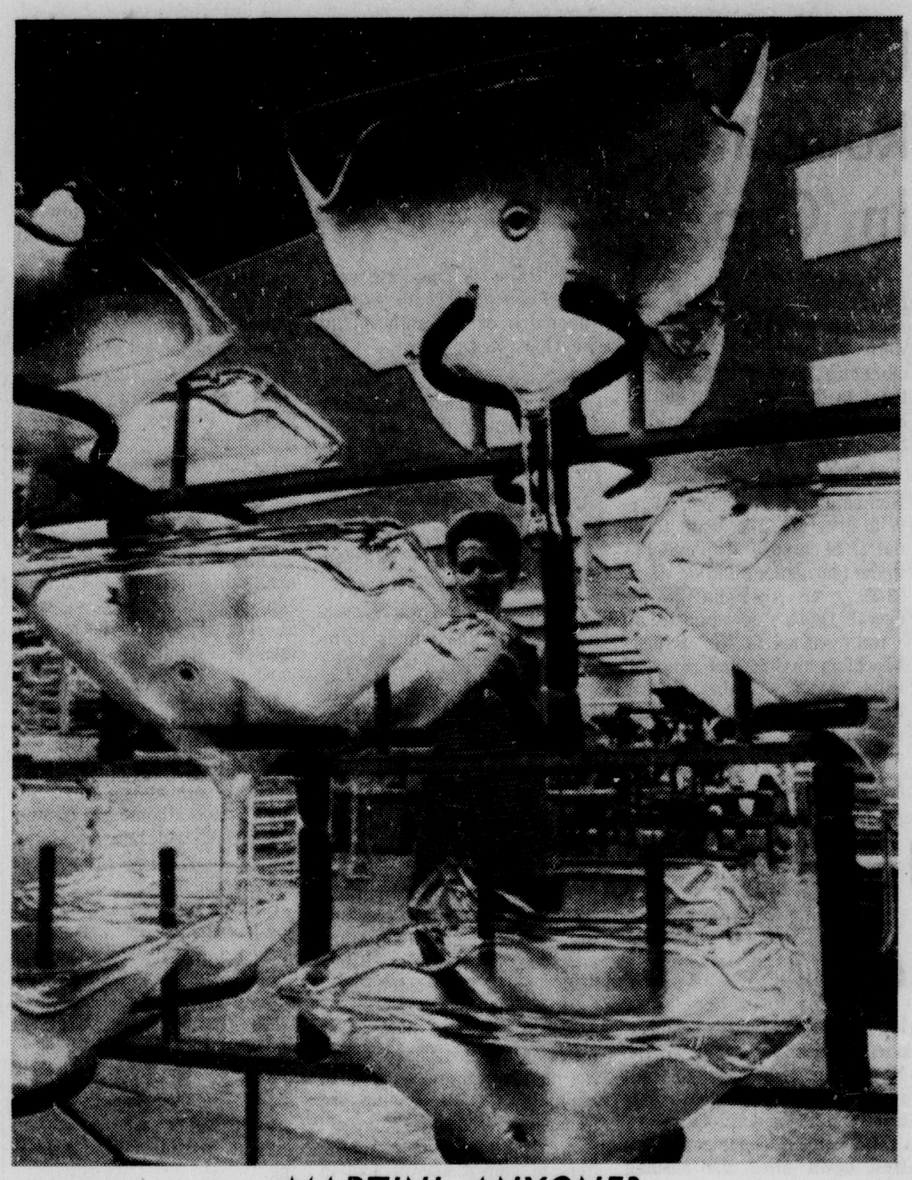
Exec Leaves Firm, Goes Into The Community

MENLO PARK (BW) — Saga Administrative Corp. vice-president Donald M. Cope has been granted a two-year leave of absence to work with the Involvement Corps of Palo Alto, a non-profit community service organization.

Cope, 41, will serve as special assistant to the Involvement Corps executive director, Ells Culver, with responsibility for internal administration and area activities coordination. The move is effective next Jan. 1.

Cope also will act as a liaison with the national center for voluntary action in Washington, D.C.

The involvement Corps, founded in 1968, works for constructive social change by organizing task forces generally composed of middle-class adult citizens to support self-help projects in urban areas. It has task forces currently working in the San Francisco Bay Area and Denver and expects to expand on a national scale during the coming year.



MARTINI, ANYONE?

Some people might like to think of these items as very large martini glasses. The folks at Westinghouse Electric Corp., though, like to think of them as glass envelopes used in making color television tubes. In their final form, these envelopes will have a faceplate sealed to their wide end and an electron gun inside their stems in order to bring the color picture on home TVs.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Earnings for Ipco Hospital Supply (NYSE) have been reduced in the last several quarters. What is your opinion of this stock? — S. K.

A. Success in the health care field depends heavily on a broad product line, an extensive distribution system, in house manufacturing and tight inventory control. Although Ipco is strong on the first two counts, in the latter two areas problems exist. However, Ipco is rapidly righting these conditions. At last report, only 30 per cent of Ipco's products were manufactured by the company. An increasing percentage — perhaps to 50 per cent by 1975 — of self-manufactured products should result from recent and proposed plant expansion.

Inventory imbalance, primarily reflecting the economic slowdown, resulted in higher interest expenses. Start-up plant costs were also a factor in limiting fiscal 1971 earings.

Diversification into the dental and optical fields has been stepped-up by three recent acquisitions and added retail optical outlets. Dental products accounted for only 14 per cent of fiscal 1970 sales, but 34 per cent of profits. Although dental sales and net were lower in fiscal 1971, this backlog of previously deferred dental work should contribute to a resurgence this year. Profit recovery is anticipated, reflecting the revised dividend policy, closer alignment of inventory, increased in-house production and expansion in dental and optical operations. Hold for expected recovery.

Q. If a person in his 60s received principal amounting to $300,000 to be invested in not more than eight securities to be held four to five years, what securities would you suggest? — J. D.

A. Because of the time restriction which has been imposed on this capital it would be unwise to invest in equity securities. Regardless of the stability or quality of the issuing corporation, a shareholder must have the freedom to act if changing corporate, industry or political conditions indicate such a move. For this reason I would recommend a portfolio of good quality corporate bonds or if your tax status requires, tax exempt municipal bonds.

'Brine Mine' Will Save Money On Salt

NEW YORK (UPI) —A "brine mine" has been developed that can save industrial users up to $6 on a ton of salt, according to a three-year study by Cargill, Inc.

The "mine" turns rock salt into pure brine at an economically feasible cost for smaller users —food and textile plants that require only 1,000 to 3,000 tons of salt per year.

The device is a self-contained stainless steel unit that produces from 50 to 100 gallons of high-purity, saturated brine per minute.
